If ever the youth of this nation needed to respond to the call to alert and active discharge of the duties of citizenship, this is the year. Young men and women, of voting age standing on the threshold, or in the vestibule, of adult life, ought to be concerned about the problems confronting them—solutions for some of which are sought through the policies and operntions af State and Federal government.

There is one gronp of voters that cnn do much to register public opinion at the polls; we refer to the young women of Michigan, as well as other states. In particular, we refer to Republic young women. They can well afford to stimulate their ranks to take an active interest in the coming campaign's issues and personalities.

Women, for long years, struggled and sacrificed and finally won the right to vote in the United States. They have done mueh to improve the structure of gavernment—and can do a great deal more. Young women are very directly concerned in government—especially those who expect to have homes and children of their own some day, if they haven't already nrrived at that status of life. For young women will come to know that government determines, among many others, one of policies that relates to motherhood's most preciaus possession: children—the policy we refer to is WAR!

To band Republican young women together in Michigan an active ond nble women, Mrs. Murl H. DeFoe, of Charlotte, is devoting much of her time these days. Local youth of the feminine sex who are interested in doing their part in saving the United States from socialistic, non-Democratic drifts as manifested by the Roosevelt administration, or from a repetition of the unfortunate recent Democratic administration of Michigan, will do well to band themselves together in a Young Women's Republican organization.

This community has many able and loyal young Republican women who are just the type Mrs. DeFoe wants to contact. We suggest, in the name of clean Republicanism, that they do so at once.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

CHAPTER XXI

"It was a nice thing for them to ask us, and I don't see how we could have gotten out of it," said Aunt Meg in an undertone.

"But, gosh, it's more fun at home, Christmas Eve," Bruce observed.

"Sh-h-h!" Brenda muttered in horror. "Your voice is absolutely penetrating!" They were all in the Bly library, guests at the great Christmas party that Cliff's parents-in-law had been planning for weeks. For the moment only the Tufts were in the room, Aunt Meg rustling in silk; Bruce handsome and sulky; Brenda in rapt attendance upon little Anthony; Cliff nervously proud of them all. Alvin had just arrived; Tony had had to do the Christmas tree at the Orphanage, but of course she was coming later.

The Bly house was enormous; it stood majestically on a Pacific Avenue corner that commanded the sweep of the cold winter bay, and the Presidio slopes, and the Golden Gate. The sea was all whitecaps on this singing wind-blown Christmas Eve, and Tamalpais stood out as if carved in granite against a pale sky.

"Oh, glorious!" said all the guests as they arrived to find the big back drawing room deliciously warm, and a great wood fire roaring and snapping in the enormous fireplace. Like all the houses along Pacific Avenue on the north, the living rooms, with their windows for commanding the wide panorama, were at the back; the entrance hall was a jumble of wraps and of attentive maids today, but there was plenty of holly and mistletoe there too. Christmas trees stood in all the corners and up on the great angle of the stairs, and scented the air with pine.

There were relatives asked in for Christmas; failed gentle elderly men and women basking in the family glory; there were shy boy cousins, all penniless, evidently, and rather variously dressed, but bashfully amusing and talkative, and being very much encouraged by Uncle Rick and Aunt Tina. There was one spectacled nice girl cousin with her young man, and there were nonchalant young men for Geraldine and Pauline, and of course Martin Gossing for Heloise. For Heloise was going to be married too, only two years after Mary Rose, and Mamma positively said this time that she didn't want to hear another word of engagements for years!

Over this heterogeneous party Dr. and Mrs. Bly reigned in happy excitement. The doctor told Aunt Meg at every opportunity that that was what the house was for: to give the young people a good time. He fulminated in great satisfaction the sentiment that it was his idea to have Clifford's people—have everyone. Cliff's aunt, and his sisters and brothers—why not? It was Christmas.

Evidently the big table—forty-one would sit down at it—had been in the process of getting set and decorated for the better part of the day; as far the tree, concealed downstairs in the billiard room its completion had occupied the family for weeks. The atmosphere of the big house was one of innocent laughter and cheer; the Blys, the Tufts, the cousins might all have been children again, gathering at the piano to sing the carols. Pauline played an slowly, bending over the great jig-saw puzzle that was spread on the library table, running up and down stairs.

Brenda and Alvin, with the precious woolly awful that was Anthony, had arrived at the Tuft apartment that morning before Tony was out of bed, and Brenda and Aunt Meg had spent a happy day managing the goat, sweet, contented baby. Tony had rushed off to work, Bruce had come home, and in the old way had kept the place in an uproar while he managed a bath; Cliff had come at about three o'clock to gather up presents for the Bly tree.

"Gosh, the Bly library looks like the Emporium packing room now!" Cliff had exulted, as they had filled his arms with the very creditable Tuft collection. Everyone had been dressing then, for it was to be an early dinner; Aunt Meggy, crimped and rustling; Brenda, quite unrecognisedly changed in figure again, matronly in spreading silk; the baby in his fur-trimmed cap and caped coat.

Just as they started Bruce had come in to escort them, and a moment later Tony, who had to change, and to rush off to cover one more Christmas tree before joining them at the Blys'. It was this circumstance that gave them a chance, Cliff and Brenda and Aunt Meg, to discuss her, when they found themselves for a moment quiet, out of the noisy current, in the big leather chairs of the Bly library.

"Tony ought to be here."

"She'll be here any minute now."

"Doesn't she look well, Brenda?"

"Beautiful. She looked badly for a while; just at first," Brenda said, lowering her voice. "But lately—oh, well, there's no one like Tony."

"Mary Rose is crazy about her," Cliff said. "You know how Tony can get people when she goes after them."

"I believe she's over it," Aunt Meg said decidedly. She looked hopefully at Brenda and then at Cliff.

"She'll never be over it," Brenda said, shaking her head. She brushed her lips across the soft fluff of Anthony's hair.

"Think not, hey?" Cliff asked, with a shrewd look. Brenda shook her head again.

"Ha!" Aunt Meg ejaculated, discomfited.

"No, but I think this of Tony," Brenda began slowly. "I think she was horribly ashamed of herself."

"I don't see exactly why she should have been ashamed of herself," Cliff protested.

"Because Larry was married."

"She couldn't help that."

"Just the same, a girl does feel ashamed when she falls in love with a married man. Alvin thinks she was too," Brenda said, clinching the matter with the unanswerable argument.

"It seems to me it's more bad luck than anything to be ashamed of," Cliff persisted.

"A girl doesn't feel so. And Tony was bitterly ashamed. She knew that if Ruth hadn't stood by her when that horrible Denny thing happened—"

"Don't speak of it," pleaded Aunt Meggy faintly, her little chin dripped in her hand, her eyes anxiously looking from one to the other.

"And I think," Brenda pursued, after a sympathetic nod and glance to her aunt's direction, "I think that Tony just—just woke up. I think she grew three years in three weeks after the Bellamys went away. It was as if a part of her, the hot old impatient selfish part—"

"She was never selfish," said Aunt Meg, ready to weep.

"No, she never was. But she was quick-tempered and stubborn—yes, she was, Aunt Meg."

"As a mule!" said Cliff, and both women laughed.

"She changed," said Brenda. "It was as if she thought: 'I'll die—Tony Tuft. I'll live for all the rest of them. Brenda and the baby, and Cliff and Mary Rose, and Aunt Meg and Aunt Sally—I'll be gentler, I'll read and I'll study—I'll make myself the wisest woman, the finest, the most cultured—I'll quit be wild, gay, reckless Tony Taft any more—'"

"It was something like that," Cliff said, as Brenda paused, with tears in her eyes.

"I think it was," Brenda said.

"But then what's the child going to get out of it herself?" Aunt Meg asked. "She's nearly twenty-eight—she doesn't want to marry—"

"I wish she'd marry Joe Vanderwall!" Brenda exclaimed, in the pause.

"He doesn't click," Cliff said, shaking his head. "He's a prince; she's devoted to him. She goes down to his place, and they cook and they tramp around; she admires him. But somehow it doesn't click."

"Where are the Bellamys now, Brenda?"

"In Nice. Larry came back to New York once; now I believe he's gone over again. The old mother had a stroke, you know, and they've just been hanging on, waiting. They've taken a place there, and Larry's writing a book."

"They went away—when?"

TRIM WAISTLINES CALL FOR SALADS

There's Sense to Making Salad Principal Theme for Meals

Salads are becoming the most popular food dish of the day, according to Katherine M. Hart, assistant food manager, Union Building, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

First course salads are replacing soup and fruits while main course salads gain in popularity over regular dishes, she claims.

"The salad is 'stepping out' today," says Miss Hart. "No longer can it be considered a mere side dish. For many a tempting salad is now a meal in itself.

"Thanks to the advice of doctors and dietitians, and the almost universal desire to avoid extreme waistlines, the popularity of the salad has increased tremendously of late."

Miss Hart recommends the following salad combinations as side dishes:

With fish—cucumber salad, mixed vegetable salad.

With cold meat—potato salad, stuffed tomato salad, macaroni, cheese, and olive salad.

With chicken—pineapple salad, asparagus salad, gingerale fruit jelly salad, cranberry salad.

With duck—watercress and orange salad, apple and celery salad, green gage plum salad.

With pork—cabbage and pineapple salad, apple and raisin salad, grapefruit salad.

With lamb—chicory or lettuce salad with Russian dressing, mint jelly salad, raw carrot salad.

With veal—stuffed prune salad, tomato and celery salad, pickled beet salad, sauerkraut and olive salad.

With beef—head lettuce salad, asparagus salad, apricot salad, cole slaw salad.

FEBRUARY BLIZZARDS COST STATE HEAVILY

Snow Removal Costs Increased in Every County During February

Michigan's recent blizzards, the most severe in the history of modern transportation, meant a $242,642 bill to the State Highway Department.

A compilation announced by State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner estimated snow-removal expenditures on the trunkline system at that amount for the first two weeks in February. This was the period in which Michigan experienced three successive blizzards which brought temperatures of zero to 25 below, winds as high as 60 miles an hour, 18 inches of snow on the level, and drifts as high as 15 to 20 feet.

The estimated expenditures represented an increase of $111,357, or an average of $1,341.65, for every county in the state, over the snow-removal outlay on the trunkline system at the same time last year. Commissioner Van Wagoner said 1935 winter weather conditions were regarded as normal for Michigan.

The recent blizzards boosted maintenance figures in all but 13 counties of the state. While Lower Michigan was fighting its worst snow drifts in history, the Upper Peninsula burden was almost normal. The maintenance bill for that section of the state represented a total reduction of $48.

Snow removal costs in Charlevoix county for the first two weeks of February were $2,955, as compared to $1,205 for the same period in 1935.

Agricultural Engineering Meetings Arranged for March 12

Due to the fact that several inquiries have come to the county agent's office relative to farm building construction and remodeling problems, it has been deemed advisable to conduct two meetings.

C. H. Jefferson, instructor in agricultural engineering of the Michigan State College, will be the speaker. He will have with him the latest plans for various farm buildings. Not alone buildings, but questions relative to power, irrigation, septic tanks and other closely associated problems will be presented.

The first meeting will be held in the assembly room of the Boyne City post office on Thursday, March 12, at 10 o'clock, and the afternoon meeting at the Barnard Grange promptly at 2 o'clock. All farmers who have any problems relative to agricultural engineering are most cordially invited to attend. Without a doubt it will be possible to leave plans for those who desire them. Now is the time to develop your improvement program for the year. Mr. Jefferson will be pleased to discuss your problem with you.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

The break in the weather came just in time to make fresh fish moderately plentiful and inexpensive for Lent. It also brought lower prices on eggs and butter. Cheese prices had not been affected but this is always an economical and nourishing food which can be used to replace meat.

Fresh vegetables are plentiful and very reasonable considering the season. Beets, new cabbage, carrots, new potatoes and spinach are the outstanding values.

All fresh meats are cheaper, particularly beef and pork, and lamb and veal in lesser degree.

Winter fruits still have the market though strawberries and pineapples are becoming more plentiful. South American grapes, nectarines pears and plums are available.

Here are three menus for Sunday dinner at different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner

Chuck Steak Macaroni and Cheese
Sweet-sour Beets
Bread and Butter
Apple Cobbler
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Boiled Shoulder Mutton
Caper Sauce
New Potatoes Green Beans
Bread and Butter
Fruit Crackers Cheese
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Vegetable Soup
Roast Beef Browned Potatoes
Green Beans
Lettuce Cheese Dressing
Rolls and Butter
Strawberry Shortcake
Coffee

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Too Soon for Car Data Comparisons

Because of two factors, weather and time, which influenced the sale of 1936 automobile license plates and "stickers," accurate comparison of the number of motor vehicles to be licensed this year, with the total licensed in 1935 is impossible at this time.

This statement is made by Department of State officials as clerks clear their way through the huge volume of eleventh hour applications for 1936 plates and "half-year" stickers which were sold as the deadline approached.

The snowfall in many sections of the state was unprecedented in recent years. Many rural roads were blocked at the time when car owners in these areas might ordinarily buy their plates or "stickers." Until present road conditions improve, many motorists will not purchase plates or stickers until they are ready to again use their cars.

In 1935, the deadline for the purchase of plates or half-year stickers was moved forward to March 15. This action was taken in response to a resolution by the 1935 Legislature then in session, and was regarded as a necessity. The printing of half-year stickers was held up until the Legislature had by law made the plan a permanent one. Prior to that, authority to sell half-year stickers had been limited to expire in 1934.

However, because this year's deadline is 15 days earlier than last year's, accurate comparisons of the number of cars to be licensed this year, with the number on the roads last year, cannot be made probably until the end of March, department officials point out.

DEATH TAKES BELOVED WOMAN HERE THURSDAY

Mrs. Hannah F. Gray Dies Following Brief Illness—Funeral Saturday

Charlevoix and this region lost a beloved pioneer woman Thursday, February 27, in the death of Mrs. Hannah F. Gray, age 84 years, who succumbed at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. P. Wertzbar, following a brief illness.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Leonard Lee at the Wertzbar residence on Park avenue, at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Hannah Frances Scroggie was born May 15, 1851, at Rawdon, Quebec, Canada. She married William Gray in 1876 and the couple shortly afterwards established a home in Hayes township, numbering among the early settlers of that district. Mr. Gray preceded his wife in death October 8, 1929.

Surviving are Mrs. F. S. Crynes, Portland, Ore.; William Gray, Jr., and Mrs. Louis Mindel, Petoskey; Thomas and Albert Copping, of Bay Shore; Mrs. C. P. Wertzbar and Guy Gray, of Charlevoix; also one sister, Mrs. George Zipp, of Petoskey, 19 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES

Charlevoix and Ironton

Continuing the series of addresses on the Apostles' Creed the subject for our sermon next Sunday will be "He Ascended Into Heaven." Is there anything significant in the statement that Jesus Christ ascended into heaven? Do you know why Jesus ascended? Do you know whether or not His ascension has had any effect upon the church or religion in general during the past 2000 years? Would you be interested to know that the ascension is a mighty important thing in your life? Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the service begins and we will give you something to think about that is so far above politics and its issues that words cannot express it. We have made it a rule for many years to allow nothing save the Gospel of Jesus Christ to be dispensed from our pulpit on Sunday morning.

The Young Men's Union has made a good start on the subject, "The Second Coming of Christ." There will be plenty of argument, and each young man will have an opportunity to express himself.

The committee got off at a good start on a program leading up to Decision Day, which has been set for April 5. "What Is a Christian" was the subject last Sunday. Next Sunday will be God. Parents urge your children to attend every Sunday so as not to miss one of these numbers.

The Lord in answer to prayer and faith in his promises has sent showers of blessings upon the Sunday services. Two weeks ago three were converted in the evening service, and this last week, though no one yielded, the Holy Spirit of God was striving much with hearts. We invite your prayers and interest for those who have not entered into the kingdom of Heaven.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 41. NUMBER 11. EIGHT PAGES THE CHARLEVOIX COURIER, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11, 1936 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

MAY 1ST JUST ANOTHER DATE NOW

TROUT SEASON OPENING ON APRIL 25 THIS YEAR

Change Made by 1935 Legislature Aimed to Give State's Anglers Week-End to Open Season

An anglers' tradition of many years' standing will be shattered when trout fishing season opens in Michigan this spring. It used to be that May 1st signalized the opening of trout season and the date was acknowledged by tens of thousands of sportsmen as their special holiday. But beginning this year trout season officially opens on the last Saturday in April and the first of May is just another date on the fishing calendar.

The change was made by an act of the last State Legislature and as a result the trout fishermen this year get six extra days of fishing in addition to a week-end on which to celebrate the opening of the season.

Beginning of trout season on the last Saturday in April will allow the many Northern Michigan communities a better opportunity to stage their annual trout festivals and celebrations, state fisheries authorities point out.

In a number of these communities the opening of trout season has developed a holiday or carnival spirit. Men left their places of business and in some instances so many pupils were absent from school that authorities had to suspend school sessions on opening day whenever it occurred during the school week.

In effect the new law, changing opening date from May 1 to the last Saturday in April, gives the office worker and shop laborer an even chance with the man of more leisure to be on his favorite stream to observe the opening of the season, fisheries men assert.

Although opening date is about 50 days off, fisheries authorities are speculating. The innovation may and may not be favorable to fishing; it being too early to make a guess on that matter, they say. It is possible however, that the angler will have a better chance to tie into one of the large-size steelhead or rainbow trout, which have moved back downstream toward Great Lakes waters after their spawning migration upstream.

Some of these larger fish—the migratory kind—are taken early in the season, but for the most part by the first of May they are back in the deeper water stretches of the streams or in Great Lakes waters.

The earlier opening, with its weather and stronger prospects for greater chances of unfavorable high water levels this year, may find more of these larger fishes in the stretches favored by the fly fishermen.

Rain, snow and cold weather have been experienced on May 1 opening date and may again be experienced, especially with trout season beginning six days earlier this spring. Indications are strong that weather and stream conditions may not be entirely satisfactory this year. But at all events it seems likely that the earlier opening will relieve the tension in the homes of many ardent trout fishermen, who heretofore have been unable to be on their favorite stream opening day but very likely will be there this spring, come rain, snow or high water.

CITIES FAVORED IN TAX BATTLE

CIRCUIT JUDGE RULES MUNICIPAL PLANTS EXEMPT

Expect Test Case Against Sales Tax Administration Will Go to the Supreme Court

Cities operating municipal light plants have won the first round in the battle to avoid payment of sales taxes on retail distribution of power.

Judge Leland W. Carr, of Ingham county circuit court, ruled Monday in a test suit against the board of State Tax Administration that customers of municipally-owned power plants are exempt from the sales tax.

Charlevoix joined in the suit which was brought by Wyandotte, Lowell and Lansing. Many other communities in the state are also concerned in the litigation.

Since the state board ruled that the sales tax must be collected, the city of Charlevoix has been charging customers for the tax but holding the money in a special account pending outcome of the suit.

Rollie L. Lewis, city attorney, predicted the case will be appealed to the state supreme court so that the final decision will not be known for some time.

Judge Carr held in his opinion that "the Legislature did not intend that municipalities should be subject to payment of the tax." He pointed to the provision in the sales tax law that property of taxpayers can be seized for non-payment and said "it is scarcely conceivable that, had the Legislature considered the act applicable to municipalities, it would have provided this remedy without exempting cities from its application."

The State Board of Tax Administration originally exempted the sale of power produced by municipally-owned plants from the three per cent levy, then made a reversing ruling which held that the tax was collectible.

Attorneys for the city of Wyandotte claimed the original provision of the tax board was correct and that "it is not within the power of the Legislature to impose such a tax in view of the fact that the constitution specifically grants power to cities and villages to own and operate utilities by supplying water, light, heat, power and transportation."

Judge Carr cited the wording of the act as "imposing a tax on all persons engaged in the business of making sales at retail." He said "'persons' has been construed in certain instances as including municipal operators."

CHARLEVOIX WINS DISTRICT C TITLE

ELIMINATED EAST JORDAN AND HARBOR SPRINGS TO ADVANCE TO THE REGIONAL TOURNEY THIS WEEK

Pellston Romped to Easy Victories to Annex Class D Title for Third Successive Year; Charlevoix Plays Northport in First Round of Regional Thursday Night

Charlevoix's Red Rayders successfully defended their district Class C basketball title at Boyne City last week, and as a result will enter the regional tournament which opens Thursday at Petoskey.

Running true to predictions, Pellston's powerful aggregation romped off with the Class D district title for the third successive year. They are doped to win the regional and advance to the state finals in which they were the 1935 runner-up.

Charlevoix Victories Close

Both of Charlevoix's tournament victories were by narrow margins.

In the semi-finals Friday night, they nosed out East Jordan by a 19 to 17 count in a thrilling game. Out in front by a 6 to 2 margin at the close of the quarter, Charlevoix allowed East Jordan to creep up within two points at the half, which ended 11 to 9. East Jordan tied the score in the opening minutes of play in the third period, but the Rayders pulled away to a 17 to 14 margin at the intermission.

A field goal and free throw earned East Jordan a tie at 17-all early in the fourth quarter, but goals by Carey and Schwab followed to give Charlevoix the lead again. Ellis counted a goal for the losers just before the final whistle.

Free throws provided the margin of victory for Charlevoix. Each team counted seven field goals but the Rayders made seven of 13 free throws, while East Jordan counted only five of 11 chances. Pearl and Schwab carried the brunt of the scoring, the former counting seven and the latter six.

Charlevoix 20, Harbor 15

In the finals Saturday night, Charlevoix trailed most of the way and then battled through an overtime period to conquer Harbor Springs by a 20 to 15 score.

Harbor, showing a powerful offense and strong defense, held a 7 to 4 margin at the quarter and were out in front 11 to 7 at the half. Charlevoix came back strong in the third period, holding Harbor scoreless while adding four points to tie the count 11-all at the third intermission. The final period was a wild struggle, both teams counting four points. Charlevoix took the lead twice, but both times Harbor tied the count and at the end of regulation play the count was knotted 15 to 15.

In the overtime period, Pearl scored first on a free throw after being fouled by Hovey. He added a goal shortly afterwards and Carey ended the scoring with a short shot.

Carey led the scoring with eight points, Pearl and Radle made four each, and Schwab and Gallagher two each. Graham tallied six for Harbor.

Other tournament results:

Plane, Damaged, Said Withdrawn from Service—Buying New Ship

Transportation of passengers and mail from Beaver Island has been accomplished the past week by means of motor truck across Lake Michigan to Cross Village.

Change to the old method was occasioned by damage to the plane which has covered the route during the winter and, it is understood, its final withdrawal from service.

It is reported that the Beaver Island Transportation Co., holders of the mail contract, are negotiating the purchase of a smaller plane, and that George Austgen, upon his return from Pontiac with the new ship, will resume the air route.

BOYNE CITY REQUEST FOR LIQUOR REFUSED

No Extension Closing Hour to Be Granted During Smelt Run

Fishermen who will converge on Boyne City during the annual smelt run which is expected early in April, will have to take their own drinks for the "wee sma' hours," the State Liquor Control Commission has ruled.

Representative Douglas D. Tibbits, of Boyne City, asked that the 1 a. m. curfew for liquor establishments in Boyne City be lifted during the run. The commission also refused a request to allow restaurants serving beer to remain open later to accommodate night and early morning fishermen in the village for the smelt run.

BRIDGE SUPPORT IS CONSOLIDATED

NORTHERN BOOSTERS JOINED AT PETOSKEY MEETING

Pledge Support Through Mackinac Straits Bridge Association — Charlevoix Represented

With opinion consolidated for the first time upon a single route, representatives of Upper and Lower Peninsula cities were pledged last Thursday to attack the problem of bridging the Straits of Mackinac.

The pledge was made at a great mass meeting of city and county representatives of half of Michigan held at Petoskey. The problem will be attacked under the auspices of the Mackinac Straits Bridge Association Direction.

The route decided upon leads from the harbor at Mackinaw City, direct to Graham Shoals, about five miles east and a bit south of St. Ignace. From that point the route would angle northeast into the land head of the Upper Peninsula.

New plans are ready for such a linking of the divided parts of Michigan, Prof. James H. Cissel, head of the bridge division of the Michigan State Highway Department, announced.

The plans, he said, call for spans of 600, 900 and 1,700 feet across the deep water of the Straits, with causeways and viaducts leading to the spans across the shallower water.

Prof. Cissel declared the project would require the work of 15,000,000 man hours. This, he said, would mean about 2,000 workers constantly employed on construction for a period of about four years. In addition, probably not less than $10,000,000 would be spent for labor employed in Michigan cement factories and producers of concrete aggregates, lumber and other construction materials. Several million feet of timber and lumber would be required for the false work, he said.

"Studies by the Bridge Authority indicate that it is practicable to build a bridge connecting the two peninsulas," he declared.

State Representative Edward H. Fenlon, of St. Ignace, said he had word from Representative Prentiss Brown, in Washington, who quoted President Roosevelt as saying:

"I believe we're going to put the bridge across the Straits of Mackinac."

Mortimer E. Cooley, Dean of the University of Michigan engineering school and former state PWA director, was quoted by Harry Coons, deputy state highway commissioner, as saying:

"Social, economic and governmental life of our people and the continued contact and communication between the Upper and Lower Peninsulas demand an early link across the Straits."

Charlevoix was represented at the meeting by City Engineer Robert F. Sloan, Robert Bridge, Dr. F. W. Young and Dr. F. F. McMillan.

Harry Chamberlain has been cutting ice for the Norwood people, at Torch Lake. He also cut quite a bit for Clyde Baker. Eastport and Torch Lake have a Resort Association, with Will Hopkins, president; Mrs. Ray Morgret, vice president; Emory Bence, secretary; Marion Dodge, treasurer.

What will be done about the Central Lake postmaster is still in the air according to latest reports. William Alberts, who seems to be in the lead on account of his activities on the Democratic campaign committee in previous elections, says he has heard nothing definite. It is reported that Alva James, Joe Devlin and Mr. Boice are also candidates.

The Democratic caucus for Central Lake township was a rather quiet affair last Saturday in marked contrast to the enthusiasm two years ago, when the Citizens united with the Democrats under the Democratic head. Many would rather have the old Citizens caucus. There were but 17 out last Saturday. Two years ago, about 56 attended. Nominations were as follows: Supervisor, Everett Vandenberg; clerk, Mr. Watkins; treasurer, Mrs. Fred Hodges; justice, O. N. Sage; board of review Albert Snitseler. Mr. Snitseler was chairman. All are present officials, except Mrs. Hodges.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Substance" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 15.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Heb. 11:1): "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 275): "All substance, intelligence, wisdom, being, immortality, cause, and effect belong to God. These are His attributes, the eternal manifestations of the divine Principle, Love."

The reason a lot of politicians are so concerned over the "human rights" of the fellow on relief is that one of those rights is the right to vote.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

CHAPTER XXIII

"A year and a half ago. It was just before Mary Rose and I were married."

"What do you suppose Larry does with himself all day?"

"Oh, writes. And swims. And plays bridge. The cousin is with them, Mrs. Polhemus."

"Does Tony hear from him?"

"Only through Joe. No, she doesn't write. And I must say I think," Brenda said loyally, "she's behaved magnificently!"

"She's been a good sport," Cliff said.

"Ah, here she is; that's Tony in the next room now!" said Aunt Meg, and Bruce added, "Now it'll be a party!"

Here was Tony indeed, coming in fresh and rosy from the cold air. She had left her outer wraps downstairs; her freshly brushed hair fell in waves over her low forehead; her gown was dark green velvet, with deep Vandyke cuffs and a collar of lace; she was joyous, eager, lovely; she seemed to bring with her to the somewhat halting party a breath of new life.

"White violets!" she said, coming up to her elderly little hostess. "They gave them to me at the Orphanage; aren't they delicious? Here, they're for you. Are we all kissing you today, Doctor, because it's Christmas? You don't know how wonderful it is to get into this warmth and find you all! Hello, my Anthony, are you a good boy? Hello, Mary Rose." And then in an undertone, "How goes it?"

They Cook and They Tramp Around

"The horrid feeling in the morning has stopped," Mary Rose confided to her sister-in-law.

"Ah, what a relief that is'" Brenda said.

"If it should be a girl, I believe my father'd drown it," Cliff's wife murmured.

"I want a girl," Brenda said. Tony burst into an animated description of the Orphanage party: the spilled milk and crumbled sponge cakes the little arms held out for dolls, the mangy ornaments, so ugly and broken and old, little dirty wax angels with their wings bent, and gilded walnut shells with holes in them!

"Pencil boxes and Lord! those aren't very thrilling," Tony went on. "I thought of Anthony's Christmas. His grandfather sent him a coaster, wasn't it, Bemly?"

"He adores him," Brenda said solemnly.

"Next year, I'm going to take an orphan and send him something swell!" Tony said.

"Papa!" said Mrs. Bly, her motherly eyes moist.

"Next year we will," the old doctor said, nodding.

The party went on into enjoyment and hilarity. There was a marvelous dinner; Mrs Bly telling Aunt Meg in an aside that her Chinese boy had been with her for twenty-seven years and wouldn't allow anyone else to touch the turkeys or the dessert. "But of course we get in help."

Brenda slipped away now and then, went upstairs to be sure Anthony was asleep in Pauline's old crib in the care of Pauline's old nurse.

"You better keep that crib," Tony, at the old doctor's right, said, in his ear. He looked at her, blinked his blue eyes.

"I hope so, I hope so; if not now, one of these days! But Mary Rose still seems like a baby herself to me," he said.

After dinner came the great hour of the tree, with everyone quite speechless with laughter, surprise, and gratitude.

"Gee, it's cute! I love it. I'm mad about it. Look, look, look," said the babel of voices. "Isn't that adorable? Isn't that too adorable?"

The excitement had reached its height when a maid came to Mrs Bly, who turned to Tony.

"A Doctor Vanderwall?"

"Oh, on the telephone?"

"No, he's here."

"Oh?" Tony said, pleased and puzzled.

"Where'd you put him, Mamie?"

"In the library."

"Oh. You'll go up, Tony? Yes, and then do bring him down—we'll find something for him on the tree."

Tony went upstairs; stretched both hands to the squarely built man who rose from the shadows of the library.

"Joe, how nice! Merry Christmas! But take off that coat. How'd you know I was here?"

"I telephoned the office. Say, sit down a minute. I just had a cable," Joe said abruptly. His fair moon face was very serious.

Her color changed; her eyes were riveted on his face.

"What is it?" she asked quickly. "Mrs. Patterson?"

"No. Ruth."

"Ruth?" whispered Tony. The quiet room, softly lighted in the winter evening, and the drowsing fire, and the decorous backs of the handsome books seemed to reel, to settle again in their places.

Joe frowned, spoke slowly, as if he felt a little embarrassed by her emotion, a little sorry for her.

"She was hurt in the street. She never regained consciousness."

"Ruth!" Tony whispered again, with a dry mouth. For a long minute she looked at Joe. "Dead?" she asked.

"Yes, she died this morning—Sunday morning, it said, at eleven o'clock."

"They were motoring?"

"It didn't say. Larry was in Paris. It said 'Larry arrives from Paris tonight.' And it said my grandmother's condition was, unchanged; they've not told her. She had a stroke, weeks back!"

Tony's knotted fingers were against her mouth. Her eyes were far away; her forehead wrinkled.

"Ruth dead! It doesn't make sense!" she said, half aloud, as if talking to herself.

"No, does it?"

"It just doesn't seem—true. Ruth dead."

"Christmas Eve."

"I thought of that. I can't seem to—get it."

"He'll come home now."

Tony was not listening.

"She always loved him, dearly. Poor Ruth!"

"Yes, she always did. Well," Joe said, in an effort to be generous, "Larry was always fine to her, too. I think this thing, I mean last year was the best thing that ever really upset her. She didn't know what to do; she thought the best way was to pretend that it didn't matter. I don't know; I think she acted according to her lights."

"I think she did. Poor Ruth! But I can't get over it!" Tony took the folded cable and read and reread it frowningly.

"Ruth struck by car in street yesterday," she read. "Died eleven this morning without regaining consciousness. Larry arrives from Paris tonight. Gran as usual; we have not told her."

It was signed "Caroline." Tony folded it, opened it and read it again.

"Did Ilse come to Carmel?"

"About five. I motored right in. I didn't want you to see it in the paper tomorrow."

Tony looked away, and Joe looked at her. The gracious lines of the long young body were set off by the green velvet gown; the deep lace collar and cuffs, the flushed cheeks and rumpled dark hair and serious blue eyes made her look like a beautiful child.

"It makes me—feel badly," she said, speaking as if her throat were sore.

"I suppose so, Tony."

"You're awfully kind about it, Joe," the girl said suddenly. She laid her hand on his, but her eyes were absent and her thoughts far away. "Ruth!" she said in a strange whisper. "Dead! Oh, Joe, I'm sorry!"

After a while he was gone, and in a dream she was mingling with the Christmas party again; presently it was time to go home, sticky, tired, hushed, still laughing and talking. Brenda had carried her baby off early; she had made her stay-ing at the Palace Hotel tonight with Alvin's queer old father a little important. "Alvin, we mustn't disappoint your father," she had said more than once.

The others went together; Cliff and Mary Rose were staying with her family tonight, but Cliff took Tony and Bruce and Aunt Meg and an odd uncle home; everyone agreed that there never had been a nicer Christmas party. Their "Merry Christmas!" rang over and over again in the cold night.

"I have to go down to the office about one," Tony said, "I'll fill my column with this party." But when they had left the uncle at a modest address in Larkin street she told them all her news.

"Cliff, Aunt Meg—Doctor Vanderwall just came up to tell me that Ruth Bellamy was killed in Nice yesterday."

"What!" Aunt Meg whispered sharply.

"It's true."

"My gosh, what a break!" Cliff said slowly, simply. Tony laughed nervously, briefly. When they got to the apartment house he came upstairs to talk about it, although it was nearly eleven o'clock and he was supposedly returning at once to Mary Rose.

They sat about in the Taft sitting room, that same shabby room to which Tony had returned despairing after her first interview with Larry Bellamy, more than four years ago, and threshed the whole thing out, family fashion.

"Give me the low-down, Tony, what do you think will happen? Will he come straight home?"

"How could I possibly tell, Cliff? I'm so dazed by the whole thing it doesn't seem true, yet. Ruth killed. Ruth killed. I keep saying it over and over."

"Brenda know?"

"No. I didn't dare tell. I thought it might upset the party. I told Alvin, and told him to tell her in the morning."

"Gosh, what a break!" Cliff said again.

"Sad, sad, sad!" Aunt Meg said her chin in her hand.

"Yes, it is sad," Tony agreed soberly. "She was always kind to me."

"Shall you cable, Tony?" This was Cliff.

"No, I think not," Tony fell silent, thinking.

But to Cliff, when she was saying good night at the door, and to Brenda the next day she added: "I'm not going to write him. I'm not even going to think about it. When he comes back—as of course he will — then'll be time enough. I shouldn't care if it was a year from now. Any time!"

"Oh, Tony," said Brenda, "it's terribly sad. But it means your happiness coming along. Nothing can stop it now!"

"Oh, Tony," Said Brenda, "It's Terribly Sad."

Tony was standing at the window of Brenda's apartment at the Palace. Anthony was wallowing rapturously on the bed with his bottle; in a few minutes the Atwaters would be on their way back to Monterey in the doctor's shabby little car. Tony had come down in the morning to discuss the great change with Brenda.

"I suppose not," she said slowly, looking down into busy Market street. "But I won't think of it. I'm going to keep busy and not think. I'm working hard. Time—only time can tell what's going to happen."

"Tony, have you thought that it was lucky—no, that's not the word—have you thought that it was—strange that Larry was in Paris?"

"Yes, I did think of that." Tony laughed ruefully, without turning from her scrutiny of the street.

"Have you heard from him at all, Tony?"

"Oh, yes. At first he wrote. Ten letters — twelve. I destroyed them. One or two, at first, I read. But the rest I didn't."

"I think that was heroic."

"It was," Tony agreed, with a dry little laugh.

"And do you feel the same as you did?" the older sister asked a little timidly.

"Oh, yes."

"And will you be terribly happy?—of course you will be, when he gets here."

"Ah, my dear, if you knew," Tony said, under her breath.

Pruning Demonstration Meetings for Fruit Men Announced

To be of assistance to fruit men, two pruning demonstrations have been scheduled for Thursday, March 19. The first will be held at the farm of D. D. Tibbits at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, and the second demonstration at the fruit farm of George Hanson, starting at 2.

T. A. Merrill, specialist in horticulture, of the Michigan State College, will be in charge of the two meetings. Considerable time will be spent in discussing what to do in cases where trees have suffered much from winter injury. This is a good time to go through your orchard and examine every tree. Some trees present a different program than others, hence it is well to note the proper procedure to follow.

This will be the first time that Mr. Merrill has been with us, and it is hoped that all fruit men will attend their nearest demonstration. During the last five years we have had a different fruit man in this county and it seems desirable as each specialist presents his information somewhat differently.

The latest type of pruning called the "thin wood" type will be again explained and demonstrated. Please mark this date down on your calendar and be present. In connection with this announcement, plans are being made for grafting demonstrations to be held later in the season.

High Egg Prices Increase Demand for Baby Chicks

Hatchery men report greatly increased demand for baby chicks, according to Prof. T. G. Card, poultry husbandry department, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Good prices for eggs this winter have increased demand for chicks to such an extent that some hatcheries are having difficulty obtaining sufficient eggs. Decreased production on the average farm because of the cold weather is held partly responsible for hatchery difficulties.

"Some hatcheries have had difficulty getting sufficient eggs but that will straighten out with the warm weather," says Professor Card. "More farmers are buying chicks from hatcheries this year than for the last six years if we can judge by reports. More than 71 per cent of the chicks raised this year will be bought from hatcheries.

"Hatcheries can produce better quality chicks because they usually purchase good mules, properly select eggs and incubate properly. The importance of this egg breeding factor cannot be over emphasized. Profit or loss depends almost entirely upon the egg breeding of the chicks purchased."

Professor Card advises farmers to give serious attention now to proper health conditions and feeding of the young chicks. Sanitary conditions, location on clean ranges, good feeding rations, separation of sexes at an early age, and disposal of cockerels and broilers are very important, he states.

The ration for young chicks recommended by the college includes 36 pounds yellow corn meal (ground coarsely), 20 pounds bran, 20 pounds ground oat groats or ground oatmeal, 10 pounds dried milk, five pounds meatscrap (50 per cent protein), five pounds alfalfa leaf meal, two pounds steamed bonemeal, one pound salt, one pound cod liver oil.

County Land Planning Project to Be Launched

A county land planning committee is being selected at the present time for the purpose of having an afternoon meeting on March 17. At this time C. L. Nash, specialist of the Michigan State College, will assist the county committee in formulating a long time agricultural program that will be of greatest value to this county.

Up to the present time through the efforts of the AAA administration and other similar efforts, a hit and miss program has been started. It is felt, however, that none of these exactly hits the real objective of an agricultural program, as they have not considered the real avenues of farm development. This committee will have available the 1935 census figures as a base for their recommendations. Also the crops that are most desirable to develop will be recommended. The types of agricultural enterprises that have the best opportunities will be suggested.

This committee will meet in the assembly room, Federal Building, Boyne City, on Tuesday afternoon, March 17. Publicity will be given to all activities of this committee. From this conference will come recommendations and suggestions that will greatly improve the agricultural wealth of the county.

If an election were to be held now, how would the public vote? What percentage of the vote would each of the major parties poll? For the answer read "America Speaks" in Sunday's Detroit News.

FARM INSTITUTES OPEN AT COLLEGE

Nine new institutes to be given this spring and summer are announced by R. W. Tenny, director of short courses at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

The short term programs offer instruction in ice cream making, March 9-20; horseshoeing, horse showmanship, cooperative marketing, March 9-13; rabbit breeding, March 30 to April 2; ornamental horticulture, April 13-17; public school custodianship, June 21-26; and hatchery work, August 31-September 5. Farm Women's Week will begin July 26.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS
By Ann Page

Egg prices and supplies have returned to normal for the season which means they can be used freely for both eating and cooking. Butter prices, too, have continued to drop.

Salt water fish is comparatively plentiful and moderately priced though fresh water fish is practically unobtainable. On the whole meat prices are little changed from last week. Forequarter cuts of beef and lamb are lower and the hindquarter slightly higher. Veal is somewhat lower and pork slightly higher. Smoked meats and poultry prices are unchanged.

Vegetables and fruits are fairly plentiful and attractively priced for this time of year.

Here are three menus for Sunday dinner at different budget levels.

You HAVE MORE ROOM BECAUSE THE FORD V-8 ENGINE TAKES LESS ROOM

THE compact design of the Ford V-8 engine allows more of the car's length to be used for passenger room. This is just one way in which this engine from the luxury-car class adds to your comfort as a driver and to the comfort of your passengers in the new Ford.

For years the finest cars have been distinguished by a V-type engine. Ford brought this type of engine within the reach of the average motorist. The next great forward step was to make every feature of the Ford car measure up to the quality of the V-8 engine.

You can see the interesting results in the new Ford V-8 for 1936. Comfort, beauty, driving ease and safety—all are in keeping with its V-8 engine quality.

EXECUTIVE AUTOCRACY

Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, a South Carolinian, life long Democrat and distinguished soldier, was called before a committee of Congress, sitting in executive session behind closed doors, and was invited to discuss certain pending appropriations for the United States Army.

Gen. Hagood responded with a frank statement in which, among other things, he referred to the billions now being expended by the federal government as "stage money," and, doubtless thinking of such proposals as the Florida ship canal, the proposed forestation of the western plains, the bridle paths at Michigan State College, and countless other "boondoggling" projects made a remark on the difficulty of securing any funds for worth while uses.

Gen. Hagood acted in line of duty. He did not rush to the newspapers with his ideas, however good or bad, to seek personal publicity. Instead he spoke only when called upon by proper governmental authority and, like a good soldier, he spoke his true mind.

Mindful, however, that such statements do leak out, Gen. Hagood later took the further precaution of wiring the committee a demand that his entire testimony be eliminated from the printed record. "At least," he added, "strike out everything that is inconsistent with the President's budget or could be construed as a criticism of the New Deal."

Despite his plea, enough of the General's statement appeared in the published reports of the hearing to disclose that he had dared to express an opinion contrary to some that are entertained by the administration.

Gen. Hagood has been summarily removed from active service as a result.

This bit of autocracy by the executive department of our government is in harmony with its recent action in cancelling a concert by the Marine Band and forbidding a naval chaplain to say a prayer at a patriotic gathering of women where Hon. Brainbridge Colby, secretary of state in the cabinet of President Woodrow Wilson gave offense, presumably by speaking a few words in defense of the Constitution.

Few dictators have dared to attempt a sudden seizure of supreme power. They usually arrogate new prerogatives cautiously, step by step. That is the way it is done in America, too, it seems.

LOCAL RELIEF CONTROL

Modern civilization is constantly giving us new worries concerning our national well-being. The wonder is that the United States was able to make such strides in the comfort and welfare of the majority of its citizens without the aid of a vast army of social workers that has sprung up in recent years. Already a powerful social worker's lobby is forming, and while it does not have much money to influence legislation, it has something just as important. That is direct contact with thousands of voters who are interested in getting something from the government.

By passing the word along to their "client" it is easy to gain support at the bar of public opinion and at the polls for almost any program they desire. Many Michigan communities were amazed when government emergency relief was established to find the old supervisor system of distributing relief replaced by an imported social worker, who, without a particle of knowledge regarding local conditions, began spending government bounty broadcast. The result was inefficiency and waste. When this nightmare caused by the depression passes, we are of the opinion that the taxpayers of the country will come to the sensible conclusion that we are far better off when relief is returned to local control. At least the home folks are acquainted with the deserving.

LOWER RAIL FARES

Railroad fares in the United States will be uniform at two cents a mile after June 2, according to a recent ruling by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The decision was reached following a two-year investigation, the majority of the Commission members contending that with attractive service and price, promoted by modern sales methods, the railroads should develop for themselves a travel volume as great as that which they formerly enjoyed.

We are inclined to this belief. For years the railroads have been committed to a program of legislative suppression of competition and appeals to public sympathy, rather than in the broad business enterprise of giving their patrons better travel comfort, plus faster schedules at lowered prices. Attempts have been made to preserve freight volume in a similar manner, both fallacious as constantly diminishing returns in freight and transportation revenues have shown.

There was a long period when the traveling public preferred the automobile, regardless of distance, due probably to the novelty of owning and operating one's own transportation system. With the novelty worn off there is no reason why they cannot be induced to use the railroads, especially for long trips, provided they can be shown that they can get better and quicker service at no great increase in cost.

BREAD AND BUTTER

Speaking before the New York Advertising Club a few days ago, Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald delivered an old-fashioned homily about the important part the dinner pail still plays in the economic life of the nation. Well-fed alarmists, he said, can point to attacks being made against constitutional government but what the workers of the nation want to know is, how secure are their jobs going to be in the future. Seems that it is difficult for the humble citizen to grasp the real meaning of a learned discussion on constitutional government, when at the same time he has a gnawing pain in his stomach. The Republican party, once hailed as the workingman's friend, will do well to heed the Governor's warning. Frank Fitzgerald has always known a working life. He is in sympathy with the man who labors. Being governor has not caused him to lose his perspective. He knows that a nation is happy and contented when its people are at work. Little else matters.

When the Home Fails

The following came from the lips of an ex-gambler as he discussed the drift of youth:

"The fault does not lie with the underworld. The underworld is a result. The fault lies with the homes .... with the home life of church members. There is where the recruits for the city hell-holes are prepared. During the 20 years I was in the game I found that about all the men and women who filled my houses and bet themselves into ruin were the product of the homes where card-playing was encournged. It is across the friendly poker game or in the bridge game that Satan puts his fiery brand on the young men and women of America. It is in the so-called Christian homes that the gambling fever begins. The underworld is not trying to drag innocents down. It does not have to. The homes are turning out more recruits than they can possibly handle. They cannot be chased back with an axe. They have been given their education by their parents. They have secured their worldly wisdom at the dances, card parties, and other social diversions which feature modern social life. There is nothing in the underworld that can furnish them any surprises, and they are more likely to start a redder one of their own."

Complications and Care of Measles

Measles is a dangerous and very contagious disease. Many people are inclined to think that it is nothing serious but it is very wide-spread causing 10,000 deaths each year among young children. Pneumonia frequently follows measles and even cases of tuberculosis date back to an earlier case of measles. Ear infections and mastoids requiring major surgical operations frequently follow measles and the poisons of the disease circulate in the blood and do special damage to the heart and the kidneys.

In a study of the fatality of measles, that is, the number who die as a result of having this disease, it will be seen that the death rate is highest in those who are one year of age, getting less with the passing of each year of age. The fatality is especially high among children from one to five years of age. It is high from five to ten years of age, less from ten to fifteen and almost negligible from fifteen and upward. The lesson to be learned from this is that the longer a child can be prevented from having measles, the better his chance of recovery. This shows that it is certainly not better to have measles early "to get it over with." Thus, the longer your baby is protected, the better it will be for him.

If you have a baby or very young child then your first consideration must be to keep him out of the house where measles exsists or is suspected. Prevent him from playing with a child, who, you think, may have the disease. During an outbreak of measles, keep him away from school where they are most likely to carry the infection.

The first signs of measles is sneezing, running of the nose and a slight cough. The eyes look red and watery and the light hurts them. It is during this early period that others are most liable to catch the disease. The one thing to remember is that if your child shows signs of measles, you must at once keep him away from other children.

As the organism that causes measles thrives in the nose, throat and larynx, only gauze or cotton should be used to clean the nose or mouth and then it should be burned at once. Bedclothes and patient's clothes should be boiled.

During the year 1935 we had 184 reported cases of measles in District Health Unit No. 3, comprising the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego. This number was in comparison to six cases reported in 1934; 112 in 1933; 282 in 1932; 122 in 1931 and 103 in 1930.

Most epidemics of measles occur in the spring or early summer months and visit a community at three-year intervals. As we have had 31 cases of measles during January of this year, it appears that we are going to have an epidemic this coming spring and early summer. It is not necessary for your child to have measles if you will keep your child away from those who have the disease. Children below school age should be most carefully protected from measles. This will save you much worry and trouble and may even save your child's life. Another way to prevent or lessen the severity of measles is to give those who have been exposed to the disease an injection of blood from an adult who has had measles, preferably one of the parents. All children three years of age or less and any susceptible child to whom an attack of measles would be an unusual hazard may well be protected by this measure. Ask your physician about this protection.

New Cantor Musical Due

Eddie Cantor in "Strike Me Pink," the pop-eyed comedian's sixth annual musical extravaganza for Samuel Goldwyn, begins a two day run at the Palace Theatre, Saturday, March 14.

This lavish million-and-a-half dollar production, featuring Ethel Merman, Sally Eilers, Parkyakarkus and William Frawley and a glorious new array of Goldwyn Girls, casts Eddie as a timid little college tailor whose secret passion for a glamorous night club singer, in the person of Miss Merman, moves him to take a correspondence course in personal magnetism, entitled "Man or Mouse, What Are YOU?"

Trevor Stars In Love Drama

Would it be love or revenge? Would she reveal the secret that would ruin the society that shunned her, or would she keep her silence for the sake of the man she adored?

That is the strange dilemma that Claire Trevor faces in her new Fox picture, "My Marriage," coming March 18-19 to the Palace Theatre.

Horton, Conklin In New Comedy

Edward Everett Horton and Peggy Conklin head the cast of "Her Master's Voice," coming March 18-19, to the Palace Theatre. This is Miss Conklin's second screen role.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Late Transfers Delay Car Owners

While many motor vehicle owners of Michigan wait until the last possible day before purchasing new license plates each year, still other thousands do not apply for their plates until immediately after the deadline has passed. The majority of the latter class are those who purchased used cars during the preceding license year, but who delayed, obviously by design, to record assigned titles with the secretary of state.

The motor-vehicle laws of Michigan provide that the purchaser of a used car shall, within 10 days following such transaction, file the assigned title with the Department of State, and shall transfer the license plates to himself as well. A fee of $1 is charged for each of these two transfers. Large numbers of people postpone filing their assigned titles until after the passage of the deadline for the use of the plates which accompanied the car, in the mistaken belief that there will be no collection of the $1 fee for transfer of plates no longer valid. The fee is collected before application for new license plates is accepted, however.

The result is that much time is lost to all concerned, and the purchase of license plates which might be completed in three minutes, sometimes requires 20 minutes or more. Out of the approximately 442,000 title transfers recorded in 1935, about 50,000 were not filed within the 10 day limit, but recently, out of 300 assigned titles chosen at random at Lansing, about 60 per cent of them were delinquent in this respect.

COOPERATION

Cooperation supplements political economy by organizing the distribution of wealth. It touches no man's fortune, it seeks no plunder, it causes no disturbance in society, it gives no trouble to statesmen, it enters into no secret associations! It contemplates no violence, it subverts no order, it envies no dignity, it asks no favour, it keeps no terms with the idle, and it will break no faith with the industrious; it means self-help, self-dependence, and such share of the common competence as labor, skill, earn or thought can win, and this it intends to have.—George Jacob Holyoake.

SEED AND FEED LOANS WILL BE OFFERED SOON

Farm Credit Administration Announces Plans for Farm Aid

Seed and feed loans for 1936 will be made available to farmers within the next ten days, Gov. W. I. Myers of the Farm Credit Administration, has announced.

Myers said the loans would be made through the same FCA channels as had been done in previous years, and that applications may be obtained from field supervisors or local emergency crop loan committees.

The loans will be limited to not more than $200 to any one farmer, and planters who are able to get credit from any other source, including Production Credit Associations, will not be eligible for the emergency loans, Myers explained.

The loans will bear interest at five and one-half per cent and will be secured by a first lien on all crops financed with proceeds of the emergency loan.

WASHINGTON'S NAME

The name of Washington is intimately blended with whatever blends most essentially to the prosperity, the liberty, the free institutions, and the renown of our country. That name was a power to rally a nation in an hour of thick thronging public disasters and calamities; that name shone amid the storm of war, a heacon light to guid and cheer the country's friends; it flamed, too, like a meteor to repel her foes. That name, in the days of peace, was a lodestone, attracting to itself a whole people's confidence, a whole people's love and the whole world's respect.—Daniel Webster.

"Our deceptions are always tolerated be those who are deceiving us.

FUTURE CITIZENS

The nation has just observed the 26th anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scout movement in America. More than a million Scouts, with alumni of six million, took part in an entire week's program of commemoration. The Boy Scout movement has come to be recognized as one of the most important influences combating the demoralizing and disintegrating forces operating in a time of confusion and reaction. To help a youth "to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight" is a golden service to him and to the community and nation he must help or hinder. Boys of today face temptations unheard of a generation ago. Modern society has tended to remove many of the restraints their elders knew when our population was more largely agrarian. That the youth of today have met these new problems with such signal success is in a large measure due to the Boy Scout movement. It is deserving of our earnest support.

WOMEN AND WEALTH

Few of us have little or any idea of the part women play in the economic life of the nation. To most of us it will come as a matter of surprise to learn that women own 65 per cent, or $15,000,000,000 of the country's savings deposits, 44 per cent of all public utility stocks, 48 per cent of all railroad securities, 10 per cent of all real estate, with a face value of more than a hundred billion dollars. Ownership of so much of the nation's wealth results naturally in the payment of huge taxes by women, an amount estimated at $2,165,000,000. The problems confroting women, therefore, are much greater than mere matters of home and family. We must recognize this, and we should provide for a broader education of our daughters along economic and financial lines. Command of so much wealth implies responsibilities for which women should be prepared. It is not enough that an heiress marry a spendthrift duke or count, but that she know something about the duty which ownership of wealth owes to society.

SELF-STARTERS

The parade of the self-starters is already under way. We can expect to find many of them seeking public preference before the September primaries arrive. No single office—high or low—will be immune from their clutching fingers. The first to seek a prominent place in the political picture is a Detroit attorney named Cudlip, who has announced his candidacy for United States senator in opposition to Senator James Couzens. When a man who is not known outside five voting precincts in Michigan, without a single particle of party service background, seeks an office of that importance it is not hard to guess the point from whence such a candidacy originates. Scattering opposition votes by cluttering the field with candidates is a throwback from ox-cart days and deceives nobody. The voters are going to be most careful whom they select for United States senator in 1936. Subtle attempts to befog the public mind will meet with emphatic protest. Michigan is on the way back to the old-fashioned type statesmanship of other days and will not be denied.

LIQUOR REVENUES

We must respect the differences of opinion existing over the repeal of prohibition in this country, but it cannot be denied that federal, state, and city governments are gaining a huge revenue from the sale of beer and liquor. Estimated tax collections from this source are $550,000,000 for 1935.

If this vast sum of money would be spent by drinkers for other purposes there might be justification for complaint against government revenue from such sales. But government is only taking for itself now what formerly went to bootleggers and racketeers, money that would again go to these shady individuals should prohibition once more become national law.

In addition, our various divisions of government are saving close to $50,000,000 a year for prohibition "enforcement" that never did enforce, and probably never could be made do so. We failed in one attempt to regulate appetites in this nation. So we are doing the next best thing—taxing appetite to prevent it going to extremes.—From the Magazine Grit.

SOMETHING WRONG

A Minneapolis weekly newspaper publisher was brutally murdered in the presence of his wife just as he was about to enter his home. It was gangland's answer to his threat of exposure of crime conditions in that city. Although the wife testified it was the man charged with the crime who leaned out of a car window to pour machine gun bullets into her husband's back the fellow went free through a cleverly constructed alibi which the police of Minneapolis helped him establish. Two Minneapolis editors have paid with their lives because they dared to take the lid off the worst cesspool in American crime records. We are wondering just how much longer Minnesota with its splendid citizenship is going to tolerate gangland rule in the Queen City of the Northland. We of Michigan are unable to understand why they have allowed the tradition of a people to be prostituted by an unholy alliance between gangsters and dishonest politicians.

POP CORN CHEESE EASY TO PREPARE

Eight Steps are Necessary to Finish Product, Says State College Staff

Michigan State College extension workers in dairy and home economies are cooperating in a project to enlarge the variety of foods for farm families.

Jewell M. Jensen, extension dairyman, and Helen Strow, extension nutrition specialist, are holding a series of demonstrations in eight Michigan counties to emphasize ways of utilizing the pop corn type of cottage cheese. Women leaders in each county will take the results back to home communities and neighbors.

"The purpose of our cottage cheese demonstrations is to provide better living for farm families, utilize more home produced food products and to enlarge the variety of food for farm families," Mr. Jensen says.

"In order to meet a growing demand for utilization of by-products on the farm, we have planned these cottage cheese demonstrations. The chief values found in cottage cheese are a concentration of the milk proteins which are excellent muscle builders and the milk minerals which are so indispensable to good health."

Demonstrations already have been scheduled in Emmet, Charlevoix, Muskegon, Ingham, Livingston, Saginaw, Washtenaw, and Lenawee counties.

Steps in the manufacture of the pop corn type of cottage cheese follow:

Step 1—For cottage cheese making, prepare a starter at least 24 hours before the skim milk is to be set. To make starter, set a mason jar full of sweet fresh milk, cooled to 72 degrees temperature, and hold at this temperature until sour. Skim off the cream. The remaining sour or curded skim milk is starter;

Step 2—Temper skim milk in a double boiler to 72-74 degrees Fahrenheit. Stir in one pint of good clean starter for each 2 gallons of skim milk. As high as a quart for each two gallons may be used safely and will bring quick results;

Step 3—Cut the curd into one-half inch cubes, using the back side of a long heavy knife or the prongs of a heavy fork;

Step 4—Heat the water slowly in the pan. It should take about 25-30 minutes to raise temperature from 72 to 115-120 degrees;

Step 5—Stir curd carefully during the first part of cooking period. Do no more at this time than pull the curd away from the side of the pan so that all of it cooks evenly;

Step 6—As the curd firms, more rapid agitation can be used, although the curd should not be beaten into fine bits. The temperature of the whey in the making of this type of cheese should not be raised above 120 degrees;

Step 7—When curd is of proper firmness, drain the whey, and wash curd twice with good cold water. Allow to drain in pan or draining rack until most of the free water has run off;

Step 8—Salt to taste. Add thin cream, folding the cream into the curd.

TWO ST. PATRICK'S AFFAIRS ARE ANNOUNCED

Two events in honor of St. Patrick's Day have been announced for the coming week. First is the popular St. Patrick's Day banquet, an affair sponsored annually at St. Mary's school hall on Sunday, March 15th, by the Altar Society; the second a dancing party to be given by the Legion on Tuesday evening, March 17, at The Argonne.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES
Charlevoix and Ironton

In our series on the Apostles' Creed we now enter upon one of the most interesting yet, I believe, one of the most misunderstood phases of Christian doctrine. It is pertaining to the teaching of the Second Coming of Jesus Christ. One writer more correctly refers to this subject as the "Future Comings of Christ." Many leave the subject alone because of the seeming uncertainty of the teachings. Many have become so enthusiastic that they have overstepped all bonds of reason and Scriptural teachings and set forth statements that are entirely contrary to the real meaning. Some in their enthusiasm have fixed the date, day and month, of this great event. The past is filled with such dates yet things are moving along about the same as usual. Why people persist in the presumption of knowing more about this event than Jesus Himself is beyond me. Jesus emphatically said in Matthew 24:36: "But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only." And in the Acts 1:7, "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power." Sunday morning we will take up this interesting subject; don't miss it.

CHURCH OF GOD
C. A. Stewart, D. D., Pastor

The church is not a social guilt, or a steepled club, but a body of saved people commissioned to preach the Gospel. That is what we are earnestly endeavoring to do. Our morning services are devoted to helping God's people, and the night service is evangelistic.

The sermon subject next Sunday morning will be: "The Blessings and Perils of Prosperity." Is any good coming out of this depression? Service at 11 o'clock.

Night service at 7:30. The sermon subject: "The Relation of Hard Hearts to Prosperity."

Sunday school at 10 o'clock a. m. Mrs. Arthur Guild, superintendent. If you are not in any Sunday school we welcome you.

Young people's meeting at 6:30. Miss Florence Palmer will lead. Topic: "Putting Christian Purpose Into Life." All young people invited.

Prayer and praise service every Wednesday night at 7:30.

On Sunday night, the 22nd, the Young People's Missionary Society will give a missionary play. This program will occupy n full hour.

LEGION ACTIVITIES
By F. V. Tyler

Leslie T. Shapton Post will go over the top this week in membership. Ninety-five cards for 1936 have already been filled out and enough more are in immediate prospect to throw the score up over the hundred mark. Who said getting the bonus would cause Legion membership to fall off? Probably some Liberty League prophet!

Next big event is the American Legion dance at The Argonne on "the 17th of Ireland" — that'll be next Tuesday evening. It will be good.

Sons of the American Legion are preparing to take over the bugle and drum corps and hope to be able to turn out on Memorial Day. We of the old guard wish them good luck and proffer our assistance. Faithful practice and good discipline will make the grade.

Last Thursday evening at East Jordan occurred the first of what promises to be a delightful series of get-together meetings for the Legionnaires and their families and the Auxiliaries and their families. Owing to a basketball tournament at Boyne City, the contingent from Ernest Peterson Post was not present.

These are tri-post affairs and will be held at East Jordan, American Legion hall, on the first Thursday evening of each month. A potluck supper will be served promptly at 6:30 p. m. and, in the interim, while the ladies are clearing away the dishes, a meeting of the Charlevoix County Veterans' Council will be held, then the dance. There will be no admission fee—simply a silver collection to pay the orchestra—give what you can. For the supper, Boyne City and Charlevoix members will bring sandwiches and cake and other comestibles that are served cold and can be easily carried, while the East Jordan ladies will provide the coffee and warm cooked food. No beer or other spirituous liquors will be available or will be permitted to be used at these meetings. Good order and decorum will be observed and enforced at all times.

CITIES FAVORED IN TAX BATTLE

It was further held by the judge in his opinion that "under the general tax law municipal property devoted to the operations of a utility is not subject to taxation."

"Unquestionably," Judge Carr said, "the policy of the state has been in part to refrain from imposing any burden of taxation on municipalities generally and also on property held in a proprietary capacity."

After explaining that one of the remedies provided for non-payment is seizure of the taxpayers' property under a warrant issued by the Board of Tax Administration and that he believed the intent of the Legislature "was not that municipalities should be subject to payment of the tax," Judge Carr said "it is unnecessary to consider the constitutional questions raised by the plaintiffs."

TRUCK RESTRICTIONS IMPOSED ON MARCH 12

Highway Dept. Puts Load Limits on Lower Peninsula Highways

The state highway department to-day ordered truck-loading restric-tions to be clamped down on all the trunkline highways of the lower p e n i n s u l a beginning at 6 n. m., March 12.

At the same time the department ordered the restrictions in effect on Upper Peninsula trunklines beginning at 6 a. m., Friday, March 13.

The order was, in effect, an exten-sion of the restricted area. Restric-tions first went into effect March 2 on lower peninsula roads as far north as M-21 extending east and west across the state. A later extention made the order apply as far north as M-20.

In general the restrictions call for a reduction in loads of 25 per cent on concrete base pavements and 35 per cent on gravel base roads. They are made imperative by frost action in the ground.

FARMERS, HERE'S GENEROUS OFFER

FREE BANQUET OFFERED ALL WHO WILL ACCEPT

Arlo Wickersham Proposes to Use Funds of Now Defunct Farm Bureau to Defray Expenses.

In response to the request of Arlo Wickersham, well know M a r i o n township farmer, the Courier very willingly is giving publicity to the fnet that Mr. Wickersham, now hold-ing the funds of the once active Farm Bureau, proposes to use the money to pay the expense of a free banquet for every farmer of the Charlevoix district who will accept his offer.

Mr. Wickersham's letter, which is self explnatory, follows:

The Charlevoix Courier,

Dear Editor:

About sixteen years ago I was secretary-treasurer of the local Farm Bureau. The local organization ceased to exsist nnd I was left "hold-ing the bag" (of money). I have waited since 1920 for an opportunity to spend this money in the proper way, but have been unable to do so.

Now therefore, I propose to en-gage the ladies of the Marion Center grange to serve a banquet dinner to each and every farmer in the vicin-ity of Chnrlevoix who will agree to come, and I will pay the expenses of this banquet out of this moth-eaten Farm Bureau money. I will also se-cure a couple of outside speakers and we will try and make a pleasing and profitable day of it.

All farmers who desire to attend should leave their name with Mr. Paddock at the Co-Ops. so that u plate at the table will be reserved for them. The meeting will proba-bly be some day during the week of March 30th.

Will you please, Mr. Editor, give us a write-up that will enable us to get rid of this money before the next depression.

Yours very truly,

Arlo Wickersham.

Well fellows, there's the dope. We're more than glad to do whatever we can to help and right now express our wish that the gathering will be one of the most pleasant and sucess-ful ever held in the Marion Center community.

CHARLEVOIX WINS REGIONAL HONORS

COPPED CLASS C BASKETBALL TITLE AT PETOSKEY TO ENTER STATE FINALS AT BIG RAPIDS, THURSDAY

Petoskey Tossers Defeated Alpena to Win Class B Crown—Onekema Staged Upset to Eliminate Pellston in Class D Finals—Charlevoix Paired With Edmore

Charlevoix's Red Rayders will rep-resent Northern Michigan in the Class C state basketball finals as the result of victories in regional competition at Petoskey.

The team will play Edmore at Big Rapids in the quarter-finals Thura-day night and, if victorious, will go to Grand Rapids for the semi-finals Friday.

The tournament favorite after winning the district championship at Boyne City, the Rayders ran true to form at the regional to become Coach Kipke's fourth aggregation to advance to the state finals. In placing among the six best class C schools in Michigan, the Rayders won the honor after a season of only mediocre success. While they con-sistenly revealed championship pos-sibilities, their play was spotty at times, and the fact that they won both the district nnd regional tour-naments was perhnps a little more than local fans had hoped for.

Win Over Northport.

In their first round game at the regionnl, Charlevoix eliminated Northport, the 1935 champions, by a 31-to 14 score. The team flashed an accurate, speedy attack which com-pletely hewildered the Northport team and made the victory an easy one. The fact that Northport scored but three field goals during the con-test attested the precision of Char-levoix's play.

Radle, forward, led Charlevoix's scoring with 14 points. Carey fol-lowed closely with 11. Coach Kipke used Scott, Shapton, Eccleston nnd Fairhanks in addition to the regular line-up.

Roger City Victory Close.

Charlevoix fought an up-hill battle to win over Rogers City in the finals Saturday night. After starting strong and emerging from the first quarter with a 9 to 5 advantnge, the Rayders were out-scored in the second nnd third period. They trailed 13 to 14 at the half and 16 to 19 at the third intermission. Opening the final per-iod Pearl sank two short shots to give Charlevoix the lead. Stafford tossed a long one to give Rogers n one-point margin. Carey followed with four goals, three of them fol-low-up shots from the foul line, to give Charlevoix a winning margin. Pearl closed the scoring with a gift shot. The score stood 29 to 22.

Carey was high point man for Charlevoix with 12. Pearl followed with 8, including four free throws.

Petoskey Class B Champs.

The powerful Petoskey team romped off in the regional class B title with victories over Manistee, Traverse City and Alpena. It was a hard schedule and the big Petoskey team came through like true cham-pions. They play Alma in the first round of the state finals at Big Rapids, Thursday night.

Onekema Class D Champs.

Providing the biggest upset of the tournament, Onekema knocked off the powerful Pellston quintet, last year's championships and runners-up in the state finals, by a 16 to 15 score. It was a hard-fought battle, the winners coming behind to win the Class D crown. Onekema meets Merrill in first round finals play at Big Rapids.

KIWANIS OBSERVED ITS CHARTER ANNIVERSARY

Fine Banquet and Program Tuesday Evening at St. Mary's Hall

The local Kiwanis Club observed the first anniversary of its "charter night" Tuesday evening with a very fine banquet served at St. Mary's hall.

It was ladies' night and also mem-bers of the Charlevoix Coast Guard unit were guests of honor.

Features arranged by the music and program committees were great-ly enjoyed. Mrs. A. J. Stelter at the piano, Mr. nnd Mrs. Robert Magor, cornet and piano, and vocal solos by Mrs. C. F. Kreighoff nnd Charles Humlin, provided appreciated enter-tainment. To this was added gen-eral singing throughout the serving of the menu.

Robert Bridge, president, intro-duced the toastmaster with some very clever stories and Robert F. Sloan presided throughout the remainder of the evening in a commendable manner.

Dr. F. F. McMillan gave a brief address on "The Kiwanis of Today," with a finely illustrated principle in-volved in the work of the Club. Dr. R. B. Armstrong spoke on "Kiwanis of the Future," stressing the versa-tility and variety of talent and op-portunity for real public service.

Rev. C. E. Pollock of Petoskey, gave the more formal address of the evening. He stressed the fact that heroism is still with us in this sup-posedly degenernte age, pointed out the bravery and sacrifice of the Coast Guard and similar workers of today, described the fearlessness and cour-age of many in the youth group. His address was especinlly appropriate to the occasion and was very much en-joyed.

The hall had been beautifully decorated by the women of the church and they served an excellent banquet.

GUARDSMEN CITED FOR RESCUE WORK

COAST GUARD HEADQUARTERS LAUDED EFFORTS.

Kelderhouse, Duhm and Wood Named for Courage—Recommend Medal for Cunningham.

The heroic efforts of Charlevoix Coast Guardsmen to rescue five fish-ermen adrift in Lake Michigan last month brought commendation from Coast Guard headquarters for "the "highest type of courage."

Capt. L. C. Covell, acting com-mandant of the Coast Guard, also said the committee on the award of life-saving medals would be asked to award a medal posthumously to Boatswain's Mate Earl Cunningham, who lost his life in the rescue expe-dition.

With Cunningham died Clauda Beardsley, one of the fishermen. An-other fisherman, Clayton Brown, walked and crawled over eight miles of ice to shore.

Members of the Coast Guard crew named in the commendation in-clude Boatswain's Mate George Kelderhouse, Machinist's Mate Quen-tin R. Duhm and Surfman William P. Woods.

The rescue work started on tha afternoon of Feb. 8, when five fish-ermen were trapped on an ice field that broke from shore ice during a blizzard. Duhm volunteered to go to their rescue alone in a skiff. He was able to take off only three of the men.

Cunningham volunteered to at-tempt the rescue of the two others, Beardsley and his son-in-law, Brown. Cunningham got them into a surf boat but heavy seas, the snow storm and poor visibility frustrated his efforts to return to shore.

They drifted all of that night and the next day. Cunningham and Beardsley died of exposure the fol-lowing night. It was not until the afternoon of Feb. 10 that Brown staggered ashore, his feet frozen. He still is in the Charlevoix hospital, and doctors believe amputation may not be necessary.

Kelderhouse, Woods and Duhm launched a dingy the night of Feb. 9, but high seas drove them back. Woods suffered frozen feet. On the second day a motor lifeboat was launched for a fruitless search. On the fourth day, the bodies were sighted from an airplane chartered by the Coast Guard.

NEW PLANE ON CHAR-LEVOIX-BEAVERS RUN

Service Resumed Last Friday With Ship Purchased by Islanders

Airplane service for passengers and mail between Charlevoix and Beaver Island was renewed last Fri-day and is now on regular schedule.

Replacing the ship previously on the route, the Beaver Island Trans-portation Co. has purchased a 6-pas-senger Stinson cabin plane at Jack-son, Pilot George Austgen bringing it here Friday. It will be used until the opening of navigation und possi-bly later.

While plans have not been com-pleted, there is a possibility of the plane being kept here next summer for taxi service. It will also be used winters during the remaining period of the three-year mail contract. Fur-ther plans for transportation service during the open navigation season are now being made.

CORRESPONDENCE

CENTRAL LAKE.

Allen Aardema dropped a cake of ice on his foot last week, laming him quite badly.

Mrs. Fred Boss returns from the Charlevoix Hospital this week. The new baby is getting along fine.

Vet Shooks' people were callers on relatives at Ellsworth the first of the week. The snow plow has cleaned out the road so that they can get out again.

Mr. Coeling of Ellsworth, called at the Wynsma and A Snitzler homes last week. He purchased a cow of the latter, leaving for Detroit shortly afterward with a load of cattle.

Wilmer and Ivan Morse were business callers at Traverse City last Saturday. They say the roads on the pavement are badly "humped up." The cold weather has bulged them badly.

Mrs. Thelma Kirby Bradford called at the store at Bay View last week. She at one time acted as clerk in the store for O. R. Morse. She and family are now residing in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis and children were callers Sunday at the Harvey Brouwer home at Eastport. Harvey reports that he believes he is now on the road to recovery from his long illness.

Miss Alice Coleman, who has left high school here on account of ill health, was over a while last week to attend a school play. Her sister, Alta Coleman, is still attending school here from Cresswell.

There are several cases of scarlet fever in Central Lake, also north and south of town. Don Buhland's family are ill with the disease, and the snowplow had to make a road to their place south of town, Saturday, so that a physician could get there.

O. R. Morse went out for a ride to Atwood last Saturday forenoon. G. A. Morse writes from Clearwater, Fla., that he will start for home next week, March 24th. He intends to stop at Warren, Ohio, on his way home, visiting relatives and selling seeds.

The snow plow went through again Monday morning on the Bay View-North Holland road. It is hoped this will be the last for this year. They plowed the road from the North Holland church to the cemetery north of the church last Saturday, to make way for the Bernie DeYoung funeral.

Dr. Palmer, the new physician in town, has got nicely located and started practice. The Duffies sent word that they had arrived in Nashville, Tennessee, where the Dr. is now practising at a hospital. The new doctor, as was the former, is an Adventist, and his family assists in the Adventist church here.

William Byers appeared to be living up to his reputation as an auctioneer here. At the VanderArk sale Wednesday, things went at a good price. Cows went as high as $74. Junk and everything appeared to be hastily purchased at a good price. A large crowd attended. The Ellsworth-Central Lake road being poor, many detoured around on the North Holland and Bay View road.

The death of Bernie DeYoung at Ellsworth, Saturday morning, came as a great shock to many. He had been ill in bed but since Wednesday. Cause of death was pneumonia. He died at his boarding house, the Johnson home in Ellsworth, and he was taken to his home near the North Holland church. The funeral was held from the church Tuesday afternoon. Mr. DeYoung was but thirty-two years of age and single. He leaves to mourn his loss, three sisters, two brothers and a father and mother, besides many relatives and friends. Bernie DeYoung was a true Christian young man, member of the Dutch Reformed church. Many will mourn his passing.

Republican township caucus was held in the town hall here at two o'clock Saturday afternoon. About 34 people were present. Chairman Arthur Knowles called the meeting to order, and the following officers were nominated for the township election, April 6th: Supervisor, Heuston Ruggles; clerk, (present incumbent) Moses King; treasurer, (present office holder) Mrs. Ona Byers VandenBerg; justice, Bert Clow; booard of review, Roy Rushton. Next year's chairman, Arthur Knowles. Meeting was in session 30 minutes and everything was harmonious. Your correspondent attended and voted at this caucus, the first Republican caucus he has ever attended, and, if in good health, intends to vote everything straight Republican from township to nation, for the first time ever. Hope all good Democrats and Republicans will do the same this year.

Saint Patrick's Play at St. James

A very delightful 3-act Irish play, "The Lucky Emerald," was presented in the Holy Cross auditorium on Sunday, March 15th, by the St. James high school. The large audience was treated to a good two hours and a half of splendid entertainment. The entire cast acted their parts to perfection, and the performance was staged in a manner that suggested long and careful study.

The stage decorations which consisted of shamrocks, large and small, and other St. Patrick novelties, bespeak the artistic ideas of the high school boys.

Between the acts the audience was pleasantly entertained with several Irish songs, sung by all the members of the high school.

The cast of characters were:

Brian, Lord of Derryveragh, Edward Gallagher; Maurya, His Sister, Anna Martin; Cathleen, his American granddaughter, Elvira Gillespie; Sheila, a wanderer, Winifred Lafreniere; Bridget, the old nurse, Ellen Gallagher; Nora, a maid, Dorothy Malloy; Dierdre, a friend, Betty O'Donnell; Fergus, suitor to Maurya, Victor Gallagher; Larry O'Leary, heir to O'Leary estate, Jack McDonald; Mike Kelly, from O'Leary estate, Joseph Lafreniere.

MICHIGAN'S BEES NEED THREE AIDS

Specialist Advises Beekeepers Watch Hives, Build Windbreaks

Two hundred thousand colonies of bees in Michigan are about ready to re-enter the honey business for 1936, which leads wise beekeepers to make their plans now along three lines of action, it is pointed out by Prof. R. H. Kelty, extension specialist in apiculture for Michigan State College at East Lansing.

To protect their investment of approximately twenty million dollars, Professor Kelty suggests that bee men watch hives closely and plug up the openings of a hive as soon as it is proved beyond doubt that a colony has died, plan and build wind protcetion in spring to aid bees in their flights, and place orders now for package bees that will be needed April 20 to May 1 for strengthening colonies, or for replacements or additions to the number of colonies.

Motorists Find Lost Titles

Some 3,000 motorists in Michigan who thought they had lost the titles to their cars, or who didn't think anything at all about titles until they needed them, have "found" them in the past two months.

The number of titles in the "lost title" files of the Department of State, has been reduced from about 6,000 to near 3,000 since the first of the year. The cause for the reduction is that many motorists, unable to locate their titles in order to buy 1936 plates, have appealed to the department, only to discover the missing titles held there for want of information as to their owners' address.

Owners of about 75 titles are revealing themselves daily, this is about 50 per cent greater than the daily crop of "lost" titles. These new titles are being returned daily, undeliverable by postal authorities, because of incorrect addresses filed with the state by car purchasers.

Failure to notify postmasters of changed addresses, and carelessness when originally recording addresses with the Department of State, are the two principal causes for "lost" titles.

Confession may be good for the soul, but often it nearly wrecks an average household.

"If—what?" Brenda said, pausing in the always fascinating business of pulling on Anthony's hat and coat. "I'm married! I know it all! If—what?"

"If—nothing!" Tony said over her shoulder, laughing.

"You finished your bottle, and you were a good, good boy," Brenda said in an undertone to the baby. "Don't pull on Mother's hair; no, no, baby."

Tony helped them both get away, went down to the office in a dream. Anything might happen now; any moment might be her moment. She had only to go her way quietly and to wait.

The city room was languid on Christmas Day. Downtown streets were deserted, streams of churchgoers gathered wherever there was a church door, coming out after the noonday services. She had gone herself with Aunt Meg to church this morning; she had prayed, hardly knowing what she hoped or feared. It was too soon to think of hopes or fears.

Pictures of the scenes that were taking place in the far-away French seaside town drifted through her mind. Ruth lying still, her eyes closed, her waxen square little hands—Tony could see them in her mind, as she had so often seen them!—resting with locked fingers over her quiet heart. White satin and lace, and the scent of flowers—violets and lilies of the valley.

She imagined Larry, tall and grown and frowning and worried, seeing to all the details, talking things over with Caroline. And all the time the old mother would be placid and comfortable in her sunshiny room upstairs, looking wonderingly at the faces of her nurses; smiling eagerly when they brought her her lunch tray and began to feed her.

Mrs. Patterson had had a slight stroke. Tony wrinkled her brows trying to remember how long ago. They had gone to China, and after leisurely visits to Hongkong, Kobe, Pekin, had gone on through the Suez canal to Marseilles. That had been late summer time. It was more than a year ago. Then in October, idling at Nice, Larry had been seriously ill, and afterward Mrs. Patterson had been stricken down.

Immediately Ruth, always the devoted daughter, had rented a villa, had established the whole family comfortably within. Her mother had been allotted two great sunshiny rooms with a water view; two good nurses had been found somehow, an American girl and a German woman, and presently they had all settled down to the new environment and the new way of life.

Larry was writing letters for some syndicate; was writing a book. He had been badly pulled down by his illness; it had been some low troublesome form of typhoid, and it had left him weak and lazy. Caroline wrote Joe amusing accounts of his willingness to be managed, to be idle.

Tony had never seen Nice; she visualized it as best she could. A scimitar-sweep of Mediterranean shore; big hotels close to the water, villas set up on the steep bare hills. Ruth's villa was the "Casa Santa Teresa"; it had once belonged to the duke of—something. Abruzzi—di Borgia?—one of those familiar Italian names.

Now they would give up the villa—or could they, with Ruth's old mother installed there, perhaps not well enough to move? Tony would have a letter some day; any day, there was no hurry, and then she would know all about everything.

Meanwhile, there was the office. There were dull days and exciting days; there was always much gossip and rumor to consider, and the Fitch-Muzzy affair to watch. Mae Ethyl was wearing white furs now, and had moved from the family domicile in Ingleside Terrace to a small apartment downtown. "It seemed better for me to be nearer my work," said Mae Ethyl. Flo Danielson was gone, and the Olsens, of the big eastern newspaper chain, had an interest in the paper; Tony knew Larry was holding but a passive position among the stockholders; now and then they wired him for an option, that was all.

For the rest, there was the home apartment, comfortable enough with its books and lamps, with Asterbel doing almost all the work nowadays, and there were Bruce's interests to follow; Bruce was a sophomore at the state university and came home only for week-ends. There were Aunt Meg, affectionate and amusing and loyal, and occasional encounters with magnificent Aunt Sally, and happy visits with Brenda. Brenda's second boy, George Alvin Atwater, junior, was only a few weeks older than Cliff's baby daughter; Cliff and Mary Rose came down to Pacific Grove for Cliff's vacation, and the sisters and brother and the small cousins had happy hours together. Alvin had been put on the hospital staff and was building up a good practice; Brenda was assisted at home by a dark-faced, heavy little Mexican maid named Rita, who chopped up and stewed everything upon which she could lay her hands, whether it were the carefully prepared salad or the strawberries Tony brought down for a special treat. Fortune had smiled at last on the Tafts.

CHAPTER XXIV

Tony's happiest times in this strange interval were spent with Joe, in his isolated farm house on the cliffs. From this base he made many of his investigations among the pools and rocks of the shore, but he had had time to beautify the place too, and most of the changes were made at Tony's suggestion.

Together they had designed the great fireplace at the end of the sitting room, and together had shared the first successful fire therein. A gracious wide terrace, flagged in terracotta red, had been opened at the south side of the house; the sitting room and dining room lost something of their boxlike stiffness through the line of French floor windows, and the gay striped awning over the terrace sent a mellow light through them both.

Tony knew the little domain thoroughly now. She knew where the salt box stood in the kitchen, and how quickest to set the table with the blue cups and dragon plates that had come from San Francisco's chinatown. She and Joe had many busy hours together. After Ruth's death it was the only place she wanted to go.

She knew what he felt for her, but he never made her uncomfortably conscious of it. They were merely the best of companions, during these days. Joe always had another house guest or two; a fellow scientist, spectacled and garrulous; a musical couple who kept the old piano going; a pair of wandering boys who were working their way around the world during the holidays.

To entertain all of these Tony was at her happiest and brightest. She and Joe planned meals, fussed together in the kitchen, compounded pot roasts and salads. Her beauty was in its glory; she was twenty-seven, now; a newspaper woman of some years' standing; confident and superb in her role of friend and companion to an interesting man.

In her heart she felt that the last touch of romance was added to the situation after Ruth's death. Somewhere in the world was the brilliant man this brilliant and lovely woman loved. He was coming for her; she would presently have her marvelous hour. Under the surface of the spring Sundays when she and Joe—and sometimes Brenda and Alvin and the boys, and sometimes Cliff and Mary Rose—were moving through the familiar hours, the thrilling consciousness that Larry was somewhere in the world, alive, thinking of her flowed like a sibling current, sounded like a vibrant organ tone.

It had become almost routine for her to go to Brenda on Saturday. Sometimes Aunt Meg went too, for Brenda was in more spacious quarters. Sometimes Aunt Meg stayed with Bruce or went to Aunt Sally; often one of the newspaper men was going down that way, and Tony had a lift.

She would arrive in her city clothes at about four, get into comfortable cottons, sit with Brenda in the sunny back yard, with Anthony tottering about on the new grass, and Georgie asleep in his shabby coach beside them.

At noon Sundays Joe's car always twinkled up; sometimes they were all invited to lunch; usually he and Tony went off contentedly together. "The marriedest people that ever weren't married!" Brenda commented, in irritation. "What she's thinking of, not to take Joe!"

Before Ruth's death, when she had put this question directly to Tony, Tony had answered, "I don't know, Bendy. I'm crazy, I guess. Joe's ten thousand times too good for me or any woman. He hasn't a fault, that I can see. He's always good-natured, always intelligent, always cheerful and hospitable and affectionate and interested."

After Ruth's death she no longer said this, or said much at all. There was a far-away light in her eyes; she went into moments of dreaming, giving no explanation for her abstraction, perhaps unconscious of it. Joe was only one detail in the vague, thrilling background of the thoughts that glowed and shone like hidden treasure in her soul.

How would Larry return to her? Where would she first see him, the tall figure with the little stoop to the squared shoulders, the brown face with its high-bridged nose and glasses over keen gray eyes? Would he telephone very casually: "Tony? This is Larry. I got in this morning. Will you come to lunch with me at Jules'?"

Or would he be standing by her desk in the city office some afternoon? "Come and have dinner with me, Tony. I've got to see Arnoldson now; I'll be upstairs until six. I'll get you then."

And then after that, what? But Tony's breath would fail her as she thought of the details; the happy crowding details that included wedding plans and home-finding, that included new frocks and the ordering of the new cards of Mrs. Lawrence Hillyard Bellamy, that included trips in Larry's car—the historic car of their two roadside accidents—trips to the beach for lunch, and down to Monterey to see Bendy, and over to Carmel to cook dinner for Joe.

He wouldn't make much fuss about it all; Larry never did. There would be no open exultation, no compliments or protestations. But she would have a sense of his complete possession, his quiet domination of her and everything that touched her. Just the way Larry watched one—just the half smile in his quizzical eyes—was enough to give any woman a feeling of being completely, adequately adored.

"Have you heard anything from Larry?" Joe asked one Sunday, when he and she happened to be alone, and over the young birches and poplars, and lashing against a lashing sea. Everything out of doors was splashing and dripping, and smoking with blown mist. Joe had called for Tony at eleven, and torn her away from a happy bathing scene in Brenda's nursery. He had explained that friends were coming down from town, and that he must have a special lunch. These were important persons; Professor Unger was—as Tony explained it to Brenda—"the most distinguished something of something at Johns Hopkins," and Tony must come over to make the salad and amuse the company on this rainy day.

The babies being comfortably asleep by this time, and Brenda not too protestant, Tony had bundled herself up for the ten-mile drive, and had thrown herself wholeheartedly, upon arriving, into preparations for Joe's guests. He and she had built up the fire, had swept and straightened, had fried the fat little chickens and rubbed garlic in the salad bowl of gay painted Russian wood. And then the telephone had brought the expected message: the Unger party would not come down in this pouring rain, but if it cleared they would arrive immediately after lunch.

"And clear it will," said Tony. "This is a clearing shower. Look. It's hail! So we'll simply hold this meal over until night. The chicken will be even better, the asparagus we haven't done, the rolls I'll put right in the icebox and bake them tonight!"

Rain beating furiously down outside its windows, the kitchen seemed comfortably warm and bright on the wild spring morning. Tony had put her gown and her velvet slippers into Joe's spare room; she wore old white shoes and a crisp checked gray apron with a frivolous ruffle of white about the throat that made her blue eyes and dark hair look babyish. Her cheeks were flushed with heat, laughter, excitement; it was always like playing house at Joe's, and it made her feel like a happy little girl again.

"What a nice little wife you would make for me, Tony," Joe had said.

"And what a heaven this place would be for me," the girl had answered, serious for the moment. "There's no place in the world to me like this one. When you bring me here to our garden, and our Scotty and our sea, some sort of mood comes over me—simple and happy and—and good, Joe. You're so darned good, Joe. Did you ever do anything rotten or mean or small in your whole life?"

"I've done plenty, my girl."

"I imagine. It's so extraordinary, being twenty-eight, and loving you so—"

ACTION WINS PRAISE

Determination of the Michigan Liquor Control Commission to elimlnate mnny licensed beer and liquor esteblishments now concentrated near large industrial plants ln several cities has brought volumes of praise from many quarters. Commendation has come to the liquor control board from both inside and outside the state. In a recent letter, F. D. L. Squires, research secretary of the American Business Men's Research Foundation of Chicago, commenting upon news dispatches to the effect that the Liquor Commission planned to reduce the number of licensed beer nnd liquor vendors near these industrial plants, snys:

"The conduct of your Commission in fearlessly and constructively grappling with the many difficult phases of the liquor problem in recent months, has received wide commendation and we should be glad to have an exact statement of the facts in this particular regard, which appears to warrant addititional commendation."

The Foundation, headed by Frank E. Gannett, New York publisher, includes on its board of directors, Hon. John W. Blodgett, Grand Rapids lumberman; Louis J. Tabor, of Ohio, president of the National Grange and Clifford V. Gregory, editor of the Prairie Farmer; U. S. Senator Arthur Capper, Kansas publisher; S. S. McClure, New York publisher; Zona Gale, Wisconsin author and Amos Alonzo Stagg, of California, famous former football coach at the University of Chicago are among the members of the advisory council.

The Michigan Liquor Commission recently definitely announced a policy of reduction in the number of retail licenses to be issued this year and has made it plain that only npplicants of desirable and unquestioned character will be approved for licenses May 1.

Members of the commission have declared in no uncertain manner that the state is not interested in collecting increased profits from the liquor business but is concerned only in insisting that the sale of liquor in Michigan as decreed by the voters of the state, shall be in the hands of persons who can be depended upon to keep it clean and observe the law. According to chairman John S. McDonald, many of the "back road" out of the way beer taverns which have been under supicion as undesirable trysting places for young people will also be swept out of business before the 1936 pruning is finished.

BELIEF IN SIGNS.

There is one sign appearing more frequently along the highway than all the others combined. You can pin your faith in this sign without fear of being classed as superstitious. It bear the single word, "STOP." These signs have been placed on our highways because a study of traffic conditions makes each one necessary exactly where it is located. It is not an invitation or a warning. It is a command. And no motor car driver has any right to excerise the right of private judgment by disobeying it. He endangers his own life, and the lives and property of others, if he ignores the warning. Only a policeman stationed beside it could compel rigid enforcement of every "Stop" sign. It ought not to be necessary, even were it possible. The signs are erected for our protection, as well as that of others. Obedience to their command should be our cheerful contribution toward public safety. Stop when it says "STOP."

WHAT IT MEANS

We heartily sympathize with the man or woman of advancing years who dislikes the thought of becoming a burden on the next generation. It is not strange that these people should listen hopefully to those who promise to enable the aged to provide for themselves, and at the same time render some nssistance to the children and grandchildren who are now supporting them.

However, only a moment's thought should remind them that the creation of a government pension by taxation means that the children will still be paying for the eate of the parents. And when the payment is made by taxation an army of tax collectors and tax distributors must be supported ln addition to the intended beneficiaries.

Moreover, while grandma and grandpa would not think of driving their loved ones to poverty and want so as to secure an income of $200 each for themselves, when the government steps in and collects the money it will have no such compunction. Even if grandma and grandpa were to spend every dollar of pension on the children the total income of the family would be less than it is today because of the billions that would be paid out to tax collectors and inspectors.

It would be a fine thing if our old people could be made to feel they were no longer a burden to their children. But if that feeling is not based on fact and if by the Townsend Plan the actual burden they impose will be even greater than now even though indirect, we wonder if the false feeling of independence will be truly worth the price.

THE DANGER

The administration hull-whip is still being swung over the hend of a subservient Congress. In record time following the Supreme Court's AAA decision new farm relief disguised ns a soil conservation measure was ready for the President's signature. We fail to find reason for such haste, unless for the purpose of getting Congress out of the Washington trenches long enough in ndvance of n national election for the people to forget its subserviency. The new farm relief program gives over the spending of a half billion dollars to the secretary of agriculture almost without restriction. This vast sum will be available in time to nllow thousands of paid government workers to invade every agricultural community of the nation to influence farm votes. We wonder if such a deliberate attempt to buy the farmers of America will be crowned with success next November? We are aware it is a great temptation for distressed agriculture to seek continuation of farm relief measures, but some day government spending will come to an end, and with it the ghastly realization that what the farmers of this day and generation hailed as the salvation of agriculture, was in reality the beginning of farm peonage in America.

FOR FREE SPEECH

The bill introduced by Senator Arthur C. Capper, of Kansas, designed to protect reporters from being forced to disclose their news sources or go to jail, will no doubt have plenty of support on the Republican side of the Senate, especially from Senator Vandenburg, of Michigan (former newspnperman,) but what will be the attitude of the majority, Democratic side in relation to it?

As things stand, the newspaperman pledged to protect the source of valuable information, can be haled before a court and considered in contempt. More reporters hnve gone to prison rather than betray a confidence than one likes to think about and the demand for putting such confidence in the privileged class is not unreasonable.

Pushed to its extreme, this power to imprison reporters and editors for contempt is a direct menace to free speech. This, however, does not count for much in the case of arrogant or self-conscious judges, urged on by prosecuting officers who think they may find in the reporter's confidential information some short cut to the discovery of criminals.

Whether Senator Capper's bill gets administration support or not, it is strongly founded in constitutional grounds, deals with one of the most precious rights of a free democracy and ought to pass.—Rutland (Vt.) Hearld.

VALUE OF KINDNESS

I think life would be easier if more of us liked people. All kinds of people, under all kinds of conditions and handicaps. I think our heaviest burdens would be lighter, and our important problems less worrisome, if we didn't have to carry so many little loads of thoughtlessness, and hnve our minds and hearts troubled by so many trifling rubs. It's really quite easy to write a kind letter. It's easier still to say a kind word. Few of the things we have the opportunity of doing for other people really involve nny very painful self-sacrifice. And the things of this sort we don't do sterilize our own souls, and harden our own paths. More than anything else in our journey through life, they rate us as first class, second class, or steerage. —Channing Pollock.

INVISIBLE TAXATION

Little does the average citizen realize the extent to which he is forced to contribute to the cost of government through invisible taxation. In late years there has been a growing trend toward indirect or invisible taxes, and away from direct taxation. In 1936 figures show that only 38 per cent of federal income came from direct taxation, while 62 per cent came from taxes hidden in the sale price of gasoline, amusement tickets, eigarets, telephone and telegraph tolls, food, clothing, and the hundred and one other little ways that taxes are collected without the people being aware of it. Indirect taxes work a hardship on a large class of citizens because they are levied and collected without any regard for ability to pay, thus weighing unfairly on the low-income groups. Danger lurks in such a system. It is a bid for still greater extravagance in government spending. Because these taxes cannot be specifically pointed out it is difficult to arouse sufficient sentiment against them to act as a protection to the public purse. Only when Congressional greed becomes prohibitive can the people look for relief.

DRIVING FOR SAFETY

How often you have heard it said, "it is the long, steady pull that gets results." When everybody is doing the same thing in harmony, best results are obtained. That applies to safe and sane driving, each motorist seeking to conform to the rules of the road, adjusting himself to constant changes in driving conditions. The careful driver is never an eccentric driver. There is no place for the eccentric in traffic. The highway is no place for the speed maniac, the slow poke, or the road hog. Every driver should drive in the same careful manner as do the majority of other drivers. About 15 per cent of all drivers do not do this. This minority group is responsible for nearly all serious traffic accidents. Drive with moderation, be courteous, avoid taking unnecessary risks, be a careful driver at all times.

TEMPERANCE EDUCATION.

The long talked about course of temperance education in the public schools is about to become a reality, according to Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction. By May 1 a suggested course of study will be in the hands of 30,000 Michigan educators with instructions to see that the study of temperance becomes a part of the regular curriculum. The old "fright" method of instilling fear in the minds of scholars will be replaced by a course of study showing the evils of intemperance and allowing the student to decide for himself whether he will drink. The course has been in the process of preparation for several months and represents the best thought of both "wets" and "drys" on the subject.

TIBBITS REFUTES STATEMENT ON LIQUOR REQUEST

Rep. Douglas D. Tibbits of Boyne City, haa taken exception to a United Press dispatch published in last week's issue of the Courier, stating he had requested the Liquor Control Commission to extend the 1 o'clock closing hour of liquor establishments in Boyne City during the smelt run.

Mr. Tibbits states the information was in error, inasmuch as he had only asked that restaurants be allowed to remain open to serve meals after 1 a. m.

Our apologies to Rep. Tibbits.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Pneumonia as a Cause of Death Among Infants

Of the babies who lived beyond the age of one month in District Health Unit No. 3, comprising the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego, but did not live to be one year of age, we find that over 40% of these deaths were due to pneumonia in 1935. Pneumonia is a communicable disease and often follows a cold or some other communicable disease. Babies and children as well as others are likely to catch pneumonia and should be protected from every other person in the household, who is infected with a cold or other disease. Pneumonia is caused by a germ called the Pneumococcus and it spreads chiefly through secretions from the mouth and nose. As a forerunner of Pneumonia the cold is the chief offender.

There seems to be two kinds of cold: The kind you catch and the kind that catches you. The cold you catch you get from someone who has a cold and who sneezes or splutters in your face. Drinking from a cup, wet with saliva will do the trick. Kissing is equally sure. Colds that catch you seem to be caused by germs already in your throat, ordinarily harmless but ready to go to work once resistance is broken down. Sudden chilling, overwork, excesses of any kind, including eating, will undermine bodily resistance.

Preventing a cold in a baby is much better than treating a cold and to accomplish this with the infant keep him away from persons with a cold. No one should lean or talk over a baby or breathe in his face since breath carring a fine spray may be loaded with germs. Some persons, although they apparently do not have a cold themselves, are carrying germs in the nose or throat which may produce a cold or pneumonia in the baby. Avoid overheating the rooms in which a baby lives. Keep the air fresh by leaving the window open a little way. Do not overheat the baby by wrapping him up too warmly when he goes out. If he perspires too freely outdoors, he may be chilled when he comes indoors and has his wraps removed. Never take a baby into a crowded place since someone in the crowd may have a cold and the baby is likely to catch it. Avoid carelessly washed drinking and eating utensils. Wash your hands before feeding the baby. See that he wears clothing suitable to the season and is kept dry.

If the baby, afflicted with cold, is cared for in the home the doctor's instructions should be carefully followed out as to both nursing and the disposal of nose and throat discharges. No drugs or cough medicines should be given without the doctor's orders. A cold is serious in a premature baby because it is likely to develope into pneumonia which may prove fatal.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Matter" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 22.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Psalms 33:6, 9): "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth. For He spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 263): "The fading forms of matter, the mortal body and material earth, are the fleeting concepts of the human mind. They have their day before the permanent facts and their perfection in Spirit appear."

How Many Friends Have You?

IT HAS been said that the number of friends you have depends almost wholly upon you; for friendship is like many other precious possessions in that it does not thrive on neglect.

Most expressions of friendship, in this modern age, involve the use of the telephone. Direct, personal, inexpensive, it has come to be the recognized means of arranging nearly all informal social gatherings.

It has greatly simplified the rôle of the hostess, relieving her of bothersome complications once inseparable from entertaining. By telephone the woman of today can obtain acceptances or regrets without delay; she can make a last-minute addition to her guests, can quickly summon a fourth for bridge.

Modern telephone service is a special boon to those who have been parted by distance. It gives them, despite their separation, the opportunity for "voice reunions" — for a kind of personal contact which only the telephone can provide. Over it they can send greetings of the season, condolences, congratulations — all the various remembrances that arise from genuine friendship — and prove that absence need not necessarily mean forgetfulness.

Quick, dependable, the telephone service provided by this Company has won a definite part in the social life of the people of Michigan, and daily fulfills an important function in the many occasions which both promote and preserve the treasure of friendship.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Hotel Men Give Potato Suggestions.

Sixty hotel managers in Michigan and nearby states have written their candid opinion of the Michigan potato with comments that have value for each of the farmers in the state producing the annual crop of 20 to 25 million bushels.

Medium to large potatoes from 6 to 24 ounces attract hotel managers. Other preferences by the majority of the hotel managers are for tubers oblong to round in shape, white or yellowish skin color, cooking white and remaining white after cooking and dry and white in texture after cooking or baking.

Other comments obtained in the survey by H. C. Moore, Professor in Farm Chops and R. R. Proulx, professor of Hotel Administration at Michigan State College were "use better seed," "handle more carefully after digging," "produce a good potato," "keep the money at home," "plant early enough to ripen before fall" and "advertising is a large factor in selling potatoes."

Some farmers obtain as high as 75 per cent in grading for market standard U. S. Fancy Grade, yet the usual commercial production is far below that in the state, leading at times to careless grading that falls to attract the critical eye of the purchaser. 36 out of the 39 Michigan hotel managers answering the questionaire purchase potatoes on grade. The majority report that they pay considerable attention to variety and what state they are grown in. It would seem that Michigan potato growers could produce a type of potatoes that are desirable from the hotel viewpoint.

Fifty-Four Farm Account Books Being Checked in This Week.

Fifty-four farmers who have been keeping farm account records during 1936 have been scheduled to meet representatives of the Farm Management Department of the Michigan State College to have their books closed up. Thursday, March 19, eighteen appointments have been made at the Charlevoix court house, a similar group will meet at East Jordan on the 20th, and the last group of 18 in Boyne City on the 21st.

Approximately one hour and a half is spent with each co-operator in checking over the inventory, making corrections, and in some cases additional entries. After the book is checked in, it is then sent to the Farm Management department, where a very comprehensive and complete summary of the farm operations is prepared.

This record is one that presents a very fine analysis of all transactions that take place on a farm. Many Co-operators now say that wouldn't farm without having this type of record. The changes in inventories are carefully noted as they reflect progress on the farm. When the summary is prepared, it shows the labor and management wage earned by the operator for the year.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

It is news that meat prices are lower than they have been in a year. Best values are to be found in beef and veal with lamb in third place.

Egg prices are now lower than they were last year at this time and can be used freely for both eating and cooking. Butter, too, is considerably cheaper.

This is both spinach week and bread week and both are excellent values. Asparagus is more plentiful and lower in price. Pineapple and strawberries are also coming into their seasons. Oranges and grapefruit continue to be cheap and plentiful.

Here are three menus for Sunday dinner at different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner
Stuffed Meat Loaf
Mashed Potatoes Buttered Beets
Bread and Butter
Tapioca Cream
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Stuffed Lamb
Brown Potatoes, Spinach with Onion
Bread and Butter
Chocolate Souffle
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

SUCCESS IN LIFE HINGES ON FOODS

Prospects for Health and Social Approval Increased by Proper Eating

Health value is not enough to persuade adolescents to eat certain foods, says Jean Hawks, assistant professor of nutrition, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Boys and Girls need some other incentive besides health before they will change their food habits. Better results, she advises, can be achieved by connecting good food habits with their goals.

Miss Hawks, who has made a special study of food needs of adolescents, believes in applying psychology to the treatment of the recalcitrant youth who refuses to eat proper or sufficient amounts of food.

"The adolescent child can be made to realize that the better his health practices are, the greater is the possibility of his success in the various things he wants to do," she says.

"When growing boys and girls realize that good food habits are directly related to winning a race, playing the violin, or solving a problem, they will be more anxious to cooperate and form good food habits. They want social approval. They want to be in style. They want to look right. Thus they may be interested in eating proper foods."

Miss Hawks points out that it may be advisable at times to permit substitution of other fruits and vegetables for individual foods which an adolescent may dislike, but she insists that if sufficient minerals and vitamins in the form of vegetables and fruits are not eaten the prospects for good health in adult life are decreased.

What Your Darling Child Really Thinks of You.

Dr. Donald A. Laird, professor of psychology at Colgate University, describes how science tripped youngsters into telling how they behaured up dad and mother and relates many disconcerting things discovered by these tests. Read the article in The American Weekly with Sunday's Detroit Times.

START TEMPERANCE EDUCATION MAY 1ST

Material to Be Placed in Hands of About 30,000 Teachers.

A new temperance education course is to be launched in the schools of Michigan about March 1st, when the material will be in the hands of the 30,000 teachers of the state.

Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, state sperintendent of public instruetion, says the bulletin is the answer to Governur Fitzgernld's demand that school teachers desseminate temperance information or be dismissed as unfit.

For over a year an 11-member committee has been studying the questlon and the resulting course will embrace all phnses of the liquor problem. It will discuss the scientifis effects of alcohol. It will emphasize facts and figures on deatbs from alcoholism nnd automobile accidents in which drunk drivers were involved. It carries the views of industrialists upon drinking by their employees and a variety of other information which should induce young people to decide for themselves to leave intoxicants alone.

The course is not mandatory, but it is anticipated that local sentiment will force its adoption in most cases.—Press Director W. C. T. U.

STUDY CLUBS GIVE DELIGHTFUL MUSICALES FOR MEMBERS

The Shakespeare Study Club and the Charles Dickens Club have recently given two delightful musicales for their members and friends, presenting the ultra-modern music of George Gershurn of New York, written for the play, "Porgy."

Instrumental and voice numbers were interspersed during the story of the play. Several scenes were enacted from Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," accompanied by the fairy-like music of Felix Mendelsohn, written for this play.

Both programs were very interesting and enjoyed by all present.

WILL CONTINUE REMOVING OLD BEAVER DAMS

Concervation Department Announces Furthar Riddance Work.

Fisheries authorities are planning to continue this spring the work of ridding trout streams in the northern part of the state of abandoned and nuisance beaver dams as a means of improving trout habitat and trout fishing.

Under the beaver-trout management program approved by the State conservation commission, nearly 5,000 old abandoned and nuisance beaver dams were removed from trout streams last year. Where the presence of the beaver dams did not constitute n menace to fish life and are regarded as a definite wildlife nsset, conservation authorities do not interfere.

Some of the dams removed were very old, not having been used apparently for a decade or more, and their existence had decidedly altered the character of the stream.

BOUNTY TRAPPERS CONTINUE GOOD CATCHES

Cold Weather, Heavy Snow Fails to Halt Operatiions.

Difficult snowshoeing and extreme cold weather apparently did not encourage northern Michigan's bounty trappers this year.

The record of bounty payments made by the Department of Conservation during January and February of 1936 is far ahead of the payments made during the same two months of last year.

In 1935 the department paid bounties on a total of 466 predators during the first two months whereas this year the payments have reached a total of 645 for January and February.

OPEN OF NAVIGATION ON LAKES WILL BE DELAYED

Opening of Great Lakes shipping will be delayed several weeks more because of the ice blockade, weather bureau officials have reported. They described the blockade as the worst in many years.

Ice is still 20 to 28 inches thick in the Mackinaw Straits connecting Lake Michigan with Lake Superior and Lake Huron, according to the weather bureau's first spring report on lake conditions. The coast guard's ice cutter, Escanaba, may not be able to open the channel before April 20.

A strenuous campaign to raise Charlevoix county's quota of Red Cross funds for relief of flood sufferers is under way at the present time.

According to Clarence B. Meggison, county Red Cross chairman, Charlevoix county's quota has been placed at $65. Headquarters in this city have been established at the Charlevoix Insurance Agency office in charge of Mrs. R. F. Sloan, and similar headquarters have been set up in Boyne City and East Jordan.

Word has come that adjoining counties have over-subscribed their quotas and already sent in the funds. Local Red Cross officials hope to report similar success, and for this reason an urgent appeal is made.

FARMERS MAY GET CROPS LOANS NOW

APPLICATIONS BEING RECEIVED AT BOYNE CITY

Representative of Farm Credit Administration Now at Office of the County Agricultural Agent

Applications for emergency crop loans for 1936 are now being received at county agent's office, Boyne City, by James P. Letts, field supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

The emergency crop loans will be made only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from any other source, as provided by regulations issued by the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration. The money loaned will be limited to the farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1936 crops and in no instance may exceed $200 to one farmer.

Farmers are not eligible for emergency crop loans if they can borrow from an individual, production credit association, bank, or other concern. Farmers will also be considered ineligible if they have an application pending with Re-settlement Administration, have received assistance from that organization this year or are indebted to the Resettlement Administration for an unpaid loan.

As in the past, the security for an emergency crop loan will consist of a first lien on the crop financed. Landlord or others having an interest in the crop to be financed will be required to waive their claims in favor of a lien to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration until the emergency crop loan is repaid.

Checks in payment of approved loans will be issued by the Regional Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office at St. Paul, Minnesota.

CHARLEVOIX LOSES OUT IN STATE MEET

DEFEATED 38 TO 28 BY LANSING ST. MARY'S IN SEMI-FINALS OF STATE TOURNAMENT AT GRAND RAPIDS

Won from Edmore 35 to 15 in Quarter-Finals Round at Big Rapids to Complete Charlevoix's Most Successful Basketball Season Since the Year of 1932

Charlevoix's Red Rayders have turned in their basketball gear, thus closing the most successful season since 1932.

After winning the district Class C crown at Boyne City, and the regional title at Petoskey, Charlevoix went to Big Rapids to represent Northern Michigan in the state finals along with Petoskey in Class B and Onekamn in Class D.

It is now a matter of record that Olekama was defeatod by Merrill in first round play, that the Rayders became the third Charlevoix team to win a game in the state finals before losing to St. Mary's, of Lansing, in the semi-finals, and that Petoskey's powerful Class B outfit went to the finals before being nosed out by a four-point margin by St. Theresa, of Detroit.

Charlevoix 35, Edmore 15

Charlevoix gained the semi-finals by a lop-sided victory over Edmore at Big Rapids. Trailing by five points before getting their hearings, the Rayders pulled into a 9 to 7 lead at the quarter and added six points to Edmore's free toss for a 15 to 8 advantage at the half. That they ran circles around the Lower Michigan team in the third period is indicated by their scoring 15 points to two for Edmore to close the quarter with a 30 to 10 lead. Coach Kipke sent his reserves into the game in the fourth quarter. They held Edmore even, each team scoring five points.

The following complete and detailed account of the semi-finals game at Grand Rapids is quoted from the Grand Rapids Herald, as follows:

Despite its defeat, Charlevoix can take pride in one of the scrappiest teams in the state tournament finals. The Lansing cagers, Class C favorites, were all their reputation reputed them to be but Charlevoix put up a desperate battle and the final 10 point margin does not indicate how hard the Northern Michigan boys fought. Charlevoix trailed at the quarter, 13 to 6, and was behind, 22 to 12, at the half.

Then they pulled up within five points of the surprised St. Mary's five, only to fall behind again and trail, 34 to 21. Continuing to fight back, Charlevoix cut that lead down by seven points but could not quite make the grade. The play of young R. Pearl, left forward, was outstanding. He made seven points to lead Charlevoix. Radle and Schwab also stood out. St. Mary's featured the brilliant play of G. Wines, center. The latter tallied 17 points.

The regulars are Bob Pearl and Joe Schwab, veterans of three years, and the reserves Charles Scott and Floyd Eccleston. Carey and Radle, forwards, and Gallagher, center, will be available for next season, along with some of the most promising new material in many years. During the regular season, Charlevoix had as many as four full teams of reserves playing in preliminary games, and from this group a formidable squad should be found.

Coming Out of Hibernation

DISTRICT KIWANIS MEETING JULY 10-11

Many Clubmen and Wives Planning to Attend Mackinac Convention

Dates for the Michigan district Kiwanis convention on Mackinac Island have just been set for July 10 and 11, it has been announced by Robert Bridge, president of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

Kiwanians of Michigan are planning to make their annual summer vacations coincide with the Mackinac Island convention, it was declared by George W. Baldwin, of Sault Ste. Marie, convention general chairman, in a communication to the local club officers. He said there is every prospect of at least 1,000 registrations at the convention—largest in Michigan Kiwanis history.

The convention was set, by special permission of the international Kiwanis board of trustees, at a time when the weather is most delightful in Northern Michigan, when days are longest, and when the host clubs are least busy with their tremendous tourist business. Eight clubs, comprising the eighth division of Michigan Kiwanis, have combined their forces for entertainment of the convention at Mackinac Island. They are: Traverse City, Gaylord, Grayling, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Roger City, Petoskey, and Sault Ste. Marie.

BENEFIT PAYMENT OFFERED FARMER

SOIL CONSERVATION REWARD IS $10 PER ACRE

Michigan Placed in North Central Division; Three Types of Work Considered Under Plan

Benefit payments averaging $10 an acre are offered farmers for removal of 30,000,000 acres from intensive cultivation under the new soil conservation program replacing the AAA.

Details of the program, announced by Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, provide expenditure of $440,000,000 in conserving the nation's soil fertility this year, the first of the two-year temporary program.

Two types of payments are provided for farmers who cooperate in federal suggestions for conservation and building of soil:

1. A soil conserving payment averaging $10 an acre.
2. A soil building payment up to $1 an acre.

For each acre of soil-depleting crops which a farmer diverts to soil conserving he will get an average of $10 an acre on up to 15 per cent of the base acreage, computed on 1935 planting.

If that acreage is planted in legumes or other soil-building crops which he plows under to build up soil fertility, he will be paid another $1 an acre. The $1 an acre also applies to pasture land under certain conditions.

H. R. Tolley, acting administrator, gave this definition of the two types of soil treatment:

"A soil conserving crop is one that holds the present fertility of the soil; a soil building crop is one that adds to the fertility of the soil."

A soil conserving crop, it was explained, for which the farmer is paid $10 an acre, may be turned under to qualify as a soil building crop, adding the extra $1 an acre.

For the purpose of payment farmers who apply for payments will have their crops classified as soil-depleting, soil-conserving and soil-building.

Crowning of the King

The high spot of the parade is the crowning of the new "King," whose identity is kept a secret until the day of the Jamboree.

The stag smelt banquet, featured by the King's proclamation, will start about 6:30 p. m. Several well-known sportsmen of the state will be called on for short talks. Following the banquet, where dipping togs is the regulation costume, the guests will go to the river, where smelt dipping will provide further thrills.

Unlike most smelt streams, the Jordan is about 50 feet wide, and hundreds of feet of board walks have been built along both banks, from which the fishermen dip with long-handled nets. Wading the stream is not necessary, although many bring their waders and dip out in the river. Dipping continues through the night and until about an hour after daybreak. During the evening hours the fish are working upstream; then about an hour before daybreak they start back for the lake. It is an interesting sight to watch the silver hordes coming back downstream, having the appearance of large rolling balls, made up of thousands of the tiny fish.

Sportsmen's Park is being groomed for the event. Electric lights have been installed along the driveway and footpaths on Manhattan Island and in the Log Cabin, where guests may thaw out before the big fireplace, between dipping periods.

PA AND MA BANQUET EVENT FRIDAY NIGHT

Large Attendance Expected for Affair at I. O. O. F. Hall

Numerous special entertainment features, details of which have been closely guarded, are promised to make this one of the big annual events. Advance ticket sales indicate a large attendance.

WEEKLY WEATHER REPORT

A week of above normal temperature has resulted in almost total disappearance of snow within the city. Lack of deep frost penetration permitted rapid drainage. Country roads, recently opened, are in bad condition, but highways plowed throughout the winter are excellent. In the past seven-day period the lowest temperature recorded was 12 degrees above zero.

The following temperature rending for the period of March 18 to 24, inclusive, is furnished by the U. S. Coast Guard Station:

	High	Low
Wednesday	33	12
Thursday	40	17
Friday	32	25

Alka-Seltzer makes a sparkling alkaline drink. As it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments, then by restoring the alkaline balance, corrects the cause when due to excess acid.

NO DECREASE FARM ACREAGE EXPECTED

Over Seven Million Acres Will Be Utilized for Crops In 1936

With practically all privately-owned farms in the State being operated and farm houses occupied, and with somewhat larger gross income in 1935 than in any year since 1930, the farmers of Michigan will devote fully as many acres to crop production this season as in other recent years.

Reports from correspondents of the Michigan Co-operative Crop Reporting Service indicate slightly more than 7,000,000 acres will be utilized for ten important general field crops in 1936. Interpretations of the reports allow for average abandonment during the season and for usual difficulties encountered at planting time but do not allow for effects of the soil conservation program except to the extent that they may have been reflected in the reports of some individual farmers.

A page portrait of Pope Pius XI, printed in full color, will be found in The Detroit Sunday Times, issue of March 29. This is a remarkable likeness of the Pope and is especially appropriate at this time of the year.

The Chevrolet engine is the most economical automobile engine produced today, because (1) it is a six-cylinder engine, and (2) it is a valve-in-head six-cylinder engine.

Its six cylinders use less gas and oil—in fact, use the least gas and oil—for six cylinders are the most economical combination used in modern automobiles.

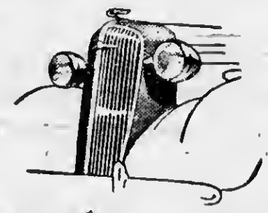
CHEVROLET

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Its valve-in-head design cuts gasoline consumption still lower because there is less loss of heat through the walls of the combustion chamber in valve-in-head engines, and the advanced construction of the Chevrolet engine gives maximum heat (or power) saving.



Most important of all, Chevrolet's more efficient cooling system, pressure stream oiling and the greater accessibility of all working parts result in more dependable operation, over a longer period of time, with the lowest maintenance costs. CHAPTER XXIV

Scrubbing new potatoes at the sink, she had turned at these words to look at him over her shoulder. Joe, seated at the table busily stemming strawberries, had looked up with his round fair face completely devoid of expression.

"Yes, I know just how you love me. But then everyone wants you, Tony; I don't blame you for taking your time."

"Everyone doesn't want me, Joe. And it isn't that. You know." Tony had said, her cheeks suddenly scarlet, "you know that it isn't that."

And it was then, after a long pause, that he said: "Have you heard from Larry?"

"No," the girl said, rubbing the little pink and brown potatoes in a towel.

"What d'you expect, Tony?"

"Well, nothing and everything—I suppose!" Tony answered, laughing confusedly, after a moment. She came over to the table and sat down, her brown hands busy as his were with the big firm berries. "Him, for one thing," she said ingenuously, with a smile.

"Him, of course. My grandmother may go off in her sleep any night."

"Any time now. At least, from what Caroline wrote. They all reached Baltimore 10 days ago, you said?"

"That was the last I heard. Caroline's wire said that Gran had not minded the trip at all, and was comfortable, and that the end might be 'at any time.' But there's poor Aunt Ruth's estate to settle, you know. It was a remarkable will. She left more than a dozen legacies."

"A beautiful thing to do," Tony said. "Ruth had some—some quality; I don't know what to call it. Dignity, bigness; one didn't see it in the little things. But in big things—" She looked at a ring on her brown finger; two great pearls flanking a deep green emerald. "To send me that—" she said slowly.

"That was my grandmother's. So, if you ever liked me, Tony, it could be handed on to our little Bertha Beatrice."

"Her name wouldn't be Bertha Beatrice!"

"Her name would be Antoinette."

Tony, looking at him, bit into a great berry. She said nothing.

"Suppose Larry was out of it, would I have a chance?"

"Joe, dear, even with Larry in it, you'd always have a chance! You're one of the finest men I ever knew; you're the sweetest-tempered. I didn't know there was such a thing as a sweet-tempered man until I knew you. My father was very excitable and exacting, sometimes, and so's Cliff. And Larry's—well, he's not even-tempered."

"But still it's no one but Larry?"

"No one but Larry."

He was silent for a while. Presently he said:

"Well, you've never fooled me. You've never let me think there was any chance."

"I'm going to put all these papers into the box; they'll have read the papers!" Tony called, from the adjoining sitting room. "What did you say, Joe? I didn't hear you."

"Nothing," he said, opening the kitchen door to take great drafts of the delicious wet air and watch the little trees swaying in the rain.

They had scrambled eggs, Irish bacon, jelly, and toast for lunch, and then Tony belted herself into an old coat of Joe's and pulled a knitted cap tightly down over her dark hair, and they went down to the beach.

The rain curled her hair, and the wind drove a bright color into her cheeks. Tony shouted like a child to be heard above the waves that came in on a shallow level rush, tumbled into foam on the rocks, slid away again. Joe steadied her. She laughed as she stumbled helplessly against him, or when a pursuing wave drove them into a wild huddle of escape together; the wet blown strands of her hair almost touched his face; the youth and sweetness and vitality of her were almost in his arms.

Presently, suddenly, the sun was out hot between showers, and then again a soft fall of rain was blown warmly against their faces. Again came the sparkle and shine and steaming heat of the sun, and Tony asked, wrinkling her face:

"Will they come?"

"Who?"

"The smarties. Your friends."

"Oh," Joe said ruefully, "they may. It may be clear up in the city. They may be on their way now."

"It's three. Maybe we ought to go back and clean up and be ready for 'em. And I'll tell you," Tony said in her animated way, as he gave her his hand for the last hard steps up the cliff, "if they aren't coming, let's telephone Bendy and Alvin and have them come over for supper. All that chicken, you know, and the delicious asparagus."

"Must we?" he said, as they walked along on the soaked new grass of the cliff.

"Well—"

"It's so nice when it's you and me and the dog."

Shedding their wet outer garments and leaving their soaked shoes at the door, they went into lifeless warmth, to sudden almost stunning silence after the riot of the winds and the sea.

"There's a telegram there, Joe. Probably they're not coming, and we might have finished our walk! Ditto on the shower!"

Not waiting until he opened the yellow envelope, she ran upstairs to the chilly spare room, changed into her velvet frock, and came down decorously 20 minutes later with her still damp hair brushed into shining rings. The sitting room was deserted and the fire burning, the guests just descending from a big parked car at the door.

With a call upstairs to inform Joe of their arrival, Tony went to the door and did the honors. The world was one wide glitter of hot sweet light now, and the young garden and the red-flagged terrace and the backdrop of blue sea looked their loveliest. Tony introduced herself to Professor and Mrs. Unger, and Dr. Herrmann, and Frau Dr. Knecht.

"You had lunch all ready for us!" lamented quiet little Mrs. Unger.

"We only turned it into dinner," Tony explained. "And then we went off on a hunt. It's all here, waiting for you. We could sit out here on the terrace," she added, "if it weren't so horribly wet underfoot. I'll tell you—"

And she went quite simply for a broom, and quite simply surrendered it to young Doctor Herrmann when he offered to take it.

"Yes, swish all that water off," she said, "and all those leaves, and we'll move the chairs back—that one, Professor Unger—and those two, that's it."

When Joe presently came hurrying down, with his round face moonier than ever and his fair hair very sleek, she took the women upstairs.

"No, I live in San Francisco with a brother and aunt," she explained to them. "I'm a newspaper woman. But my sister lives in Monterey, about 10 miles from here—you must have passed through it on your way down—and I come to her nearly every Saturday, and manage usually to be with Joe on Sundays. Usually there's Sunday company," Tony went on, laying out a comb and powder and wondering what they thought of her, "but today was so stormy—"

When it began to grow cold on the terrace they went in to the fire, and Joe propped the kitchen door open so that they could all talk together. He looked tired, somehow, and Tony stole a moment to ask him in an undertone if he felt well.

"Fine!" he assured her cheerfully. The chicken was bubbling again in its rich creamy gravy now, and Tony's fluffy biscuits were in the oven. The whole house was filled with the pleasant smell of baking, of asparagus, of wood smoke. Brenda telephoned: had the company come? If not, she and Alvin were going to suggest— Oh, they had come? Was Tony coming back that night?

Yes, Tony would sleep at Benny's. Joe'd bring her back early. And had the cuff link shown up?

"Yes, he didn't eat it after all, the darling," Brenda reported of her first-born. Tony went back to dinner preparations, pleased that the little interlude had come along to answer any curiosity Joe's friends might have about her. Not but what the Ungers appeared completely indifferent to the state of her morals, and Dr. Herrmann the least imaginative soul in the world. As for the big German doctor, she looked as if she were entirely unconscious of the minor details of life about her; anything could happen without disturbing Frau Dr. Knecht.

Dinner was a succession of compliments for the cook. They were all hungry; they had never tasted such a salad, such chicken, such new potatoes.

The German woman spoke, and Tony turned to Joe.

"What did she say?"

"She asked if you could such bread machen," said Joe.

"Ach, ye-a-ah!" Tony laughed, and Doctor Knecht said "Gut!" approvingly.

When they were putting on their wraps upstairs at nine o'clock for the long run home, Mrs. Unger said shyly to Tony:

"May I hear it, if it's good news?"

The look in her kind brown eyes, the inflection in her voice, told Tony what it was she asked. The girl flushed as she answered regretfully:

"No, it isn't Dr. Vanderwall. I wish it were. We like each other so much! But—but it happens there's somebody else."

"Does he know it?" the other woman asked in quick concern.

"Oh, yes. He knows the man."

"Oh-h-h?" Mrs. Unger murmured in disappointment.

"I'm glad you would have liked it, for I know you like Doctor Vanderwall," Tony said. "I love him, of course; there's no one like him. But—but it so happens that I'm not—"

"Heart whole and fancy free?" Ellen Unger finished it with a little philosophical shrug of her shoulders. "Well, never mind, my dear. We have to take these things as they come."

Then the guests had gone and Tony was alone with Joe. The sitting room, where they had had so good a dinner and an satisfying a talk, looked somewhat disordered, and the fire had burned low. Joe, returning from farewells at the door, threw on another log—two, three logs. The flame started up again, and Tony said:

"Ah, don't let me get warm and lazy! We have to go right out into it again."

Joe had seated himself in a low fireside chair of shabby leather; he seemed to be paying no attention to her, and for the first time in the course of their friendship Tony had a moment's uneasiness about him. What did this abstracted, unsmiling manner mean? Surely Joe wasn't going to frighten her, to make her feel that this constant coming to his house, this easy intimacy, was not quite as safe as she tried to persuade Bendy it was?

"Sit Down a Minute," He Said.

"Sit down a minute," he said.

"Nine-twenty, dear. And you know my big sister. She'll telephone in a few minutes."

"No; sit down," he said. And then suddenly: "That telegram that was here when we came in. It wasn't from the Ungers."

"Wasn't?"

"No."

"Oh—?" She looked at him expectantly. "And am I to know what it was?" she asked, in the tone of a good little girl.

"I have to tell you," Joe said, looking at the fire, his voice devoid of expression. "It was from Larry."

"Larry?" Her voice was only a whisper; the quick blood came up into her suddenly radiant face. "Tell me—" she said with an effort, "he's here?"

"No, it was from Baltimore. I said it was from Larry," Joe said; "it was signed by them both. It was signed 'Caroline and Lawrence.'"

For a long minute Tony looked at him steadily. The color slowly drained from her face, leaving it drawn.

"How—d'you mean?"

"I mean—there!" He stretched a long arm, and she took the folded yellow paper from him as if she were afraid to touch it.

"What is it? What does it say?" she said thickly. Her eyes fell on the printed words, but the message made no sense to her, it danced about crazily and she could only see the signatures: "Caroline and Lawrence. Caroline and Lawrence. Caroline and Lawrence."

"He says that they were married today," Joe said flatly. Tony put the telegram down unread, leaning over to the table to shove it well on; sat back and looked at Joe.

"I don't know what that means," she said faintly.

"I don't blame you," said Joe. "I think it's rotten. I'm sorry, I'm damned sorry. I had no more idea of it than you had."

He crossed the floor, and knelt down beside her chair, and she laid one hand on his shoulder and stared into his eyes in puzzled questioning. Her look was a child's pleading look.

"Oh, no—" she breathed. "It doesn't—let me see it—"

The crumpled telegram lay on the floor. Joe made no move to get it.

"That's what it says."

"That Larry—" she whispered.

"They were married today."

"I don't believe it!" Tony said suddenly, panting. Her cheeks flamed.

"It's hard to believe."

CONCERNING PURCHASE DELINQUENT TAX LAND

What Purchasers May Expect Outlined by County Treasurer

At the May tax sale the county treasurer will sell land delinquent for taxes for the amount of taxes held by the state for the year 1933 and one-tenth of the amount of taxes held by the state against the land for the year 1932 and prior years.

The county treasurer on the sale will give to the purchaser a tax certificate showing his purchase. Any person interested in the land may at any time within one year from the date of the sale, redeem the land by paying to the county treasurer or auditor general, the amount paid on the sale, plus interest at one per cent per month. If there is no redemption made, then at the end of the year, on surrender of the certificate of purchase, the auditor general will issue to the purchaser a tax deed.

After receiving his tax deed, the tax title purchaser, before he can take possession of the land, must give a notice to redeem to those who own an interest in the land or are in possession. Such interested parties are entitled to a re-conveyance from the tax title purchaser at any time within six months after filing return of service of the notice by paying the amount paid by the tax title purchaser, plus 50 per cent additional and an attorney fee of five dollars and the costs of service. If no redemption is made, the tax title purchaser may take possession of the land.

BRIDGE BACKERS MEET AT GRAND RAPIDS SOON

Last Week of March Selected for Next Session of Boosters

Wilson J. McDonald, of Petoskey, chairman of the West Michigan Straits Bridge Association, announced this week that the next meeting of bridge proponents will be held in Grand Rapids, probably during the last week in March.

"Our Petoskey meeting of March 5 was a surprise and an inspiration," said Mr. McDonald. Over 150 people attended, some of them driving 100 miles or more. Forty-seven Michigan counties were represented and enthusiasm for the Straits bridge project ran high. We have offers of support and cooperation from all over the state. Many groups in the larger cities are going ahead of their own accord, not only recording their unanimous approval of the plan but lining up clubs and other bodies in their neighborhood for the bridge."

HOME EXTENSION GROUP MEETING MONDAY, MAR. 30

The Charlevoix home extension group will meet Monday afternoon, March 30th, at the home of Mrs. William Ilgman, 109 East Upright avenue. A feature of the meeting will be a cottage cheese demonstration. Members are requested to come early.

FIRST EIGHT CENTS OF RAILROAD DOLLAR TO STATE FOR TAXES

The first eight cents of every dollar earned by the railroads of Michigan are turned over to the state as taxes, according to 'Everyman's Almanac," just issued by the Michigan Railroads Association. The eight-penny tax last year amounted to $6,301,385.59 and went, by state constitutional order, directly into the primary school fund, of which the railroad total made up 10 per cent.

"Everyman's Almanac," a 40-page booklet, gives the first outline ever printed of the magnitude and commercial and economic relationship between the state and its railroads. There are 37 railroad lines in Michigan. Normally they employ 45,000 men earning $69,000,000, according to the almanac, and their total length, 7819 miles, is greater than the railroad mileage of any one of 11 leading foreign countries. The almanac also contains extensive national railroad facts and figures and numerous summaries for business, household and sports use.

SOUTH SIDE SERVICE TAKES SUNOCO LINES

R. J. Shearer, Owner, Announces Change Made on Products Handled

An advertisement elsewhere in this issue announces the distribution of Sunoco gasoline and oil by the South Side Service Station, owned and operated by R. J. "Ray" Shearer.

Mr. Sheurer, until recently handling Phillips 66 products, made the change following purchase of the Kahler & Friend holdings by the Northern Auto Co., at which time he took over the station which he had been operating for some time. Other lines handled include Pennzoil, Quaker State oil, and U. S. tires.

Mr. Shearer also operates a repair and servicing department, an addition made last fall to the former station providing quarters for this work.

Membership in Leslie T. Shapton Post has reached an all-time high of 103. This is two more than the highwater mark of 1934 when the tally reached 101 members.

The post will sponsor another dance at The Argonne on April Fool's night. There will be a door prize for the lucky couple.

Thursday, April 2nd, is the date for another of the delightful potluck get-together parties for the three Legion posts of the county and their auxiliaries at East Jordan. Supper will be served promptly at 6:30 p. m. and dancing will follow. During an intermission, the Charlevoix County Veterans Council will hold its first spring session.

Next Monday night, the Petoskey post of the Spanish American War Veterans will hold a potluck affair to which Legionnaires of Charlevoix and their wives and sweethearts are invited. Department officials of the S. A. W. V. and the G. A. R. will be present as guests of honor.

Don't forget the smelt jamboree at East Jordan on Saturday of this week.

Plans were made at Tuesday night's regular meeting to turn the instruments of the bugle and drum corps over to the Sons of the American Legion. Several of the members of the present corps have volunteered to assist the boys in getting started, and some have been heard to opine that the youngsters stand a better chance of being ready to parade on Memorial Day than their doughty fathers would. Youth will and must be served!

About Financial Statements

Time was when a banker could immediately say yes or no to an application for a loan. This was possible because of his detailed knowledge of the affairs of the borrower.

In this day and age it is necessary to ask the borrower to either secure his loan with marketable collateral or to present a statement of his financial condition. This statement must, of course, upon analysis justify the credit if the loan is to be made.

In requiring a statement the bank is not prying into the borrower's affairs. It is merely asking for that information which is necessary to intelligently pass upon the application for a loan.

EDITORIAL

AN UNFAIR ATTACK

It is inconceivable that the ridiculous charges leveled at Dr. William Haber, State Relief Administrator by Congressman Frank E. Hook should have any effect except to backfire against the accuser.

The suggestion that Dr. Haber is an ally of Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald is funny when it is recalled that Governor Fitzgerald went into office with the avowed intention of removing Haber; and abandoned this effort only after dire threats of reprisals had been made from Washington. If the good practical sense of these two men have enabled them to carry on the manifold activities of relief with at least a semblance of harmony since then, it still is not likely that Haber has forgotten that it is to Washington he owes his continuation in office.

The fact is that Dr. Haber is serving the State of Michigan solely out of a sense of duty, to avoid an upheaval which easily might have endangered the security of thousands who are now dependent upon the dole or work relief projects. He does not receive a dime of salary from the State for this extra labor.

Any charge that Dr. Haber is even interested in politics as such is ridiculous. Far from that, we have positive knowledge that he has wished to return to academic life at the earliest moment he can be spared The Hook charges may conceivably postpone his retirement as he probably will not leave his post until his activities are completely vindicated.

We are among the many who have differed with the policies which Dr. Haber has followed under orders at times, but we gladly take this opportunity to recognize the outstanding and unselfish service he has rendered his State and Nation. He will be honored among his fellow men long after his persecutors are forgotten.

LADIES OF THE BAR

The Anti-Saloon League is Circulating petitions to compel legislative change in exsisting liquor-control laws. Some say the adoption of the proposed changes virtually means return to the Warner-Crampton days of the open saloon. In that event the brass rail and the women customer is likely to be in evidence. Modern girls won't be denied. We recall when women first invaded the barber shops, replacing the Police Gazette with a movie magazine. That offended some men but it was good for the barbers and it helped the women. Then the makers of cigarettes began the development of smoking among women. That was good for the cigarette business but not so good for the ladies. Personally we are not in favor of providing the ladies with "brass rail" drinking spots in which to do their drinking. Minnesota is trying that plan and the white-aproned gentry who dish up liquid damnation in the "On Sale" establishments do not enthuse over the female customers who put their dainty feet on the brass rail and take theirs standing. They call the girlies "barflies," accuse them of staying too long and taking too much. Patronizing public drinking places does not reconcile with the average man's estimate of what constitutes womanly virtues. They appear out of place despite modern concession to their rights as citizens.

HARD TO SATISFY

We wouldn't be surprised any minute to learn that the Democratic members in Congress from Michigan were complaining that the soil and atmospheric conditions in their districts no longer pleased them, and that they wanted them changed. They have certainly grown critical of everything Michigan lately — even the members of their own party. Evidently the boys back home are disturbing their esthetic souls. A few days ago former Governor Comstock walked out on them as a protest. Now Congressman Frank Hook, of Ironwood, wants Jim Farley to fire Dr. William Haber, state relief administrator. Hook charges payroll-padding and Haber's friendliness for Governor Fitzgerald. Michigan people no longer pay any attention to those Washington explosions. Dr. Haber has been giving excellent service, and his removal would be additional evidence that administration relief is politiently bedridden. Last year an investigation revealed a number of Congressman Hook's kin on relief. Perhaps that may account for his seeming dislike for Professor Haber.

CCC NEWS REALEASE

Sixty-two deer were trapped and tagged in the Portuge swamp west of Grayling in the first month of the project, according to chief foreman Andrew K. Braidwood of CCC Camp Higgins, in charge. Thirty-four were does and 28 bucks.

Fifty-four of the deer have been transported to the Munistee Swamp, five miles west. The remaining eight are being fed in holding pens at the Crawford game refuge headquarters because of the weakened condition in which they were found.

Completion of a project in which 72,940 pounds of Jack Pine seed cones and 3,450 pounds of Norway Pine cones were roasted and the seed extracted, is announced by chief foreman Andrew K. Braidwood of CCC Camp Higgins Lake.

From the cones 507 pounds of Jack Pine seed and 49 pounds of Norway Pine seed were extracted.

Enrollees of Michigan Emergency Conservation Work CCC Camp Au Sable were summoned early this week to rescue two deer from dogs which were chasing the Winter-weakened does in the Au Sable State Forest.

The dogs, when caught, were turned over to Conservation officials for disposal. The living doe was brought to camp for first aid treatment and food, and was later released.

All distance and direction signs erected by the Department of Conservation in the northwest corner of the Au Sable State Forest are being gathered by enrollees of CCC Camp Kalkaska, in order that they may be re-painted and erected before the influx of tourists later in the season.

Enrollees will re-paint and repair the signs, and erect them for the State Forest Division.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS
By Ann Page

Salads have a particular appeal at this season and many markets have several varieties of greens including Iceberg and Boston lettuce, Romaine or cos lettuce, escarole, chicory or curly endive and watercress. Rhubarb, too, never tastes better than in early spring and it is now quite generally in market.

Meats, with the exception of pork and poultry, fish, eggs and butter are all as cheap or cheaper than last year at this time. Beets, cabbage, carrots, onions and spinach continue in the cheap class. Green and lima beans are somewhat higher. Asparagus prices are gradually getting down to a reasonable level.

Oranges are a particularly good value at present.

Here are three menus for Sunday dinner at different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner
Shepherd's Pie with Mashed Potato Crust
Carrots Onions
Bread and Butter
Orange Gelatin Soft Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Baked Ham Mashed Potatoes
New Cabbage Orange Salad
Bread and Butter
Cocoanut Cream Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Appetizer Salad
Roast Pork Apple Sauce
Browned Potatoes Broccoli
Rolls and Butter
Fruit Cup Sponge Cake
Coffee

Pity him as we do, the Cross-Walk Somnambulist has no one to blame but himself. Sleep-walking pedestrians gamble with death.

While it is true that pedestrians have the right-of-way over autos making turns at intersections and that traffic should slow down for persons using crosswalks, neither of these truths can afford much comfort after an accident has occurred.

For your own safety—be alert—look both ways before crossing the street!

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Incidence of Disease in Preschoolers in District No. 3 in 1935

District Health Unit No. 3, constituting the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego, was very fortunate in having very few cases of communicable disease among our children under six years of age during 1935. We are very fortunate in this respect as it is in this early age group that communicable disease is the most serious.

During 1935 measles lead the list with 49 cases; chickenpox was next in importance with 26 cases; scarlet fever placed third with 11 cases; whooping cough was fourth with 7 cases; typhoid fever was fifth with 4 cases and infantile paralysis with 2 cases. We had a marked reduction in scarlet fever from 78 cases in 1934 to 11 cases in 1935, but on the other hand, there was a marked increase in measles, chickenpox and typhoid fever. One thing in particular that we notice is the fact that we did not have a single case of diphtheria or smallpox in the preschool child. This is due to the large number of smallpox vaccinations, and immunizations against diphtheria in this particular age group and this record can be continued only insofar as parents assist in having their children immunized.

The following rules are so important with regards to the control of communicable disease in the preschool child that we feel that they should be repeated again this year:

1. Keep the child away from sick people.
2. Isolate a sick child in the home, and do not allow the other children to come near.
3. Teach the child to wash his hands before eating, and after using the toilet, by having him do this daily.
4. Keep the child in the best health possible, that he may build up a strong resistance against germs.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Safety Committees to Be State-Wide

In order that the four point traffic safety program devised by the State Safety Council may be coordinated and uniformly supported, membership on four advisory committees will be drawn from points throughout the state, Orville E. Atwood, secretary of state and Council chairman makes plain.

In the selection of committee members to be made soon, political affiliation will not be considered. Some 25 or 30 citizens of Michigan will be asked to serve on the revodification committee which, under direction of David H. Crowley, attorney general, chairman, will be faced with the task of framing the recommended changes in the state's motor vehicle laws to the 1937 Legislature. The Michigan Bar Association will be represented on this committee. In addition there will be a safety educational committee, an enforcement committee and an engineering committee.

The latter committee will make extensive use of information being gathered by the State Highway Department, in conjunction with the federal government, in the course of a comprehensive survey of the state's highways.

Highlights of the recommendations for motor vehicle law changes will include strengthening of the drivers' license law, and periodic compulsory inspection of all automobiles. The educational phase visions expansion of school safety instruction and public appeals to adults. Uniform enforcement of existing laws and the closing up of loopholes against persistent violators, is contemplated in the scope of work to be encouraged by the enforcement committee, while the engineering committee will seek adoption of uniform signs and signals and the development of modern traffic plans.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Gladys Swarthout Hit of New Picture

We have had Lawrence Tibbett, Lily Pons, Everett Marshall, Mary Ellis, and Nino Martini as recruits from the Metropolitan Opera to motion pictures, and now comes the glorious voice of Gladys Swarthout, who may be seen and heard (and heard, and heard, and heard!) in Paramount's "Rose of the Rancho" which will appear Saturday and Sunday, March 28-29, at the Palace Theatre.

John Boles is co-starred with Miss Swarthout in her motion picture debut and this too makes for a happy combination. Boles, with his rugged, yet suave, handsomeness, and his own claim to distinction as a singer, is the perfect match for Miss Swarthout. Even in the event screen plots didn't always, or usually always, work out for the best in the end, with hero and heroine living happily from here on out, you would know in this picture that Swarthout and Boles "belong."

Popular Pair Team Again

Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray, who met such wide favor as a light romantic team in their first Paramount picture, "The Gilded Lily," are brought together again in the new comedy-romance, "The Bride Comes Home," which opens on Wednesday, April 1, at the Palace Theatre.

"The Bride Comes Home" is an original story written especially for Miss Colbert by Claude Binyon, and though it resembles "The Gilded Lily" in that it treats of the problems confronting young lovers of today, its originality makes it one of the most amusing screen farces of the year.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Reality" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 29.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Eccl. 12:13): "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 207): "The spiritual reality is the scientific fact in all things. The spiritual fact, repeated in the action of man and the whole universe, is harmonious and is the ideal of Truth."

We often let our friends impose on us so that we may enjoy the return privilege of imposing on them.

The "Other Side" of the St. Lawrence Waterway

THE ST. LAWRENCE Seaway rejected by the U. S. Senate in 1934 on its imagined navigation merits is being stirred into life again with its electric power phases blithely offered as a co-equally important argument. But in neither respect is the seaway needed.

VIEWED as a transportation agency, we already have a lakes-to-the sea route. On it can be, is being, economically borne all the products for which America can find world markets. (Our railroads with their 50% surplus of equipment can handle all traffic given them, now and through the coming generations.)

IT WILL create no new markets, nor new traffic. It is simply a new shipping route, diverting traffic from existing transit agencies. It will function only in summer when railroad efficiency is greatest and need of it would be the least. It will be idle five months each winter when need of it would be greatest.

IT WILL not benefit the auto industry; or the wheat farmer; or bring farm relief; or aid employment; or "cure the depression". It will shorten no trade routes. It has no military value.

VIEWED for its power (half of which belongs to Canada) again the seaway is not needed. The region cannot absorb the vast surplus of harnessed hydro power it now has. The seaway is so remote from consuming (but disinterested) markets that transmission costs would make the new power—as it does present power—so costly as to be unsaleable.

TO ABSORB the contemplated power an industrial district twice as large as Detroit's must be built adjoining the seaway. Without such a nearby market the power and the immense cost of its development would be wasted.

LASTLY, we must furnish the bulk of the new money needed for a project benefiting another nation more than our own and lying more largely in another's territory than in the United States.

FACT, not fancy and emotionalism, should influence our consideration of the seaway. And the fact is America has come to know it as a project that is economically unsound.

Michigan Starts Farm Soil Plan

First steps in Michigan's statewide participation in the new federal soil conservation program are to be taken in a two-day conference in the ballroom of the Union Building at Michigan State College, East Lansing, Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28, it is announced by R. J. Baldwin, director of extension work in the state.

Announcement comes from Washington, D. C., of the appointment of G. B. Thorne as director of the soil conservation program for the north central states, which include Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota.

The federal program, based on an appropriation of 500 million dollars for use in 1936, is designed to preserve and improve soil fertility in the United States, promote economic use and conservation of land and diminish the exploitation and wasteful use of national soil resources. Farmers in the past have depleted their soils by producing an excess, in an endeavor to obtain sufficient income to make a living.

Benefit payments will be made to those farmers who participate in the program. The money will be paid, according to the new soil conservation plan, for maintaining acres in pasture and hay to prevent erosion and that do not rob soils of fertility, and other payments will be made for converting soil depleting acreages or practices to crops and methods which will maintain or increase fertility.

Temporary county committees and the state's staff of county agricultural agents will attend the meeting in East Lansing to receive instructions for starting program within each county of the state.

County Agricultural Planning Committee Sizes Up Agricultural Problems

The recently organized county agricultural planning committee held its first meeting in the Boyne City federal building last Tuesday, March 17, with 17 out of the 20 present. This is the first time that a committee so representative of all agricultural efforts in the county has met.

C. L. Nash, specialist in Michigan State College, was present and led the discussion. First of all, many facts and statistics were presented to the group showing the major problems affecting agricultural development. Then the results of the 1935 census were presented which accurately portrayed the trends and changes in agricultural activity in this county.

From this point on the discussion was pointed at what can be done and what should be done to make our agriculture more profitable and successful. Never before has such a clear picture of the county been presented. The committee appointed a sub-committee consisting of Richard Puddock, Charlevoix, William A. Shepard, East Jordan, and Henry Korthase, Boyne City, to meet again and to make a final report to Lansing.

The committee for the county consisted of the following who are recognized leaders in their respective activities:

Howard Stephens, Arlo Wickersham, Floyd Ikens, William F. Johnson, R. K. Paddock, Fred Willis, George Meggison—Charlevoix.

Henry Korthase, D. D. Tibbits, F. O. Barden, Howard Bedell—Boyne City.

Percy Penfold, Robert Campbell, William A. Shepard, Calvin Bennett, John Porter, A. L. Darbee, Al Wardn—East Jordan.

William J. Pearsun—Boyne Falls, Ralph Price—Ironton.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION HERE APRIL 14

Meet to Select State Delegation — Plans for Activity Made at Boyne

In accordance with plans made at Boyne City last Friday evening, a Republican spring convention will be held here the evening of Tuesday, April 14th.

The meeting, scheduled at 8 o'clock in the court house, is primarily to select delegates to represent the county at the Republican state convention to be held April 24th at Detroit.

Over 150, including a delegation of 40 from Charlevoix, attended the rally at Boyne City last Friday evening. Short talks were given by several prominent Republicans and plans were made for the formation of clubs in Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and Boyne Falls, each group to include adjacent townships in their respective location.

This action will be preliminary to rallies at points throughout the county at regular intervals prior to the fall primary election. If the enthusiasm shown at Boyne City may be taken as an indication, spirited Republican activity in the county is in prospect.

NAME REPRESENTATIVES FOR SPEECH CONTESTS

Alice McHugh In Declamation and Harold Chew Competes In Oratory

Charlevoix High school will be represented in the sub-district contests in declamation and oratory to be held Tuesday evening, April 14th, at East Jordan.

Alice McHugh is the local representative in declamation, and Harold Chew in oratory. Miss McHugh won several elimination contests in which approximately 90 freshmen and sophomores took part. Mr. Chew's oration placed first in the class of 60 juniors. It will be remembered he won second place in declamation at the sub-district in 1934, and in 1935 brought victory to Charlevoix in both the sub-district and district meets, thus making himself champion declaimer of all Northern Michigan.

Schools which will participate at East Jordan are Charlevoix, East Jordan, Mancelona, Bellaire, Boyne Falls and Gaylord. Winners at this event will compete in the district contest early in May.

COPIES HISTORICAL BOOKLET AVAILABLE

Centennial Celebration Committee Members May Be Contacted

The centennial celebration committee still has several copies of the historical program published last summer.

Attention is called to this in order that people who have failed to receive as many copies as they desire might do so. These booklets, selling at a small cost, contain valuable historical material about this region.

Requests for copies from outside sources are constantly coming in. This week M. M. Quaife, secretary-editor of the Burton Historical Collection of the Public Library, Detroit, Mich., wrote asking for copies. He had noticed one in the office of Dr. George M. Fuller, of the State Historical Commission. He wrote as follows: "I gained the impression that you had done a very creditable piece of work."

MASONIC GRAND LODGE MEETING AT TRAVERSE

For the first time in history members of Northern Michigan Masonic lodges will have an opportunity to attend a meeting of the Grand Lodge of Michigan when its annual session is held in Traverse City for three days starting Tuesday, May 26.

Invitations are being sent out to every Masonic Lodge in Michigan inviting all members as well as delegates, to come to the Traverse City convention and bring their ladies. Hundreds of Northern Michigan Masons, having the Grand Lodge meeting in their own territory for the first time, have announced they are going to Traverse City for the entire three days.

BENEFIT PAYMENT OFFERED FARMER

A farmer may claim payments only upon 15 per cent of his "base acreage"—the amount he planted in soil-depleting crops last year. Soil-depleting crops were defined as:

Corn, cotton, tobacco, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, rice, sugar cane, sugar beets, cultivated sunflowers, commercial truck and canning crops, melons and strawberries, peanuts, grain and sweet sorghums, and small grains including wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, flax, emmer, speltz, and grain mixtures.

Payments are to be divided between landlord and tenant where each shares in the crop or its proceeds. Administration will be through state committees, county and community committees and the AAA.

HARBOR SPRINGS MAN ESCAPES ICE

SPENT 24 HOURS ON FLOES AFTER ICE BROKE

Cecil Booth Returned Friday Night None the Worse for Experience on Lake Michigan

Cecil Booth, 30-year-old Harbor Springs fisherman, returned to his home Friday night to tell of a harrowing 24 hours on an ice floe in Lake Michigan. Searchers had been hunting him for hours.

Fishing off Seven Mile point in Little Traverse Bay Thursday afternoon, he was carried out into the open lake when the ice broke, he said. He reached shore late Friday afternoon at almost the same spot from which he had set out. There were no witnesses to his landing, searching parties having stationed themselves near Cross Village where it was felt he would land.

Charlevoix coast guards had participated in the search since early Friday morning. They were notified that Booth was missing at 3:06 a. m. and immediately made preparations to start search. Easterly winds had cleared the ice beyond the points and at daylight an attempt was made to reach open water with the diugy. This failed and the big life boat was launched. The guardsmen battled the ice from 7 until 10 o'clock before failing about a quarter mile from their goal. A land party left soon after noon under Capt. Fred Straubel for Harbor Springs. They were there when Booth came ashore.

Booth, tired and nervous after his night and day vigil adrift in the lake, told how he started out Thursday morning for a "last day of fishing before quitting the ice for the season."

He was returning to his home Thursday evening, he said, when the ice broke before a stiff east wind and he was rapidly carried out into the lake.

Built a Shelter

"I built a shelter with a canvas windbreak and a fish sack, near the center of the ice field," he said, "and then sat there watching the lights of Petoskey, Bay Shore and Charlevoix disappear from sight as I was swept farther and farther into the lake. I caught two fish and was conserving them and the little coffee I had left, in case I was left out on the ice for several days.

"Friday morning I was off Beaver Island when the wind died down but by mid-morning the wind was blowing strong from the south and the ice floe started for the Straits of Mackinac. At noon the wind shifted to the west, and a short time later I sighted the bluffs of Seven Mile point. When the floe crashed into the shore ice I made my way ashore and then went to the Frank Robinson farm house, which was nearby, and called my family.

"Midnight fishing lost all its charm for me last night," he commented, "and I certainly would not care to repeat this experience."

Seven Mile point is only a few miles below Goodhart, where early in February Clayton Brown, only survivor of a party of three men who drifted 36 hours in below zero weather, crawled ashore to an Indian cabin to save himself.

March went out like a lion after two weeks of lamblike behavior. Monday's snowfall was followed by a decided drop in temperature and was disappearing slowly with a rise in the mercury today. Tuesday was the only day during the past week that the temperature remained below freezing, however. Open water in Lake Michigan was seen last Friday for the first time in over a month, giving indication that a little continued warm weather will break up the seemingly endless fields.

The following temperature readings for the period of March 25 to 31, inclusive, are furnished by the U. S. Coast Guard station:

	High	Low
Wednesday	40	32
Thursday	50	30
Friday	45	32
Saturday	40	36
Sunday	40	33

SMELT RUNS MAGNET FOR MANY THOUSAND

MICHIGAN AND OUT-STATE SPORTSMEN PACK EAST JORDAN AND BOYNE CITY FOR CELEBRATIONS

East Jordan Depicted Lumbering Days in Colorful Parade; Radio Broadcasting by Duncan Moore Featured Boyne City Events; All County Streams Produce Smelt

Ike Hyams, Cincinnati wholesaler, Saturday was crowned Isaac I., natitonal King of Smeltium, as thousands of fishermen dipped their nets into the Jordan River, site of one of Michigan's most outstanding sport-events of the year.

The occasion followed the official coronation ceremonies at the Fourth National Smelt Jamboree, celebrated every year when the millions of tiny fish run up the Jordan River.

The coronation took place late Saturday afternoon after a majority of the 5,000 out-of-town visitors returned from a trip to Pine Ridge, a large tract of virgin pine, about 10 miles from town.

J. H. Metcalf, Grand Rapids, King of Smeltium last year, gave the address and placed the jeweled crown on the head of the new King Isaac. The new king was dressed in a flowing robe of royal purple velvet. He was guarded by two youths, dressed in Crusader uniforms, and surrounded by his reception committee.

The parade was led by Mayor Kit Carson on a prancing steed, followed by the East Jordan High school band and the king's float. The keynote of the spectacle was a picture of early lumbering days. About 50 horses, both saddle and draft, participated.

A huge lumberjack impersonated Paul Bunyan. He stood in a bank of blue snow, brandishing a large canthook. His float was drawn by a black ox team. All others in the parade were drawn by horses.

The annual stag smelt banquet was held in Legion Hall. Lewis Baldwin, Mancelonu, Antrim Iron Works manager, acted as toastmaster. The smelters' hall followed. It was held for all those who did not care to go to the river where good catches were made by thousands of fishermen during the night.

10,000 People at Boyne City

Thousands jammed Boyne City Saturday evening for the activities surrounding the smelt run.

Good luck was reported by the hundreds of fishermen who dipped at 11 o'clock and again at 2 a. m. Conservation officers reported a heavy run as the dippers buttled for the silvery fish in the narrow river.

The festivities opened with a banquet at the Dilworth, attended by more than 200. Duncan Moore, radio news commentator from WJR, was elected as kingfish and presented with a lot on Lake Charlevoix as his kingdom.

Following an entertainment program, the crowd moved to the river where thousands were guthered to watch the dipping. Moore, aided by John Eccles, broadcast the event over a nation-wide hookup.

About five minutes after 11 o'clock, the gun sounded and the lights were turned on as the dippers dashed for the river. The water was almost obscured by the horde of fishermen as they dipped for the tiny fish.

After about 10 minutes the more fortunate began to get out of the water with their catches. Almost as large a crowd was present for the 2 o'clock dipping.

Boyne City was full to overflowing with outsiders who came for the run. Cars from several surrounding states and many downstate counties were noticed on the streets.

Orville C. Atwood, secretary of state, and a number of other state officials attended the banquet and witnessed the dipping later in the evening.

H. O. Barden was chairman of the committee in charge of the event.

A smaller crowd attended the runs Sunday night when good catches were reported. It is expected the run will reach its peak about Tuesday evening.

County Streams Produce Smelt

While the center of activity was at Boyne City and East Jordan, practically every stream flowing into Lake Charlevoix produced a quota of smelt. Stover Creek, where the mouth was dredged to deepen the entrance, and Loeb Creek, both close to this city, provided good runs. Heavy catches were also reported at Horton and Advance Creeks near Boyne City.

BELLAIRE CRASH VICTIM SUCCUMBED HERE

William Ireland, Standish, Died Sunday at Charlevoix Hospital

William Ireland, 36, Standish motorcar dealer, was injured fatally Saturday evening when his car left the road three miles north of Bellaire on M-88 and crashed into a tree. He died of concussion and internal injuries in Charlevoix Hospital Sunday afternoon without having regained consciousness.

Robert Savage, 21, who was driving Ireland's car, was injured, but left the hospital here Sunday night.

Surviving Ireland are his widow, two daughters, 5 and 7; his mother and an older brother.

He and Savage had been smelt fishing in Boyne City and were going home, with a nice catch, through Alden, where they planned to see whether Savage's brother, a barber at Alden, had returned from a trip to the south. When they left Bellaire they took the Central Lake road by mistake. The accident occurred on a bad corner at the top of a hill, where the car left the road and struck a tree. The driver told Sheriff C. E. Rushton they were going about 50 miles an hour around the corner.

RAILROADS START DELIVERY SERVICE

FREE PICK-UP, DELIVERY ON LESS THAN CAR LOAD

Nation-Wide Order Took Effect on April 1st—Aimed at For-Hire Trucking Competition

Michigan's railroads came to earnest grips with the for-hire trucks today when they inaugurated free pick-up-and-delivery service on less than carload freight destined to any point in the United States. The new service is described by rail officials as equal to a 10 per cent average reduction in freight rates.

The new service, in effect April 1 nationally except for the Pacific Coast, is considered one of the most far-reaching and significant advances in recent American railroad history, and as the most important action taken to date to win back to the rails a large volume of traffic now moving over the longer distances by highway. Greater convenience, faster transportation schedules, more dependable deliveries and the advantage of a single transaction in addition to savings are claimed for the new service.

Under the new system the railroads will pick up merchandise freight at the shipper's door and deliver it at the receiver's door at no extra cost above the present regular freight rate. If either shipper or receiver, or both, elect to perform the trucking service an allowance of five cents per 100 pounds will be made at point of origin or destination or both. Under the new arrangement the railroads for a nominal fee also will collect charges on C. O. D. shipments. In this state the pick-up-and-delivery operation will be largely by independent truckers under contract with the railroads exclusively for this service.

The saving in freight bills under the new system will run between eight and 10 per cent and on some types of freight the savings will run as high as 20 per cent, rail officials declare. The resulting sharp increase in business is expected to more than offset the effects of this equivalent rate reduction.

BASKETBALL BANQUET EVENT OF THURSDAY

Excellent Dinner and Informal Program Sponsored by Pythians

Nearly 150 persons attended a banquet given for the Charlevoix High school basketball team and coaches by the Knigbts of Pythias at the Pythian hall last Thursday evening.

Supt. O. P. North presided as toastmaster during an informal program following an excellent chicken dinner. Short talks were given by the players and coaches as well as others in attendance. Judicious use of the "gong" was apparent.

The event was a very enjoyable one.

TOWNSHIP ROAD SYSTEM IS OUT

BECOMES DEAD AFTER 85 YEARS OF EXISTENCE

Counties of State Took Over Remaining Township Roads Today for Maintenance

Michigan's township road system passed out of existence this week after reaching the ripe old age of 85.

The 83 counties of the state completed the job Wednesday (April 1) of taking over the remaining township road mileage in the state. Out of 62,200 miles of township roads originally certified in 1931 to State Highway Commissioner Murray D Van Wagoner, 10,428 miles were left to be absorbed by the counties this week.

Abolition of the township road system finished an evolution in highway administration that started in 1931 when the Legislature enacted the McNitt township road law. The act provided that the counties take over the township road mileages at the rate of 20 per cent a year. A first-year appropriation of $2,000,000 was allocated to the counties to help them shoulder this burden. This amount was increased by $500,000 annually until the present annual appropriation is $4,000,000.

Although the adoption of township road mileage is now complete, the McNitt Act provides that the counties in 1937 take over streets and alleys in recorded plats outside of incorporated cities and villages. No provision is made to re-imburse the counties for these additions to their road systems. This clause will work a hardship on industrial counties of Lower Michigan where there are many subdivisions outside of city limits.

The law leaves the township highway commissioner, formerly among the most important of local officers, with an empty honor. The office is a constitutional one and a former attorney general has ruled that the election must be held but that no salary can be paid the township road commissioner.

As the township roads faded into oblivion, Commissioner Van Wagoner pointed out that problems arising from the enactment of the McNitt law will be one of the studies in the highway planning survey now in progress. He expressed the opinion that a number of recommendations for amendments to the law probably will be submitted to the Legislature.

The history of township roads in Michigan dates back to 1851 when the Legislature enacted a law authorizing any township to borrow or levy taxes up to $10,000 for roads. The McNitt Act has relieved local property owners of the tax burden.

HOME GARDENS ARE AID TO FARM PURSE

2600 Pounds Vegetables from Half Acre Will Feed Family of Five

Saving in the family food bill of as much as $700 can be made through careful cultivation of a small home garden plot less than one-half an acre in area, according to H. L. Seaton, instructor in vegetable gardening, horticulture department, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Fresh vegetables during the growing season and sufficient for canning and storing for a family of five have been successfully raised by many Michigan families in recent years, he says. Home gardens can be planted from an initial investment of $15 for seeds. In some instances, a small additional sum for fertilizer is necessary.

"Gardens should be planned to meet dietic needs," he says. "Almost all of the 2600 pounds of vegetables prescribed by nutrition experts as the annual need of a family of five can be raised on well-tended plots of from one-quarter to one-half acre."

Types of vegetables recommended are green or leafy vegetables, those in which fruit or seeds are eaten, and root and bulb crops. Equal amounts of each type should be planted to guarantee surpluses for canning and storing.

Interest in home gardens as well as in the "thrift garden" movement sponsored in many Michigan cities is increasing. Mr. Seaton will begin a series of weekly broadcasts at 1:30 p. m. Thursday, April 9, from WKAR Michigan State College station at East Lansing.

Two bulletins now available at the college bulletin department are Extension Bulletin No. 4 on the Home Vegetable Garden and Circular Bulletin No. 140 on Home Production of the Family's Food Supply.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Automobiles Show Registration Jump

With a total of 1,271,186 motor vehicles in the state equipped with 1936 plates or half year permits, on March 25, records of the Department of State clearly indicate the expected increase in total registration this year over 1935.

The total of 1936 plates and stickers sold thus far is nearly as large as the maximum registration of 1,349,951 for 1935, despite the fact that summer always brings thousands of new cars from salesrooms and from garages where they have been hibernating.

One of the most interesting trends shown by the statistics is that the use of half-year permits or stickers is definitely on the increase in Michigan. On March 25, more stickers had been sold than for all of 1935. On March 25 stickers totalled 426,102; there were 414,301 stickers sold in 1935.

EXPECT BONUS MONEY TO BUY FARM HOMES

Many Applications Being Received by Federal Land Bank

Soldiers' bonus money is going to be used to help buy a good many farm homes for World War veterans, the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul believes.

This conviction is based on applications for farms coming from its fieldmen in the four states where it operates, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota, and was emphasized by discussions with fieldmen at the recent conference in St. Paul, according to President Roy A. Nelson. Mr. Nelson said:

"Constructive, conservative use is going to be made of bonus funds by many former service men in the Northwest. It seems quite probable that more good will come of these payments than of payments made in number of years ago. The veterans are older and hence naturally somewhat more conservative, and there has been the added experience of the past few years which shows the relative security of a farm home compared with a home in an industrial city."

Citing the preliminary figures of the 1935 farm census, Mr. Nelson said:

"It appears that within the five-year period of 1930 to 1935 there has been an increase of almost 44,000 in the number of farm units in these four states. Farms under the census include tracts as small as three acres, but the significance of the figures lies in the fact that so many people have recognized the substantial character of farms and are returning to that way of living."

He said that many who are only renting farms are desirous of buying and among them is a considerable number of ex-service men who are planning to use their bonus money to help make a down payment, or to give additional capital for farm equipment and improvements.

FERRY SERVICE TO BE INCREASED IN SPRING

Will Operate Three Boats from July 1 to September 1

Ferryboat service on the Straits of Mackinac will be increased this spring, Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner announced last week.

He said auto traffic has increased 50 per cent during the last two years, necessitating improvement in the boat schedule.

One boat service will start on April 15, the second boat will be placed in operation May 1, and three boats will be run from July 1 to September 1.

New Federal Soil Conservation Program to Be Launched Immediately

All this week meetings have been scheduled at all Grange halls to present the soil conservation program to the farmers of Charlevoix county. Committees in each township will make a farm to farm survey for determining the crop acreage on which the soil conservation program is based.

B. C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent, spent Friday and Saturday in Lansing attending the state meeting for the presentation of this plan.

The Grange meetings scheduled for farmers to learn the details of the soil conservation program are as follows:

March 30—Wilson Grange Hall, 9:45 a. m.; South Arm Grange Hall, 1:45 p. m.; Horton Bay I. O. O. F. Hall, 8 p. m.

March 31—Marion Center Grange, 9:45 a. m.; Barnard Grange Hall, 1:45 p. m.; Deer Lake Grange Hall, 8 p. m.

April 1—Boyne River Grange Hall, 9:45 a. m.; Chandler Hill-Clark School, 2:30 p. m.

April 2—Rock Elm Grange Hall, 9:45 a. m.; Ironton Grange Hall, 1:45 p. m.

April 3—Maple Grove Grange Hall, 9:45 a. m.; Peninsula Grange Hall, 1:45 p. m.

Spraying Calendar Ready for Orchardists

The new 1936 spraying calendar prepared by Michigan State College specialists for orchard men, is now available at the county agricultural agent's office in Boyne City.

This pamphlet contains formulas for preparing all types of spray material. It also gives the corrective treatment for all kinds of fruit insects.

This booklet is indispensable to fruit men, and may be obtained from your county agricultural agent free of charge.

Charlevoix County 4-H Club News

The 32 4-H Clubs in Charlevoix county are now completing their winter projects and are looking forward to Achievement Day, which will be April 30 at East Jordan High school.

Mr. Wade, superintendent of schools at East Jordan, has very kindly consented to let the 4-H Club use the school for its exhibits. The first event of the day will be the wood identification contest, which will be open to all 4-H handicraft members. Each contestant will be required to identify 14 different varieties of Michigan woods. The two winners of this contest will win free trips to the Gaylord club camp where they will compete for free trips to the State Fair at Detroit. Some time has been spent with each club showing them how they can identify these woods. From 9:45 to 11:45 there will be a free show for all club members, after which a potluck lunch will be served. Beginning at 1:30 the regular 4-H Club program will begin.

During the week spent in this county it was very interesting to note the amount of interest shown, by the 320 club members, in their work. Quite a number of these members have already finished their projects.

Right after Achievement Day, organization of summer club work will start. The following are some of the projects that boys and girls may be interested in; canning, food preparation, calf, sheep, hog, corn, potatoes, garden, poultry, beans, and others.

At Boyne Falls we have a large group of boys interested in forestry. They have bought 160 acres nearby and are planning on properly thinning and cutting out the undesirable trees. They are also planning on planting a great many new trees. This project is very much worth while, and will be given support by the Forestry and the Conservation Departments which have shown their willingness to help the boys out in any way possible.

Seed Corn Should Be Tested

All farmers should be more careful than usual of their seed corn. The Michigan State College finds after hundreds of tests that much of the corn considered to be high quality is way below par. Much of it is as low as 50 per cent in test.

Without a doubt there is enough good seed corn in this county to take care of the situation, but all should be tested before being purchased. A simple way to do this is to take several thicknesses of paper thoroughly soaked. Spread the kernels on this, keeping them separate and then rolling the paper up. It is usually a good plan to take two or three kernels from 50 to 100 ears in order to determine the average. If a 90 per cent test is secured probably it is not necessary to make a year to year test. Usually in four or five days time the test may be read. You will find it to your own advantage to test your corn this year.

"Oh, but Joe, no! Not without a better—not without a line—

"Caroline!" she said, breathing fast. "She's—she's beautiful, yes. But she's older than he—much older. He told me so!"

"No, she's not as old as Larry. She's about thirty or thirty-one, Caroline. She's only two years younger than I am."

"She's older than you are! She's had two husbands! She wanted him because she knew I—she knew I—. . .

"I hate her," Tony said weakly, bending forward to rest her head against his own, as he knelt beside her, with one arm about her. "I hate her. I do."

Her voice broke into wretched tears. Weeping she got to her feet and began to pace the room, her knotted fingers at her lips.

"Oh, why didn't I think of this! It would have made it easier—it would have made it easier! Oh, Joe, I have no shame, to let you know I love him, when he loves her—and they're happy—they're going somewhere together in his car—they're having their wonderful time—!"

She sat down on the fireside settle and put her rocking head into her hands.

He saw her shoulders shake and knew that she was crying; suddenly, in a rage, she was on her feet again. "How dared he—how dared he do that!" she said, her eyes glittering dark blue in her white face. "How dares a man treat a woman who loves him that way! Ah, but she wanted him," Tony said, crumpling, speaking gently, hopelessly again. "She wanted him, and Larry's so kind—so generous—"

A silence, during which the man smoked and watched her. Then, suddenly, she looked up, spoke quietly, as if she were very tired:

"I'm sorry to treat you to these fireworks, Joe. You're—awfully kind to me. I'm all right now. I think maybe you'd better take me to Bendy's; I'll have to tell Bendy, and Alvin will smile his smug little whiskery doctor smile at what happens to girls who fall in love with married men.

"I'll get used to it after a minute. You do. Even when a man's arm is cut off, or his leg, they say he gets used to it like that—in a second. I wish I could hate Larry. I wish—"

For a moment her whole body was in revolt, as if touched by a hot iron, her arms flung up, her head thrown back, and her mouth opened as if to find breath.

"I couldn't do a thing like that to a dog!" she whispered, collapsing again. "I could not, Joe. It's me—it's me this is happening to; no, I couldn't do it to anyone! I'm sorry. I'm really all right now. I'll get my things. Bendy'll worry if I'm too late."

"No, you just lie there on the settle and think about it for a while, and I'll tell Brenda, if she telephones, that the company's leaving and that I'll bring you home. Lie there a while and get your breath, and you'll be all right."

His big hands punched pillows behind her back as Tony obediently stretched herself on the fireside seat. She lay there passive, her eyes on the fire, her breast still occasionally rising and falling on a great sigh.

"It doesn't somehow seem like Larry," Tony presently offered in a weak little voice.

"Larry was never what you thought he was."

"It hurts me somehow it hurts me horribly to have you say that."

"I suppose it does."

"Larry is the only man—the only one—who ever—whom I ever—" the girl began confusedly, and stopped.

"And that hurts me horribly, so honors are even," Joe said.

"It is impossible for me to believe that you think of me what I think of Larry," Tony presently recommenced. "We're all playing a lone hand in this life, aren't we, Joe?"

"I don't think of you what you think of Larry," Joe said flatly. Tony's ringed eyes moved to him in weary inquiry.

"Don't?"

"No. I know you, Tony, and you don't know Larry. I'm not knocking him, mind you," Joe said. "But I say you don't know him. I do know you. I know every lovely inch of you. I know that you're the woman for me, and that I'm the husband for you. We're alike. We like the same things. We talk the same language.

"You and Larry aren't alike. I'm not saying this to make you feel any better. I know you feel rotten tonight. And you will feel rotten; it'll take you a long time to get straight about it. But I say that you love—well, this place, and the ocean and the kitchen and Bendy's kids and the dogs, and all that. He doesn't. He's Lorenzo the Magnificent."

The girl laughed weakly; her face crinkled into tears.

"Oh, he is," she said in a whisper.

"Ruth was rich; Larry's probably inherited a fortune. She may have left a dozen legacies, but Gran was rich, and Ruth would have inherited Gran's money, and he gets it all, or certainly most of it. He's rich now; he likes it that way."

"Ah, that's not quite fair."

"Maybe not. But about things like that you and Larry never would have seen eye to eye."

Tony was not listening. Her long wet lashes glittering in the soft lamplight, she was looking thoughtfully at the fire.

"Oh, Joe, why did it have to happen this way? Why did I have to be the woman to live through this?"

There was a long silence.

"I don't know," said Joe then, pulling on his pipe, and Tony's unhappy little laugh died away into another long pause when neither spoke. Where his thoughts went the girl neither knew nor cared. To Tony all the world was composed of just two persons, a beautiful woman, slumbrous and jewelled in the exquisite thin robes of fine batiste and delicate laces that Caroline especially loved; a tall brown man with his arms about her.

"You women are strange," said Joe.

"Are we?"

"You bet your life you are."

"I suppose we are strange to men."

"You know—you know damn well that what you feel for Larry is excitement, curiosity. You think it would be thrilling to have him carry you off to a suite at the Fairmont hotel, make love to you."

"Thank you," Tony said drily, as he paused, pondering over his pipe.

"Well, isn't it true?"

"It is not true!"

"Knowing," Joe continued, as if there had been no interruption, "knowing that whatever lasts in marriage, that doesn't. Knowing that it can't last, it never does—whatever it is—that thrill that he gives women, that makes them say, 'I'd rather have him mean to me in that magnificent way of his, keep me waiting, despise me, throw me down, than not have him at all!'"

Tony swallowed; spoke lightly.

"Is that the way women feel to him?"

"You know it."

"I do not know it," she said, in a low, hurt tone. She lay silent, staring at the fire. After a while she stirred and said that she must go, and Joe making no protest, she pulled on her old gloves, and they went out into the cold sharpness of the night together. At the door she leaned against him.

"I wish I could stay here, alone with you, forever, and never see any of them—any of them, again!"

"Why don't you?"

"You could go into town on Mondays, Joe, and come back on Thursdays. I'd be completely happy alone with the dog and Rita. She'd come over and sleep nights if I was frightened!"

"Stay, if you like," Joe said.

"You're so tremendously comforting to me," said Tony, her eyes shut, her head resting against his shoulder for a moment. "I'm so sorry about all this!"

"I'm going up to town tomorrow early—about nine. Shall I stop for you?" he asked practically, after a moment.

"Will you? I think I'll not tell Bendy tonight. I'll wait until Alvin's gone tomorrow and tell her then. I'll have to face every one—Aunt Meg, Mary Rose; she'll pity me so that I'll want to kill her."

"Married!" Tony breathed to herself in an almost inaudible undertone, out of her own thoughts. On the trip to Brenda's house she did not speak again.

CHAPTER XXV

"Do you still feel that you want to see him again?" Joe asked. Tony's face dimpled as she looked thoughtfully down at the sand she was marking into even ridges with a bit of silvery smooth driftwood.

"Not as I did," she said, coloring a little as she smiled.

"Almost willing to take a chance that half your children will be Dutchy-looking little blonds?"

"Almost. I love Dutchy little blonds."

Joe lay silent for a while in the warm sand. Presently he said:

"Well, I imagine you'll have your chance soon."

"My chance?"

"To see him."

"Oh, yes, that. Now that your grandmother's dead they'll probably come West."

She fell to musing, and Joe pulled his cap a little further down over his eyes and appeared to dream.

"After the office yesterday this is heaven," Tony presently said. "Is there anything in the whole world more wonderful than an autumn sea and gulls, and waves coming in, and sunshine like this?"

"It's swell," Joe murmured inelo quently.

"Autumn sunshine," Tony went on after a space, "Pure and thin—and sad, somehow. Cosmos instead of lilacs, and figs instead of cherries, and that soft veil over the sea." And unexpectedly she concluded with vigor: "I adore it!"

Joe laughed lazily.

"You almost had me in tears, Tony. You were going on into the sere, the yellow leaf, your voice getting sadder and sadder. I thought you were going to end up with the death of Little Nell."

Tony laughed, too, a trifle shamefacedly.

"Well, I do love it—autumn." She meditated deeply. "Spring first," she decided, "then autumn. Then winter, and then summer."

"Summer last of all?"

"Oh, yes—don't you think so?"

"Well, I like corn on the cob."

"Yes, and peaches," Tony conceded. "But there's something so cocksure about summer."

"Winter's one long revel of dragging wood in, down here."

"And wet walks, and rain sluicing down, and pancakes for breakfast!"

"Not that you often touch them."

"I know. But I love that warm kitcheny smell of hot butter and sirup and hot cakes on a freezing morning."

"If they come through with the Rio offer—"

"'If they come through!' What nonsense! Why, they're begging you on their knees."

"Well, then, if I accept the Rio offer— No, but what do you suppose they eat for breakfast in Rio?"

"Coffee and melons and sour bread and fried chicken," Tony answered readily.

"Will you go to Rio with me, Tony?"

"Do you want me to, Joe?"

"Yo' knows ah do, honey."

"I reckon yo' does."

They basked on in the mild sunshine, and the lazy waves came punctually in a smother of emerald and ivory over the near-by rocks, spread in interlocking circles on the strip of sandy beach, and went away again, leaving the little pools brimming, and the silky purple and blue ribbons, weeds and mussel shells glittering and dripping.

"You're easy on my old eyes," the man said presently, glancing up.

"I love to have you think so. We ought to go up pretty soon; Bendy was going to telephone about dinner."

"I thought they had company."

"They have. But it was only Cliff and Mary Rose. And if Patricia was all right they said they might all come over."

"I hope nobody comes!"

They climbed the great ridges of rock up to the cliff level and were at the garden's end, where the new brick paths and the tall roses and chrysanthemums were rustling in the afternoon airs, and the slender beeches sent trim shadows across the lawn. In this setting, and with the descending sun flashing in every window, the square-cut house did not look too awkward; there was a pleasant air of green-and-white seaside hospitality about it and its open windows and awninged terrace.

"I love this house," Tony said, as they went in. "It was my escape in the darkest hours of my life from everything—even myself. I used to come down here from the office, beaten, broken, and the silence of it, and your not questioning me, not watching me. I'm very fond of you!"

In that last phrase she was addressing the fireplace; she laid her cheek against it. She had helped him build it.

"Do we need a fire?"

"We will, as soon as the sun goes down. We might as well, for if they're coming the room's bound to seem cool."

"You know, Tony," said Joe, on his knees with logs in his long brown hands, "you were bound to run into something like—like what you did run into. I wouldn't grudge it, if I were you."

"Grudge it?"

"Yep. I wouldn't let myself resent it, feel that I was out of luck falling in love with a man I couldn't have. If you hadn't done that you'd have married one of those fellows in the office. Did you ever think of that?"

She was in the deep leather chair, watching him seriously.

"I suppose that's so."

"It's so of every women like you; it has to be so. You were young in lots of ways, old in lots of ways, eager and impulsive and mad to live. You just had to run your head into something."

"I wonder," Tony said, frowning faintly, looking away.

"You changed for Larry; you grew up. You were—well, like those pictures in Bendy's book, when you first met him. You grew older and wiser and lovelier."

"And better and more beautiful!" Tony suggested in the pause.

"You know it's true. You're one of the successful women of San Francisco now. You're certainly one of the loveliest."

"Joe," Tony began, after a pause.

He flung down an armful of logs.

"Shoot."

"Do you suppose a person ever could come to be glad of—of anything like that—like what hurt me and humiliated me and made me hate myself and every one else?"

INTEREST IS SHOWN IN KIWANIS DEBATE

Will Argue Important Civic Question at Meeting Tuesday Night

Considerable interest is being manifest in a debate to be held by the local Kiwanis club at their meeting next Tuesday evening.

The topic is: "Resolved, that all of the east side of Bridge street be cleared of buildings and made a park, or 'water front street.'" O. P. North and Floyd A. Supp will argue the affirmative and Rev. W. W. Hurd and Dr. R. B. Armstrong the negative.

While these programs are usually humorous, this one is of a more serious nature, due to the fact that the proposition to be debated has been considered by many as a very desirable plan for the future of Charlevoix.

REGULATION SAME FOR TROUT SEASON

Earlier Opening Date Only Change Made In Fishing Laws

Except for the new opening date, which permits the angler to swing into action six days earlier this season, there are no new regulations for the trout fishermen to remember this year.

Trout fishing season officially opens on the last Saturday of April —the 25th—instead of May 1, the opening date last year. The minimum size limit on trout is seven inches; the daily catch limit and possession limit of any single species or combined species of, brook, brown and rainbow trout, 15.

All residents or non-residents over 18 years of age are required to buy a license to fish for trout in any of the inland waters.

OPEN MORE EMPLOYMENT OFFICES IN THE NORTH

To adequately serve all parts of Michigan, the National Reemployment Service is opening new offices in various parts of the State, according to Major Howard Starret, State Reemployment Director. Offices opened during the past week are located in Tawas City, Clare and Gaylord.

There is only one species of true rabbit in Michigan, the cottontail. The snowshoe "rabbit" or varying hare is not a true rabbit. Rabbits are chiefly crepuscular and nocturnal in their breeding habits.

MICHIGAN MAY HAVE BIG HIGHWAY PROGRAM

Plans Under Way for Greatest Year's Construction in History.

Michigan today faces the prospect of the greatest highway construction program for a single year in all its history.

If State Highway Commissioner Murrey D. Van Wagoner obtains approval of all his plans, more than $30,000,000 worth of highways, roads, bridges, and grade separations will be built in 1936. These plans have all been given final or tentative approval at Washington.

Such a program surpasses any previous record, even during the days of former Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck when the people voted a $50,000,000 highway bond issue.

The plans embrace:

$16,100,000 worth of projects now under construction, or to be placed under construction on the current $20,600,000 highway relief program. Approximately $4,500,000 worth of projects on this program have already been completed.

$8,000,000 for surfacing approximately 600 miles of tourist and farm-to-market routes with dust proof, oil-aggregate surfaces.

$6,000,000 for grading tourist and shoreline relocation roads. Many projects on this program are already under construction.

In addition to these plans the commissioner looks forward to the initiation of the Federal Aid program for the next fiscal year by July 1. The first contracts covering projects on this program are expected to be awarded shortly after that date.

The two programs mentioned above dealing with oil aggregate surfaces and tourist and shoreline relocations are to be carried out in cooperation with the Works Progress Administration

ICE FLOE SURVIVOR HAS FOOT AMPUTATED

Left Member Removed Friday, Other When Condition Permits

Clayton Brown, 25, survivor of the ice floe tragedy of early February, had his left foot amputated Friday. Dr. R. B. Armstrong, who performed the operation, had intended taking off both feet above the ankle to check the spread of gangrene, but Brown's heart condition became such that the operation was halted.

Brown froze his feet when, after floating 36 hours on Lake Michigan in sub-zero weather in a small skiff, he left two dead companions, Earl Cunningham, coast guardsman, and his father-in-law, Claude Beardsley, in the boat and stumbled and crawled 14 miles over broken ice to Goodhart on February 10. He has been confined to Charlevoix Hospital since that time.

Every possible effort was made to save Brown's feet, but bruises caused when he hit them with an axe handle to keep up blood circulation, complicated the condition. The right foot will be removed when his condition permits.

FERRY SCHEDULE AT STRAITS ADVANCED

Service Will Start 15 Days Earlier; 1935 Traffic Highest Peak

Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, today directed that the two-boat schedule on the ferry system at the Straits of Mackinac be advanced 15 days this year.

Two boats will go into operation May 1 under the commissioner's order. Under the old schedule only one boat operated until May 16. No other changes in the schedule were made by the commissioner.

The spring schedule at the ferries opens April 15 and will continue through April 30 with one boat in operation instead of May 15 as has been the case. Two boats will then be placed into service May 1 and this schedule will continue until July 1 when three boats will be used.

THREE NEW CONSERVATION FILMS COMPLETED

Deer, Forestry and State Park Activities Will Be Shown

Three new Conservation films will be made available by the Department of Conservation for free public use late in May. The films will show deer, forestry, and state park activities, respectively.

The film on deer management will contain recent views of starvation and over-browsing conditions in several northern Michigan deer-yards, artificial feeding experiments and pathological investigations. Timber stands and forestry practices will be shown in the forestry film, and park development and improvement work in the state park picture which is expected to be one of the best in the department's film-loan service.

FIGHT FIRES NOW ENGINEER WARNS

Best Time to Clean Stoves, Chimneys, Is in Spring.

Million of dollars in potential fire damage to Michigan farm homes in 1936 can be prevented by attention to defective stoves and chimneys in the next few weeks, according to C. H. Jefferson, instructor in agricultural engineering at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

"The best time to clean defective stoves and chimneys is in the spring after heating systems are no longer used, but most farmers pay no attention to defective flues until it is too late," he says.

Defective pipes and flues are the most important single cause of fires where the cause is known. Defects should be repaired carefully, he says.

"Chimneys disintegrate most quickly at the top owing to the combination of weather and hot gases," Mr. Jefferson states. "Such a condition is frequently found in old chimneys well below the roof.

"A crack in the chimney may be located by building a smudge fire and covering the chimney top with a wet board or sack. Cracks are found by the escaping smoke. Minor cracks can be filled with good cement mortar but if there are many cracks or if the bricks are eaten away, reconstruction of the entire chimney is advisable."

Other causes of farm fires are sparks on combustible roofs, careless use of matches, careless storage of gasoline and kerosene, defective heating equipment, faulty wiring and improper use of electric appliances, lighting, and spontaneous ignition of hay and other products.

BUILD NEW FISH TUG FOR CAPT. JOHN CROSS

Ulysses McCann Designer and Builder of 46-Foot V-Bottom Craft

Work is well advanced on the construction of a new fish tug for Capt. John Cross, well known local commercial operator.

The craft, designed and being built by Ulysses McCann, will be 46 feet long, with 12 foot beam. It is a modified V-bottom type which is becoming increasingly popular for commercial purposes due to appearance, seaworthiness and adaptability for increased speed. Construction is of white oak with cut frames.

It is expected the craft will be completed about April 20th. It will be powered with a 100 h. p. Diesel and will be capable of a speed of 12 miles per hour.

WEEDEN-RICE MARRIAGE SOLEMNIZED MONDAY AFTERNOON

A very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. W. W. Hurd at the Methodist parsonage Monday afternoon when Miss Velma A. Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd D. Rice, Park avenue, was united in marriage to Irn H. Weeden, local coast guardsman.

The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Paetschow, the former also of the coast guards.

The bride is well known locally since coming here with her parents from East Jordan. Mr. Weeden was recently transferred from the east to the local coast guard station.

The Ford industries are experimenting with building bricks made from dirt. One good way to test them would be to start an oldfashioned street brawl.

THREE ARE NAMED IN ANTRIM COUNTY SIFT

Judge Gilbert Finds Funds Misapplied, Supplies Unauthorized

Three persons, Harold F. Lamb, Dorothy Joynt and Dale Miley, were named in findings of a one-man grand jury investigation of welfare agencies in Antrim county, completed Monday by Judge Parm C. Gilbert.

In the findings of the grand jury filed with the county clerk of Antrim county Tuesday morning, Judge Gilbert says there is evidence to sustain the charge that certain public funds were misapplied, that certain supplies were furnished persons from the ERA warehouse without proper authorization, that in one instance actual theft occurred and that private individuals have received the benefit of welfare labor.

Lamb, county ERA administrator, and Miss Joynt, one of his employes, are named as being responsible for the payment of mileage when no such mileage was travelled. Miley is named in connection with the removal of surplus commodities from the Bellaire warehouse.

The next step in the case is up to Prosecutor Robert Dunham of Antrim county, who may or may not ask for warrants based on Judge Gilbert's findings.

CHEBOYGAN EDITOR COMMENTS ON BANQUET PROPOSED BY WICKERSHAM

While plans are still going forward for the banquet and program at Marion Center proposed by Arlo Wickersham to be financed from funds of the now defunct Farm Bureau, we reproduce the following interesting comment by Al Weber, editor of the Cheboygan Observer.

"A Charlevoix county farmer yelps for help, and that yelp is so strange and unbelievable it needs to be listened to. It appears, this farmer, now in distress, was one time secretary-treasurer of a farm bureau organization, and like most farm bureau organizations, particularly Cheboygan's farm bureau, it blew up, but this one wasn't broke as most of them were when the end came. There was a sum of money in the secretary-trensurer's hands and he has been holding that little bag of money until now he wants to get rid of it and he proposes to engage the ladies of a neighboring Grange to provide a great dinner, one that will feed every farmer in the county and this money is to pay for that dinner and a program he will provide. We'd just like to be a Charlevoix county farmer long enough to partake of that dinner and learn first hand the reaction of those people to the honesty and the fairness of this strange kind of a neighbor."

Farmers are rapidly signing up for the banquet and the affair promises to be a fine event.

IRONTON NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. George Hinson entertained a party of Detroit friends the past week-end.

Hildn Ogden has accepted a position at the Staley hardware in Charlevoix again this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dana, of Boyne City, are spending several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Prough.

A channel was broken through the ice Monday. The ferry began its regular trips for the season Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McDonough and Archie LaFreniere, of Beaver Island, were Sunday dinner guests at the Ogden home.

Charles Pierce has purchased the house on the Allen farm and is wrecking it. He intends building a house on his farm to replace the one lost by fire three weeks ago. The men of their community had a bee and helped him last Friday. The ladies prepared their dinner at the Ed Cunningham home.

Noel Thompson and Everett Spidle, our local WPA project leaders, have announced that the project work will be continued through the summer months. Plans are being made to finish the tennis court, and a baseball diamond will be made. They are also planning a marble tournament in a few weeks. Mr. Thompson will take the children on hikes to various places of interest. Two weeks ago they all enjoyed an all day hike over to his farm at Nowland's Lake. This recreational project is a fine program for our children and young people of the community, and each one should fully cooperate with our project leaders.

ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR A MARBLE TOURNAMENT

Ironton to Supplement the Winter WPA Recreational Sports

Everett Spidle, WPA recreational supervisor at Ironton, has announced that a county-wide marble tournament and model airplane and kite building will supplement the winter program sponsored by the Ironton school.

The new program is now being outlined. The start of elimination series and the date of the tournament will be announced later. Other features will begin at once.

Ironton was one of the most active centers of WPA recreational activities in the county last winter. Facilities for hockey and other winter sports were provided and a complete indoor athletic program was carried on. The new program planned promises to be equally as popular.

Symptoms of Tuberculosis

Tuberculosis is caused by living germs entering the body which multiply and cause the disease. The germ is so small that it can be carried into the body on specks of dust or in tiny droplets sprayed out during coughing or sneezing. A thousand can pass through a pinhole. The germ is passed from person to person in numerous ways. Careless people who have tuberculosis may spit on the floor or sidewalk and these germs mixed with dust may be blown about and breathed by the passers-by. Children play on the floor and sidewalk and soil their hands and playthings and later may carry the germs from their hands to their mouth. Germs may be left on a spoon or drinking cup and the next person who puts one of these articles into his mouth gives the germs a chance to get into his own body.

The most important and dangerous is the direct contact or touch of a person with another who has the disease, such as the tuberculous mother taking care of a baby. When the germs multiply or the body loses its fighting power, then the tide of battle may turn against the individual. This often happens at about the time boys and girls are in their 'teens or early twenties. Not only the tubercle bacillus can cause tuberculosis but hard times, overwork, strain, dissipation, discouragement and other burdens are the great allies of the germ.

There is no one symptom by which tuberculosis can be diagnosed but there are certain danger signals which should be given immediate attention:

Spitting of blood or blood-streaked sputum.

A cough or hoarseness that lasts longer than an ordinary cold.

Persistent or recurring pains in the chest.

A feeling of tiredness for which there seems to be no particular reason.

Steady unexplained loss of weight.

Poor appetite.

Chronic indigestion.

A daily rise in temperature.

Besides the thorough physical examination, the doctor now has even more certain means of diagnosing tuberculosis, namely, the X-ray. This is a tremendous help in finding early tuberculosis and will often show the disease before any symptoms whatever are noticeable.

One modern means of diagnosing used especially in detecting tuberculosis in children is the tuberculin skin test—a harmless test in the hands of a qualified physician. If the test is positive in the children, it is important to know whether the lungs have been attacked by the germs and in order to determine this, an X-ray picture is taken. Whenever tuberculosis is found, sanatorium care is usually advisable and as a rule is better than treatment carried out at home.

AT THE MOVIES

"Modern Times" Chaplin's Greatest

Two years in production, "Modern Times," Charlie Chaplin's new comedy, comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, April 4-5.

Half that time was taken for a complete preparation of the script. Shooting from a prepared script is an innovation with Chaplin, and is responsible for the fact that only ten months were required for the actual camera work instead of the usual eighteen months to two years.

"Modern Times," which has been pronounced Chaplin's greatest and funniest film to date, was also produced and directed by the comedian, who wrote the music as well.

Other familiar faces in the cast are Chester Conklin, Henry Bergman and Hank Mann. "Modern Times" is released through United Artists.

"Timothy's Quest" Comes to Screen

"Timothy's Quest," the new Paramount picture, opening April 8 at the Palace Theatre, brings to the screen the popular story of a waif's search for love. Young Dickie Moore portrays the title role.

The film re-creates all the "folksy" people of Pleasant Valley from Miss Vilda, Hitty Tarbox and Jabe Doolittle, to the villainous Doc Cudd and the impish Samantha.

Singing Cowboy Rides Two Horses In New Western

Dick Foran, star of First National's western pictures, has admired thoroughbred horseflesh ever since he was knee-high to a Shetland pony. In his latest musical melodrama of the Open Spaces, "Song of the Saddle," showing April 8-9 at the Palace Theatre, Dick gets a chance to ride two of the West's most unusual horses.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS
By Ann Page

Lamb comes to the fore as the best meat value of the week. Veal is very much higher and beef somewhat so. Fresh fish from the ocean is coming to market in increasing variety and quantity.

Lettuce is cheap and plentiful along with cabbage and spinach. Eggs are one of the best food values at this season as all the grades are excellent in quality and low in price.

Here are three menus for Sunday dinner at different budget level.

Low Cost Dinner

Pot Roast of Beef Potatoes
Carrots Onions
Bread and Butter
Vanilla Pudding with Bananas
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Roast Pork Apple Sauce
Browned Potatoes Green Beans
Bread and Butter
Orange Spanish Cream
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Fruit Cup
Broiled Beefsteak Parsley Potatoes
Buttered Asparagus
Hearts of Lettuce

* FOUNDATION PLANTING *

* * * * * * * * * * *

The first of a series of articles on improving the grounds

by

Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld

Almost every house in this country which has any space around it, has a few plants growing near the foundations. All too often such plantings do not accomplish their full purposes because the problem is not an easy one to solve. The typical house in American communities is an irregular structure raised on a foundation several feet above the ground. This makes a flight of five or six steps necessary to reach the front door. There are probably one or more porches across the front, side or back which add to the irregularity of the house. Most of these houses are high and narrow, and only rarely do they appear to be related to the ground around them.

What can be done to improve the appearance of such houses? The first step is to introduce plants which will relate the house to the lot making the two seem to be one unit rather than two separate parts. This planting will be a transition from the architectural character of the house to the free-growing trees and shrubs in the surroundings. Such planting will also cover some of the irregularities, and in this way give unity to the structure.

The second step is to accent the important parts of the house. Since the doorway is generally the most important feature, it should receive the greatest emphasis. This may be accomplished with shrubs of unusual or distinctive shape or leaves. For this reason evergreens are frequently used for this purpose. Mugo Pines, Arbovitae (commonly known as White Cedar), and some of the Junipers are among the better evergreens while Lilacs, Alpine Currants, and Barberry are good deciduous shrubs. All shrubs which are placed here must be reasonably neat and compact in their habit of growth since rough, irregular shrubs are seldom in harmony with the doorway of the house. The shrubs should also be attractive throughout the entire year, and should be hardy enough so that they will not be seriously damaged by the ice which may fall from the roof.

Next in importance to the doorway are the corners of the house for as we see the house from the street, it is there that the house meets the lawn and it is there that transition of shrubs is necessary. Planting at the corners should be less emphatic than that around the doorway in order not to attract undue attention. However, it may be both larger and higher because it is related to the whole mass of the house rather than just the entrance. This planting need not be as compact as that at the entrance, but greater harmony is secured if some of the same materials are repeated.

The shrubs which are used between the doorway and corners should be low, and grouped in relation to windows, chimneys, or any other features which may be there. It is better not to cover the entire foundation for in that case the houses seem to have nothing solid on which to stand. The use of flowers in this space is seldom satisfactory because the period during which they are attractive is very short, the character of the house demands plants which are larger and of more solid character.

Every house has a distinct personality which should be carefully considered. The personality of the house is just as distinct as that of the owner. There are different designs, sizes, colors, and materials. Just as all people do not dress alike, but choose their clothes according to their individual characteristic so all houses should not have the same sort of foundation planting. It is necessary to bring out different traits and to emphasize different points in our clothing, and there is a similar problem in planting foundations. No single scheme or even a dozen schemes will be sufficient for planting the houses in even a small town. Each house presents a new problem and demands a new solution. These questions might be asked:

Is your house too high in general appearance? It can be made to appear lower by using tall shrubs or small trees. Well placed Lombardy Poplars or Arbovitae are valuable tall plants for use near such houses.

Is your house low and spreading? In such case vertical accents such as Lombardy Poplars or Red Cedars will give a pleasant contrast while low spreading materials such as Barberry, sprending Cotoneaster or Mugho Pines will harmonize with the mass of the house.

Is your house built of rough stucco or stone? If so, plants with large leaves and coarse branching habits such as Dogwood, Hydrangea, and Strawberry Bush will be in harmony.

Is your house of painted wood? This type of house suggests plants with smaller leaves and finer branching such as Barberry, Alpine Currant, and Cotoneasters.

Is your house informal or irregular in character with varying roof levels and masses? For this type of house relatively heavy foundation plantings of irregular shrub masses may be used.

Is your house formal or symmetrical in design? A very few carefully chosen plants is the best solution for houses of this type. If the house is balanced around a central doorway, the planting should be the same on both sides.

Some of the common practices in foundation plantings to be avoided are:

1. Foundation plantings should not be contiouous. These cover the entire foundation giving the house an unstable appearance. Allowing foundation to shnw through at intervals adds variety and interest.

2. Foundation plantings should not be entirely of one material. The many houses planted with Spirea alone are examples of the monotony and hard uninteresting effect which this gives. It does not emphasize any of the features sufficiently.

3. Foundation plantings should not use too many different shrubs. This is the opposite extreme from the practice mentioned above. Foundation plantings are for the purpose of improving the appearance of the house, and should not be plant museums.

4. Overlooking the character of the house. All plants will not be in harmony with all houses. Some are rough, some are refined; some are tall, some are low. The essential idea is to maintain a unity between the house and the planting. Every choice should be determined by this end.

In no case does the planting have to necessitate much expense. Even two plants, one on each side of the door, will make a beginning. More may be added from time to time, and the improved appearance of the house will be an ample reward for the small outlay of expense and labor.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

CONDITIONS IN DEER TERRITORY DEPLORABLE

L. A. Davenport, of Conservation Dept., Reports Heavy Losses

The following information, given the Traverse City Record-Eagle by L. A. Davenport, of the Conservation Department's game division, gives a vivid account of the results of over-browsing in areas of heavy deer concentration throughout the state. Mr. Davenport's statement follows:

"Conditions to the east, the north and the south are deplorable," said Mr. Davenport. "Working out of district headquarters at Atlanta last week, we picked up twenty-five carcasses of starved deer and trucked them in for the pathologists to work on. We did not take all the carcasses we found in any one yarding area, either.

"As far south as Gladwin and down into Midland county we are finding herds severely reduced by starvation."

Conservation officers point out that, while deer are starving in many localities, other areas, with excellent winter range, are devoid of deer populations, and that little can be done about it. Deer are home lovers, it is said, and will remain in familiar surroundings and starve rather than try a new location. This is borne out by reports from other parts of Michigan and from other states, notably Pennsylvania. Near McMillan, for instance, deer had browsed themselves out of food in one place and refused to cross a right-of-way on the other side of which was abundant cedar, their winter staple.

In Pennsylvania thousands of deer have perished in valleys when a few minutes travel would have taken them over ridges to untouched food supplies.

WEEK OF WORK IS WORTH A FORTUNE

Million Dollars Can Be Added to State Farm Machinery Value

Michigan farmers can save at least one million dollars and extend the life of their farm machinery by from five to ten years if needed repairs are made before April 1, according to Professor H. H. Musselman, agricultural engineering department, Michigan State College.

One week's work during the slack season when the farmer's time is least needed for productive farm work is all that usually is necessary to put farm machinery in order for the season and save all the waste and trouble from breakdown during the busy season, Professor Musselman says.

"Too large a percentage of Michigan farmers neglect to repair their farm machinery in time," he says. "As a result breakdowns of all sorts occur in the field with the loss of valuable time and additional repair costs."

Professor Musselman estimates that Michigan farm machinery is worth $105,000,000, of which about $10,000,000 is purchased annually. He sets minimum annual savings at 10 per cent of the annual purchases if repairs are handled in the slack season.

USE OF COAST GUARD RADIO FREQUENCY BY SMALL BOAT OWNERS

Almost a year ago, Coast Guard Headquarters, Washington, D. C., received a request from a yachtsman for permission to call the Coast Guard on the radio frequency of 2670 kilocycles in case his vessel was in distress or needed assistance on a cruise she was about to undertake.

This frequency is one of the government frequencies, being assigned by executive order to the Coast Guard for intercalling purposes. The yachtsman was advised that his request was logical and that in an emergency he might call on that frequency and the Coast Guard would not.

Headquarters then addressed inquires to yachtsman, yacht clubs, tug boat companies, etc., requesting their reaction to this procedure and the general consensus seemed to be that this was another step toward making the sea safe for the smaller boatman who were radio equipped but not equipped to transmit on the international distress frequency of 500 kcs (410 kcs on the Great Lakes).

CONSIDER IDENTIFICATION TAG FOR HUNTERS

Plan May Be Used Next Fall During Deer Hunting Season

Numbered identification tags, bearing numerals corresponding to those on the hunting license, will be worn by all deer hunters in Michigan next fall, if favorable action is taken by the State Conservation Commission at its April meeting.

The matter was discussed at the March session of the commission, but held over for final action.

Hunters would be required to wear the tags on the back of the hunting coat. Similar tags have been in use in Pennsylvania for several years and have aided substantially in reducing deer-law violations.

Reinforcements from Michigan

Flood waters rage . . . dams break . . . water stands ten feet deep in the business section of a great city.

Local telephone circuits are flooded and temporarily damaged. The Bell System mobilizes. From neighboring companies — including Michigan—come squads of trained and tested telephone men. The Bell expeditionary forces land—and in a short time they are able to echo that famed message of the Marines: "The situation is well in hand."

Only one thing made this possible. That is the fact that Bell System practices and equipment are standard the country over. Consequently, when the Bell System mobilizes in an emergency, it is not necessary for reinforcements from other companies to ask: "What kind of equipment is it?" They merely say: "Where is it?" and go quietly and efficiently to work on familiar ground. This is true in Pittsburgh today where the Michigan Bell Telephone Company is contributing part of the emergency force. It was true in Michigan—in 1922 and 1929—when reinforcements from other Bell System companies came here to aid in the work of restoring communications temporarily destroyed by the sleet storms of those years. Without a nation-wide force of systematically trained men, without standard equipment in every associated company, some of the things which Bell men have accomplished swiftly as part of their routine duties would have caused confusion and endless delay.

Whenever you lift a Bell Telephone receiver, tremendous resources in men, organization and equipment are at your command. And there are times when it is impossible to measure the value of telephone service except in terms of life and death.

SEEK APPLICATIONS FOR PHEASANT EGGS

Conservation Department Will Have 20,000 for Distribution

Formal applications for free pheasant eggs are now being received by the Department of Conservation from individuals and sportsmen's organizations desiring to hatch pheasants for release this year.

The game division of the department already has received requests for a total of 4,000 eggs. Formal applications should be submitted at once and will be considered in the order in which they are received at the Lansing office.

Game men expect that approximately 20,000 eggs will be available at the state game farm near Mason again this season. These eggs are available to individuals and groups in proven pheasant territory for hatching and release.

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p 525): "Everything good or worthy, God made. Whatever is valueless or baneful, He did not make, - hence its unreality."

FINE CONCERT PROGRAM ARRANGED FOR APRIL 5

Numbers by City and School Bands to Feature Stephen Foster Songs

A musical treat of beauty and novelty will be presented at the school gymnasium Sunday evening, April 5th at 8:15 o'clock by the Charlevoix city band, joined by the school band in a grand finale. The concert will be under the direction of Robert B. Magor.

The combined bands will play a new and very effective arrangement of Stephen Foster's Melodies by Luis Guzman of the United States Marine band, which is sent to Mr. Magor gratis from Foster Hall through the generosity of J. K. Lilly, whose love for Foster's songs made possible the presentation of this medley. "Old Folks at Home," "Glendy Burke," "Gwine to Run All Night," "Hard Times Come No More," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Black Joe," and several others will be heard. The simplicity and sincerity of Foster's songs have endeared them to the hearts of the people of this country.

In observance of Palm Sunday, a cornet solo, "The Palms," by Faure, will be played by Robert B. Magor, accompanied at the piano by Alta Lynn Magor.

The program will be interspersed with light and novelty numbers to make the evening one of enjoyment and interest. The public is cordially invited to attend this free concert.

You will love to make an effort, to sacrifice, "Climb the stairs and get a blessing."

Apparent reluctance of the weather man to open up with seasonable spring weather has resulted in a week of sub-normal temperatures and little, if any, advance toward summer. Intermittent snow throughout the past week has disappeared under the sun's rays, when it appeared, but long-awaited south winds have been missing.

CITY MOURNS DEATH OF FRANK PARTRIDGE

Former Coast Guard Captain, City Official, Died Last Saturday

Charlevoix lost a highly respected citizen last Saturday in the death of Frank Partridge, 67, retired coast guard captain and city official, who succumbed to heart attack following an extended illness.

Deceased was born January 28, 1869, in Birmingham, England, and came to this country as a youth. He served 30 years in the Coast Guard service. He was stationed at Michigan City, Ind., and Sleeping Bear Point before becoming captain of the Charlevoix station on March 10, 1913. He retired from the service on November 27, 1925. Mr. Partridge had been supervisor of the second ward five years and was the Republican nominee at the primary election.

Surviving are the widow and four children, Alice, Dorothy, Marjorie, and son, Francis; also two brothers, Harry, of Whitehall, and John, of Muskegon, and a sister, Elizabeth, residing in England.

Rev. Edward S. Doan, rector of the Petoskey Episcopal church, conducted services at the home at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Masonic rites were observed. County offices were closed during the funeral and officers and fellow supervisors attended the services.

BUSINESS ORGANIZATION UNDER WAY

INITIAL STEPS ARE TAKEN AT MEETING WEDNESDAY

Committee of Seven Appointed to Draw Up By-Laws Will Report at Second Session Tonight

Initial steps toward reorganization of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce were taken at a meeting held last Wednesday evening at the council chambers.

S. M. Rose, vice-president, presided at the session, which was attended by a fairly representative group of business men.

Following discussion of several proposals for reorganization, a committee of seven, composed of Arthur L. Fitch, E. J. Edwards, Charles H. Emrey, Harry A. Craig, Clarence N. Wood, Harley I. Ochs and Joseph M. Foster, was named to draw up a set of by-laws for the new body. This committee was instructed to report at a meeting to be held on Wednesday evening of this week, at which time the by-laws will be adopted or amended in accordance with the views of those attending.

Meeting with perhaps the greatest approval was a plan to elect officers as in the past, but to vest the control with a board of directors, whose members would be chairmen of standing committees.

Regardless of the final plan to be adopted as a foundation for the revived organization, an initial step has been taken and, in view of the enthusiastic response shown, it is believed a live, workable body will be the ultimate result.

MINISTERIAL ASSN. MEETING HERE MONDAY

Fine Luncheon and Program Enjoyed at the Baptist Church

The Little Traverse Bay Ministerial Association met Monday noon in the Baptist church with a good attendance.

The program, following a fine luncheon served by the women of the church, consisted of a "spiritual retreat." Before luncheon a devotional service was conducted by Rev. J. W. Alexander. Following the business session, Rev. Peter Koopman, Rev. W. A. Eley and Rev. J. N. Booth gave addresses appropriate to the season. The program closed with a communion service, served by Rev. G. R. Parker and Rev. C. W. Stewart.

The whole service was very impressive and spiritually helpful. The next meeting will be held May 4 in the Central Lake Methodist church.

BERGEON VICTOR IN MONDAY'S ELECTION

GIVEN 190 PLURALITY FOR MAYOR OVER DEMOCRATIC OPPONENT, ROBERT F. SLOAN

All Republican Candidates for City and Ward Offices Carried to Victory by Waves of Party Straight Votes—Bergeon Carried All But First Ward

Following a precedent which has been unbroken for many years, Republican nominees for city and ward offices were elected by comfortable majorities at Monday's general election.

Arthur Bergeon, heading the ticket for mayor, was returned to that office after an absence of three years by a majority of 190 votes over Robert F. Sloan. Bergeon carried all but the first ward.

Robert E. Rife was re-elected city treasurer by a margin of 328 votes over Theodore Cooper, Democrat. Ray S. Hamilton was unopposed for city clerk.

In the first ward Donald Swinton defeated Charles Hamlin for supervisor by 74 votes. In the second ward, Milton Block and E. J. Kibbe, candidates for supervisor and alderman, respectively, were winners over William F. Meyer and Percy J. Moran. Block's name substituted that of the late Frank Partridge for supervisor. George W. Weaver was the third ward choice for supervisor over Alonzo Powers.

The winning candidates were swept to victory on a wave of Republican votes. Straight Republican ballots out-numbered the straight Democrat by a margin of 462 to 68 in the city.

OBSERVE GOOD FRIDAY

In conformance with a precedent established several years ago under the sponsorship of the Association of Commerce in cooperation with local religious societies, Charlevoix business places will be closed between the hours of 12 and 3 on Good Friday.

BEAUTIFUL PROGRAM ARRANGED FOR FRIDAY

Local Singer Appears in Several Fine Numbers at Methodist Church

According to the old custom of over 20 years standing, a fine program in commemoration of the crucifixion of Jesus will be given at the local Methodist church, on Good Friday, from 1:30 until nearly 3 o'clock. This is the time that for a number of years the Association of Commerce has recommended that the stores be closed. To introduce variety, the service will be somewhat different from those in recent years. The church will be in only semi-darkness, for the dramatic effects of the play. The service will be in three parts, as follows: I. The Worship. II. The Confirmation. III. The Commemoration.

Features of the service will be two solos by Mrs. Helen Martin Krieghoff, who has exercised excellent interpretative judgment in selecting, to portray the death, "Dinanzi Crocefisso," by LaFarge ("Before the Cross"). The words of the song were written by the Princess Gabriele Wrede. And to portray the victory over death, "Hosanna," by Dilice-Dole. Also the play, presented by seven characters, "In Pilate's Hall," in which Pilate's wife and the soldiers appear, and confirm the strange report that He had risen.

The beauty and solemnity of this fine service will be greatly marred by any one coming in late. Please note this! There will be an Easter collection—as no special collection will be taken Sunday. See also "Church Notes" for special announcements.

WPA REPAIR PROGRAM STARTED ON SCHOOLS

Extensive Program Will Improve High School and Grade Buildings

High school and grade school building repairs and improvements, a WPA project sponsored by the board of education, is under way with 15 men at work.

The program includes a new concrete floor in the high school basement, converting a portion of the coal bin into two store rooms, painting of five rooms and corridor in the grade building, plastering the passage under the gymnasium.

Future plans, according to Supt. O. P. North, include insulation of the ceilings of the senior high school with glass wool, opening of every room in this building to ventilation, and painting the brick exterior to conform with the gymnasium.

ANNOUNCE DATE FOR ANNUAL TROUT EVENT

Kalkaska has announced its annual trout carnival to be held there Saturday, April 25.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICES APRIL 10TH

PROGRAM TO BE HELD AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

Service Follows Closely Plan of Previous Years With Five Speakers Giving Addresses

The annual Good Friday service will be held this year at the Baptist church, beginning at 1:15 o'clock.

The plan of the service is very similar to that of former years. There will be five speakers, each to be allowed about 15 minutes. The public is requested to enter and leave during the singing of hymns. During the addresses the doors will be closed.

The service this year is the sixth annual and, judging from the response last year, the union effort is growing in enthusiasm. The service theme is: "That Strange Man Upon His Cross."

Following is the program:

1:15-1:25 — Prelude, Ruth Ann Dowd; devotional service, Rev. W. H. Rauch.

1:25-1:45—"His Strange Willingness to Be Crucified," Rev. W. H. Rauch.

1:45-2:05—"His Strange Prayer of Forgiveness for Those Who Crucified Him," Rev. Peter Koopman, of Atwood.

2:05-2:25—"His Strange Conversion of the Man With Whom He Was Crucified," Rev. I. Scherpenisse.

2:25-2:45—"His Strange Cry of Dereliction," Rev. G. R. Parker.

Benediction.

INLAND LAKE FISHING CLOSES APRIL 30

Game Fish are Allowed "Breathing" Spell Until June 25th.

The millions of gamefish in the inland lakes of Michigan will soon be getting their annual "breather."

To protect the fish during the season in which they nest and reproduce a new crop of "keepers" for the angler, state law requires the closing of a majority of the inland lakes of the state on April 30.

From April 30 until June 25 no manner of fishing will be legal in any of the inland lakes of Michigan that have not been officially designated as "pike" lakes or "trout" lakes.

M. S. C. SPEAKER HERE APRIL 23RD

JOSEPH JENSEN TO TALK ON VALUE MILK IN DIET

Appearance in County Schools Possible Through Cooperation of the District Health Department

Joseph Jensen, representing the extension service of Michigan State College, has arranged with B. C. Mellencamp, county agent, and with Albert Renwick, dairy inspector with the District Health Department, and through them with the superintendents of schools at Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Boyne Falls, to give a talk at the several schools on the values of milk in the diet.

The schedule calls for Mr. Jensen's appearance at Charlevoix on Thursday, April 23, at 8:45 a. m.; East Jordan at 11:15 a. m.; Boyne City, 1:20 p. m.; Boyne Falls, 2:30 p. m.

Milk is a food which no one should do without because it contains so many elements of a healthful diet. It is important particularly that growing children have plenty of milk. It is especially needed for good teeth and bones as milk supplies in almost ideal amounts minerals that go into the composition of teeth.

Milk is always a good investment even when very little money can be spent for food. A quart of milk of average richness supplies from two-thirds to three-fourths of the total energy required per day by a year-old child; about one-half of the energy needed by a child of five; and about one-fourth of that needed by a man moderately active. One cup of milk has about the same energy value as two and a half eggs.

Practically all the elements required by the body, except roughage and certain of the vitamins, are found in milk.

A few suggestions are in order relative to the home care of milk:

1. Before opening the bottle, wash it off under the faucet and wipe it dry with a clean cloth. Then be careful to remove the cap with a clean instrument.

2. If part of the milk in a bottle is used, do not replace the cap, but invert a clean tumbler over the neck of the bottle and at once return the bottle to the refrigerator.

3. Never let milk stand in the open room or on the doorstep. Have a place for it in the coolest part of the refrigerator, and keep it there.

4. Always keep the milk clean, cold and covered.

5. Milk bottles should never be taken into the sickroom, or be used for any other purpose than to hold milk. They should always be rinsed in cold water, then washed and scalded before they are returned to the milkman.

PLAN TO RESTORE DEER YARDS IS CONSIDERED

Conservation Department to Plant Deer Food in Several Areas.

To aid and speed the recuperation of over-browsed deer-yards in the Luther-Baldwin forest area and the Crawford Game refuge, the Department of conservation has asked the assistance of CCC workers for a series of deer-food planting projects for this spring.

The projects will be conducted on an experimental basis and only hardwoods will be planted. The plantings will be checked by department investigators regularly to determine their capacity for growth in the type of soil planted and whether they have been browsed or browse-killed by deer.

In the Molasses river area northwest of Bay City plantings of hardwood types will be made to increase food supplies in that area in preparation for a possible increase in the numbers of deer.

TEMPERANCE UNION TEA A PLEASANT AFFAIR AT METHODIST CHURCH

Mesdames Bartholomew, Dickie and Nelson served the tea for Group No. 4.

ELLSWORTH

And everybody is eating smelt.

Next Friday evening, at 8 p. m., Good Friday services will be held in the Christian Reformed Church.

The past few weeks the town has been in the parlance of the day—"busy" with salesmen, but the situation at present has been greatly changed.

The A-G Stores of this neighborhood put on a cooking school last week Wednesday, and it was well attended. Many of the ladies found new ways to do things, maybe, much to the delight of friend husband; also, several won prizes.

We are sorry to report the passing of one of the old settlers, C. Van Straten, who was buried last Thursday at the Ellsworth cemetery. Mr. Van Straten was a few months over 70, one of the original investors in the canning factory here when it was first organized. He is mourned by the immediate family, his widow, a daughter and son, as well as two grandchildren who made their home with him since infancy.

Friday evening a carnival was held at the Ellsworth school house, and what a time it was — everybody seemed to have had a very good time, and no wonder; the teachers and scholars under Mr. Kliener, the superintendent, really outdid themselves in games and plays, which started with a one act play, "Short Circuit Court," which was a scream; then a side-splitting "Shadow Show," side shows, and unusual sights; a boxing match of three rounds which was very lively, followed by a basketball game, by a "comedy gang," played with a football. Of course, plenty of refreshments were on hand—pies, sandwiches, coffee, candy, etc. It really was an evening of rare entertainment, and the profit for the school was well over $60. At the school carnival, Jean Eisenberg was chosen queen.

Everybody is talking about the weather.

Mrs. A. J. Bolhuis spent the week-end with her aunt, Mrs. Himebaugh, of Charlevoix.

Joe Bottema, of Grand Rapids, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. J. Bottema.

Sanford Matchett spent a few days last week with his sister, Ruth Matchett, in Lansing.

All who attended church Sunday were pleased by the special musical number by John Berry, of Central Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bradford and children have moved from Detroit to their new home on the Burns farm.

The Misses Jennie Klooster and Lucy Brock returned Saturday from Detroit, where they have been employed this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brock, of Detroit, motored up from Detroit Saturday for a visit with their relatives in Barnard and Charlevoix.

About 70 farmers attended the soil conservation meeting at the Grange hall last Tuesday and report a very interesting and profitable meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Stoel and daughter, Leonn, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stoel and Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Warner were Sunday afternoon and evening guests at the Clyde Smith home.

The Home Extension Club will meet with Mrs. Guy Stutzman next Tuesday for the lesson on "Making the Farm Feed the Family." Everyone interested is welcome. Potluck dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Ogden and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherman were Sunday dinner guests at the Lewis Brown home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Brown and son, of Petoskey, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brown were Saturday evening guests at the Lewis Brown home.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Moore, of Charlevoix, were guests of the latter's son, Oakley Saunders, and family, last Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Moore have been spending the winter in Florida.

Gilbert Holland passed away last Friday at the county infirmary, where he had been making his home the past two weeks. Burial services were at the Brookside cemetery in Charlevoix, Sunday afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid Society enjoyed an all day meeting last Thursday with Mrs. Grace Brock. Twenty-four ladies were present, with Mrs. E. R. Jones, of Norwood, and Mrs. Harry Ladd and Mrs. Carrie Bird, of Charlevoix, as guests. Mrs. Ladd read parts of the book, "Why Be a Mud Turtle," which we all enjoyed. This week Thursday the ladies who quilt will meet in the afternoon with Mrs. Sam Alexander and the other members will sew carpet rags, etc., and will have a potluck dinner with Mrs. Lewis Brown.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Old Records Trip Luckless Drivers

While it is generally realized that the secretary of state is keeping a file of the traffic violations of every motor vehicle operator in the state, virtually no one in Michigan realizes that the court and police records of this state are today being dredged so as to record every traffic violation committed by every operator since 1931.

Even more significant than the building up of the violations file from current reports, is the fact that literally hundreds of drivers are being tripped up by their past records — which the state is just finding out about. Records are being searched from May 1, 1931, when the present operators' licensing act went into effect.

An average of 500 applications for renewal of operators' license are being rejected weekly by the Department of State on the basis of the driving history of applicants as revealed by the already bulky records of the violations file. Most of those whose applications are denied, do not, as is their right, appeal to the board composed of representatives of the attorney general, the commissioner of public safety and the secretary of state. Appeals are heard by local boards: police represent the state police; prosecutors represent the attorney general; Department of State investigators represent the secretary of state.

Casual inspection of the violation file shows that some drivers have been ruled off the road as the result of discovery of as many as 40 and 50 violations or convictions of traffic offenses on their local records. Conviction reports and complete violations records for virtually every driving offense save overtime parking, are being recorded for use against drivers with poor records.

The inspection of local police and court records is being done by young men employed by the National Youth Administration, under the supervision of the Michigan state police, in conjunction with local peace officials. More than 1400 young men are working in 283 towns and villages copying records which are compiled at the state headquarters State Police post at East Lansing and forwarded to the Department of State.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" will be the subject of the Lesson - Sermon in all Christian Churches throughout the world on Sunday, April 12.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (James 5:15): "And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 1): "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God, —a spiritual understanding of Him, and unselfed love."

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Poultry Profit Hinges On Care

Poultry flocks in the state maintained either for commercial production of eggs or to supply the household pay profits or require "board bills" according to feeding methods and ability to lay. Proof of the importance of feed and breeding is found in 1935 cost of production records of 76 flocks by K. T. Wright and A. L. Leonard, farm management department, Michigan State College.

Costs ranged from $2.05 to $3.02 per hen for a year. Those poultrymen who fed a better balanced ration and had better breeding in their flocks, obtained greater production at a cost per dozen eggs of 17 cents as compared to low production for other poultrymen which forced costs up to 22 cents per dozen.

In Charlevoix county, according to County Agricultural Agent B. C. Mellencamp, poultry adds much to cash income and to the food supply for farm homes.

Use of lights to stimulate feed consumption and get greater production per hen has value, according to Wright and Leonard. Fifty of the 76 farms in the survey used light and made an average of 12 cents more profit per hen than those not using lights. Hens laid 11 more eggs each, yet light costs were but 1.4 cents per hen.

Flocks averaging 112 eggs per hen showed a net profit of 41 cents per hen, compared to flocks producing 214 eggs per hen with a net profit of $1.40 per hen for a year. The most efficient producers used 4.6 pounds of mash and scratch feed per dozen eggs, while the least efficient used 7.7 pounds, making the feed cost five cents a dozen higher. In addition to having more efficient layers, the more successful poultrymen seemed to prefer light breeds, kept fowl yarded, fed liquid milk, wet mash, green feeds and followed better practices.

Arlo Wickersham Elected President of Radish Seed Growers' Ass'n

An important meeting was held recently by the Northwestern Michigan Radish Seed Growers' Association at Marion Center. This group of farmers have organized themselves for the purpose of developing higher quality seed and selling their own product to better advantage than under the old contract system.

During the last year over 16,000 pounds have been sold for the members by your county agent who is acting as secretary and treasurer until such a time as the organization is well along to success. Through countless trials and from several years of development this seed has now proved itself to be unequalled by any seed produced elsewhere.

Unable to devote the necessary time to this project, it was voted to select the Grand Rapids Growers, Inc., as our agent in all sales. The organization will continue to develop their own seed, to put in a nursery plot from which will be taken the most typy globes for transplanting. Through their national advertising program it is expected that the attention of seedsmen will be drawn to this small group of Charlevoix county farmers.

At the election of officers, Arlo Wickersham, D. E. Ingalls and B. C. Mellencamp were elected as president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer respectively.

EXCESSIVE DRINKING

Excessive drinking has reached such proportions in the District of Columbia that an ebriate farm for habitual drinkers is being considered.

"There is no questioning that the district should have such an institution," says Sanford Bates, director of the Federal Prison Bureau.

According to the Washington Star the expense has been estimated at $200,000 for the hospital and $87,000 a year for operating expenses. This would care for a daily average of 200 patients.

Governor Lehman has proposed a somewhat similar project in New York State. He advises the setting up of camps similar to the CCC, to which to send men when arrested for intoxication.

Judge Gitelman, of the Rochester City Court, in advocating the governor's proposition, said: "Sending a man to jail for drunkenness solves no problem. I believe we must put him out of doors in an environment away from drink."

This alloyed oil goes beyond any oil-film protection

Don't laugh . . . Somewhat as a beauty expert youthifies complexions, Conoco Germ Processed oil can do a youthifying job inside your engine.

Because it's alloyed — under patents! —this different oil really changes the character of your engine's working surfaces. The cylinders, pistons, valve gear, and any bearings of any type can actually surface themselves with this alloyed oil. It doesn't merely go ON, like an everyday oil film. It goes IN. Attaches itself. Combines. Makes a slippy, durable skin of oil-filled metal, entirely in addition to the extra toughness and heat-resistance of the Germ Processed oil-film.

Protection in duplicate! You can count it up. And you can't race it away or burn it away, or cake it into carbon, on the most tempting days ahead of you. In an old or new car you can change your whole idea of a good day's run, by changing to Conoco Germ Processed oil—The ALLOYED Oil. Continental Oil Company.

"I think," Joe said, standing panting on the hearth, looking down at her, "I think that' just one of the things one might be glad of."

"A la Browning," Tony suggested. "Then welcome each rebuff that turns earth's smoothness rough.' "

"Exactly—a la Browning. And a la every one who ever really grew up. Larry's never really grown up, you know, and neither has Caroline.

Tony was not listening. Her eyes, fixed in reluctance and apprehension, were looking straight through the eastern windows toward the stretch of farm road that curved to the highway a mile away.

"Company!" she exclaimed disgustedly.

"Oh, hell," Joe said simply.

"And t don't know that car, and I don't recognize that man who's driving—"

"It's a chauffeur—there's a man and woman in the back—damn!" Joe said, looking over her shoulder. They turned toward the terrace door and together went out to meet the visitors in the car.

"It's Larry," Tony said then. "Larry and Caroline." She dropped a suddenly cold hand to meet Joe's, warm and hard and waiting. "I'm in for it now!"

The newcomers descended; there was a little laughing confusion of handchasping and kissing on the terrace. Larry was heavier than he had been Tony thought, but as handsome and brown, as shrewd of gray eyes as ever; Caroline was at the peak of her exotic and startling beauty. In dashing black and white, with a great scarf tied under her chin, gauntlets with flaring cuffs, a great silver fox skin linked about her shoulders, and a hat about six weeks in advance of the mode on her satin black hair, she instantly made Tony, in her brown pumps and pleated skirt and sweater, feel like a little girl.

"Tony, luck to find you here!" Larry said. "I was going to ring you up tomorrow."

Did he mean it? Or was he just a little confused? Tony could not tell. She was only overwhelmingly conscious that the dreaded moment had come: she was speaking to Lawrence Bellamy again.

"You didn't let us know!" she stammered.

"You must both lunch with us tomorrow," said Caroline.

"When'd you get in, Larry?" This was Joe.

"Just this morning. We hadn't been in an hour before we thought of coming down here. t tried to telephone, but they said you couldn't be reached by telephone."

"t have one, though. But it's not in the book."

"Joe, what's this about Rio?" demanded his sister.

"Oh, they want me to go down there for three years for the Foundation. It's a pip of a chance."

"And are you going? Let's not let him, Tony!"

"It's a wonderful chance," Tony said. "But let's stop freezing out here and get warm!"

They all went in to the fire; Larry sent the driver away with careful instructions.

"Get your dinner at the hotel, and come back—at nine. Joe, you can give us dinner?"

"Can we, Tony?"

"Joe, we're buried in food. We've ham, we've enchiladas, we've alligator pears."

"Oh, fine!" Larry said. He gripped their hands in a hearty, happy manner. "He can't always have been like this!" Tony thought. "Tony, Joe," he said, "it seems good to get back and hear your voices again, and have Tony planning for meals! Meals seem to be your fate, Tony."

"Don't they?"

"And how are you all—your aunt, and Cliff and Brenda?"

"All flourishing. My brother Bruce has a political job in Sacramento now, and he stays up there. Cliff's married, you know, and they have a baby girl. Bendy has two boys, and feels that she ought to write a book to tell other mothers how babies should be raised."

"And when'd you come down Tony?" asked Caroline.

"Joe picked me up at Bendy's this morning. There was a big Red Cross thing yesterday, and I had to do it."

"And how's the old city office?"

"Just the same. The same old story. Typewriters clicking, and the boys washing themselves and dripping all over their collars, and Betsy Rosa moaning about some murderer's little gray wistful-eyed mother."

"You doing signed stuff?"

"Three or four times a week. And I run a woman's page; we have two new girls in the office now, both Stanford graduates."

"I'm going round there tomorrow."

"Are you going to have your office again upstairs?"

"It all depends. Caroline hates San Francisco."

"Yes, but Caroline doesn't necessarily have to stay there. I think Joe and I could have a very nice time in Rio," Caroline said for herself. "You can see us off."

"You've only been married five months!" Joe observed innocently.

"Five months or five minutes," Caroline said. "Larry can't expect me to sit up there alone in the Fairmont while he runs his old newspaper."

"She likes to pretend she's jealous," Larry said, with a little laugh that was not quite easy.

Began the Familiar Inspection of Ice Box and Cupboards.

"I don't like to pretend anything of the kind," Caroline retorted warmly. Tony perceived, with a sense of shock, that there was more in this than met the eyes. Some earlier quarrel was lending depth to this one. "I say seriously that I'd like to go to South America with Joe, if he'll take me," Caroline said, adding with a coquettish laugh, "Phil Polhemus is down there!"

"Well, we'll discuss it later," Larry put in, temporizing, as she paused, looking evenly at her brother. And Tony saw the dark angry red come up under his skin.

She went out into the kitchen, when Caroline went upstairs, and began the familiar inspection of icebox and cupboards. Wood crackled in the stove, and Tony, dodging the green thick smoke as she put back the iron plate, found Larry beside her.

"This is a lot of fuss, our staying."

"Oh, no, it's not, truly! We thought Cliff and Mary Rose might come. All I'm doing—" Tony said, bringing forth a half-consumed ham, and hunting in a table drawer for her longest knife. "All I'm doing is to reheat the enchiladas and cut the ham, and—let's see, heat up biscuits, and open plum jam, and make a salad."

Larry was not listening, and she knew he was not. He said in a low tone, "Tony, how are you?"

"Perfect!" she told him, smiling.

"No, but I mean—how are you?"

The little intimate significance did not escape her, but there was no hint of fluctuation in her steady wide-open blue eyes.

"Happy!" she told him, with a nervous shred of laughter.

"I'm glad," he said in a low tone, with his narrowed gaze keenly fixed on her. "Do you realize that it is more than two years since we have seen each other?"

"Two and a half, almost," Tony agreed. "It was spring."

"You know I was very ill?"

"Joe told me. Caroline wrote him, you know. And when I would come down week-ends, he'd tell me."

"You and he have become great friends, haven't you?"

"Joe and I? There's nobody like him," Tony said, smiling. Her brown hands went on steadily slicing the firm pink ham; she lifted each slice on her knife and laid it evenly on the blue dolphin platter.

"How well do you like him, Tony?"

"Oh, tremendously!"

"And are you going to marry him?" Larry asked.

Her eyes clouded, and she gave him a dubious look, slowly shaking her head. "No," she said.

"Then may I say something to you, Tony?—because I have an opportunity now and may not have another. May I say that I'm terribly—terribly sorry?"

"I know what you mean," Tony said, her bright eyes fixed steadily on his, the color coming up quickly under her clear brown skin.

"Of course you know what I mean. Of course you know, and I know, what we meant to each other. t and Ingen Ill, I was badly shaken by Ruth's death, Caroline was right there—" Larry said. And as her eyes narrowed uncomfortably and she made a gesture of restraint he went on, "My dear Tony, this is no disloyalty. Caroline and I hadn't been married six weeks, hadn't been married six days before we both knew that it was a mistake. We'd been drawn into it—lulled into it; you know what the circumstances were. There in that little place, with Ruth's mother dying, nurses there, the doctor coming every day, we lived as much alone as if we'd been on an island. I thought—she'd told me that she cared for Phil Polhemus; we'd seen him out in China. I never thought of myself at all—

"And then only a few days after Ruth's death she told me—told me that I had been the one always—even in the early days of Ruth's first knowing me, when Caroline was a child. She said we would go to Paris, entertain, she said that that was why she had refused Phil."

"I rather thought that it was something like that," Tony said, in the pause.

The man followed her, a little awkwardly, to the table, and sat down facing her across its end. Tony had a soup plate before her; she began the concoction of a salad dressing, pouring oil, measuring vinegar, occasionally tasting the mixture on the tip of her finger.

"Tony," Larry said, "if I had come straight back, after Ruth's death, would you have been waiting for me?"

"You know t would," Tony answered, with a full, steady look.

"I failed you," Larry muttered, looking away. "Caroline's interest is clothes—men—" he said. There was a pause.

"Oh, yes! Did Caroline get her chinchilla coat?" Tony asked cheerfully, calling it. The man looked up in surprise.

"How do you mean?"

"Caroline used to say that if ever she married again the first thing she'd make her husband buy her would be a chinchilla coat."

"Our marriage was a mistake—we both see it now," Larry said, paying no attention. It's all like a dream—a bad dream."

"But you don't mean, Larry, that you and Caroline—already are thinking of a break?"

"I've come back here to work," he said doggedly. "She says she despises San Francisco society and hates the West. Her heart is set now on going to Rio with Joe—you heard her just now. I can't go; I don't want to go. I want to stay here and dig into my job." He looked up, and his dark face brightened with the smile she remembered so well. Larry's masterful, slow smile. "And now and then take you to lunch," he said.

Instead of smiling in return she slowly shook her head, her face very sober.

"No, no more of that! That's what I paid for so dearly, Larry, knowing that you belonged to her—to Ruth, and pretending that I had any right."

"Isn't caring for each other a right?"

"I thought so then. I'm older now. I see things differently now."

"You're changed," he said. "In all the lovely ways lovelier, and in so many other ways changed. You're—definite, now. You're — outstanding, Tony. I don't ask you to forgive me. I was confused with the suddenness of everything—I was changed, too—from my illness. Everything at home seemed far away and dreamy; the only realities were the villa, and the hot sunshine, and Caroline all in white being tremendously helpful and kind—the one lovely living thing in all our lives! Can't you understand?"

"I do understand," Tony said. "And I think," she added almost timidly, "I think you admire Caroline more than you think you do, Larry. It seems to me, now, since you are married—since you did marry so—so soon—"

"So soon after Ruth's death. Yes, we both feel that; we both feel that for that very reason we have no right to separate," he conceded, as she hesitated. "But it was one of those marriages that could only have taken place in exactly that way. If we had waited a year, if we had waited until even three or four months after Ruth's death, it never would have happened."

Tony dipped her littlest fingertip into the salad dressing, tasted it, narrowed her eyes.

"But you are not always unhappy, Larry?"

"Not always. At base there's something that holds us together. Only she's quarrelsome, Tony, and jealous."

"I see the jealousy."

"She's intensely jealous of you," the man said.

"Of me? It seems to me the shoe ought to be on the other foot."

"But she knows, of course, how I felt—how I feel for you."

"I wonder how Caroline would have felt if all Ruth's money hadn't been involved?" Tony asked idly.

"It wasn't all Ruth's money," Larry reminded her quickly. "She wrote Joe of the legacies."

ESCANABA HEADS HERE TO BREAK UP ICE FLOES

Left Wednesday Morning; Will Open Charlevoix, St. James Harbors

A telegraphic communication received this morning by F. V. Tyler, secretary of the Association of Commerce, carried the information that the Coast Guard Cutter Escanaba left its Grand Haven base Wednesday morning en route to this port.

The purpose of the trip in addition to breaking up windrowed ice to allow entrance to Charlevoix and St. James harbors, is also to break up ice fields in the Straits of Mackinac for the official opening of navigation by State Highway Department ferries on April 14th.

This news will be welcomed by local and Beaver Island commercial fishermen who are anxious to begin operations now held up by ice floes.

SHAKESPEARE STUDY CLUB HELD FINAL MEETING OF THE YEAR

The Shakespeare Study Club held its final meeting of the year Tuesday at the home of Mrs. A. L. Fitch.

As a very interesting closing of the year's work, Ruth Ann Dowd of the high school faculty, assisted by two girls, gave a delightful review of the beautiful and appealing drama, "Green Grows the Lilac," by Moore. Besides the story of the several characters, the theme song and four other folk songs were sung beautifully to guitar accompaniment.

Mrs. Dowd's personal acquaintance with the author at Northwestern University added to the interest.

AT THE MOVIES

Paul Muni Will Portray Pasteur at Palace

Paul Muni comes to the screen of the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday, April 11-12, in what is said to be his greatest film characterization, "The Story of Louis Pasteur," a Cosmopolitan production released by First National.

Muni portrays Louis Pasteur, the great French chemist and bacteriologist who contributed so much to science. The story, by Sheridan Gibney and Pierre Collings, centers about Pasteur's battle against ignorance and prejudice, to save life through sterilization and the use of vaccines against disease.

Good Action Dramas Never Lose Appeal

Film cycles may come and go, but the good old-fashioned "shoot-em-up" action dramas never lose their appeal, according to Otho Lovering, who directed "Drift Fence," the new Paramount picture, based on a Zane Grey story, which will be seen April 15-16 at the Palace Theatre.

"Authorities will surely agree with me," says Lovering, "that Zane Grey's stories of the outdoors are the most popular to reach the screen. Though children love his tingling action stories, adults find their appeal just as great. Americans especially, to whom the frontier days of desperados have significance, thrill to his yarns of the West with their romance, danger, and action."

"Drift Fence" describes the struggle between cattle rustlers and a Texas Ranger. The point at issue is the erection of a fence to enclose cattle.

Leading roles are acted by Larry "Buster" Crabbe, Katherine DeMille, Tom Keene, Benny Baker, Glenn Erikson, and Stunley Andrews.

LEGION ACTIVITIES

By F. V. Tyler

Membership for 1936 has reached the high water mark of 104 and still more to come.

Comrades Henry, Meggison and Bulow are leading the field in number of memberships personally secured. According to advices received from Department Headquarters, these gentlemen are eligible for membership in the 10-20-30 club. Comrade Henry, having secured 40 members, gets a 30 point award; the others each receiving 10 point awards. Looks like the "adje" will be sporting a new Legion uniform before long.

Sons of the American Legion start bugle and drum corps practice this week, under the leadership of Comrades Art Nettleton and Bert Taylor, bugle and drum instructors, respectively.

Members of the Legion will have a wonderful opportunity to enjoy the national convention of the organization at Cleveland, O., this year (September 21st to 24th, inclusive). The Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Company, in cooperation with the Michigan department of the American Legion, will operate one of their de luxe steamers between Detroit and Cleveland for delegates and visitors to the convention. This boat will tie up in Cleveland at a dock only a block or two away from the convention hall, and purchasers of reservations may make this boat their hotel during the four days of the convention, all except meals being included in the exceptionally low fare. FOUNDATION PLANTING

The secood io a series of articles oo improving the bome grounds by Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld.

How to Plan Your Yard: Informal

After completing the foundation planting, you generally hegin to think about planting the remainder of the lót. Although most of us tind it necessary to lnndscape only part of our property at a time the entire lot should be thought of always as one unit. It is better to do each part of the yard completely as you go along achieving a finished effect as you progress, rather than to scutter a few shrubs over the entire lot.

The planting of most yards develops by using plants which are given by friends or purchased n few at n time. These are placed without much regard for the whole effect. Some of these have been placed near the house, some near the boundarics of the lot, and others scnttered in various places in the lawn. Even though many of the individual plants may be very fine and produce good blooms, the result is not entirely pleasing. Such yards too often look like a living room during housecleaning time. In the house we put a chair, a lamp, a table, and a picture together to form a pleasant group. Why should we not do the same thing with our plants?

Since some of these plants may have become large and well-established, it would be difficult to move them. If this is the case, it would be easier to work them into an informal development. Such schemes are more flexible and permit easier use of existing features. However, some lots are too narrow for this treatment and are better suited to a formal development. Informal yards are those in which the planting beds are irregular in shape. These arrangements produce an effect which is similar to that often found in natural plantings. A good time to study examples of fine natural plant arrangements is on a Sunday drive through the country. The natural growth along fences between fields, at the edges of woodlots, or nlong the shores of lakes offers many ideas. Notice how plants of one kind usnally occur in groups and are repeated at intervals; how plants of a different shape or color accent these groups; how plants with small leaves emphasize those with large leaves; how the outline is made interesting by plants of varying heights; how tall plants have smaller ones in front bringing the foliage line down to the ground.

In applying some of these principles to your yard the general practice is to have an open lawn surrounded by informally arranged shrub beds. This keeps the center of the lawn open for use and gives the longest possible views across your yard. Our grandmothers usually had a table in the middle of the living room and a flower bed in the middle of the lawn. We no longer have tables in the middle of our living rooms because they interfere with the best use of the room. Flower beds in the middle of the lawn should be ruled out for the same reason—they interfere with the best use of the yard.

The plan of the front lawn should lead the eye up to the house by including planting along the property line—which joins or almost joins the foundation planting at the corners of the house. The resulting shape of the front lawn is roughly semi-circular.

Behind the house the borders of trees and shrubs are usually continuous, enclosing the entire lawn. This gives our yards n certain amount of privncy, and makes them far more usable. The reason that so many of us do not make more use of our yards is that they hnve none of the privacy which we demand in our own homes. This enclosure makes our yarda a much more suitable place to entertain or to visit with our friends.

In arranging these border plantings there are several pointa to be kept in mind.

1. Trees are the most domioant features in yard plantieg. They should be located so that they frame viéws of the house from the street or garden and cast some shade on terraces or porches. Trees placed along the rear property line make excellent backgrounds for the yard. Those which are used should not all be large such as maples, elms, and oaks. Mountain ash, hawthorns, flowering crabs, and fruit trees nre small trees which form excellent transitions between shrubbery and the lnrge trees.

2. The planting should be arranged in bays and promontories, that is, the planting projects and recedes at intervnls along the edges of the lawn. This is in keeping with the natural arrangements of plants which can be observed in the country, and adds interest to our lawn by giving it a varied outline and crenting shadow patterns.

3. The views from the house should be into a bay, for they invariably attract our attention. In going along a wooded lakeshore the most interesting views nre into the bnys with the points acting as frames, and the same is true in a garden. The largest and most important one should be directly opposite the house at the end of the lawn. Several smaller and less important bays ean he placed nlong the sides.

4. There should not be too many bays. Although the actual numher of bays should be determined by the size of the property, it is hetter not to have any less than 16 or 18 feet across on small properties. Too many bays give a confused effect and make the lawn difficult to maintain.

5. Bays should be varied in length and depth. Several bays of the same size and shape are as monotonous as the ticking of a clock. Too many bays and bay of the same shape should be avoided — either will produce a dull garden.

Successful informal planting can be achieved by considering these principles:

1. Plant for interesting and irregular height. The same principles which were applied in producing an interesting border outline should be utilized in arranging the plants according to height.

2. Use high plants at corners of property and on promontories. The importance of these two locations will be further emphasized by the use of tall plants while the bays between them will he filled with lower growing varieties. The transition between high and low planting should not always be too regular since interest is often added by placing low materials next to high.

3. Accent important areas with unusual plants. As in our foundation planting, we accented the doorway with unusual shrubs, in the informal gurden we can call attention to certain areas by the same method. The view into bays can be further enhanced by several conspicuous plants.

4. Plant in large groups. As with foundation plantings we should avoid having our gardens look like collections of plants. Four masses consisting of five to eight plants each is more attractive than a dozen varieties of plants placed singly or in pairs. Stunning effects in the garden are never gained by having one plant in hloom at a time, and one good effect is better than a dozen mediocre ones.

5. Plant flowers in the bays. Flowers placed there attract attention because of their location and because they have a dark background which shows them off to advantage. The darker the foliage, the more hrilliant the flowers will nppear.

6. Add interest with specimeo plants. Plants used singly in the lawn are known as specimen plants, hut these should always be related to one of the promontries of the shrub borders. If planted in shrub bays, they tend to neutralize rather than accent the shape of the lawn. Plants used as specimen are unusual in character such as evergreens, or Japanese maple.

A pioneer is a fellow who can remember back when the villagers were filled with curiosity if the after noon train was an hour late.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Looking forward to Easter we find eggs plentiful and cheap, that hams and turkeys are to be featured, that asparagus and artichokes, strawberries, pineapple and navel oranges are available for the feast.

For the previous days of fasting there will be ample supplies of fresh fish. In general beef and pork are somewhat cheaper, lamb a little higher and veal definitely expensive.

Best values in vegetables can be found in heets, cabbage, carrots, lettuce and spinach. Beans, broccoli, cucumbers, peas and tomatoes are fnirly high. Grapefruit and banana represent the best fruit values.

Here are three Easter dinner menus at different budget levels.

FESSENDEN'S

BAPTIST CHURCH
W. H. Rauch, Pastor

We, as a Church, glory in the fact that Christ was born as an infant, because everything depends on His incarnation. And we are filled with deepest gratitude and joy that He did die on the Cross, for thereon depends our Salvation. But it is the Resurrection that brings Power and Victory in living. Paul expresses the thought in this way, "We all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord." So let us behold Him, the crucified and risen Christ, until we, too, are changed.

INTEREST IS SHOWN IN FARM PROGRAM

TWELVE MEETINGS IN COUNTY LARGELY ATTENDED

Township Committees Formed to Aid Farmers in New Federal Soil Conservation Program

(By B. C. Mellencamp)

Never has there been such interest in a farm program as was noted last week when B. C. Melleneamp, extension agent, outlined the new program at 12 different meetings in the county. Over 550 farmers attended their nearest meeting and endorsed the new soil conservation act which has been developed to replace the old AAA, abolished last January.

It is quite impossible to outline the program due to lack of space, but without a doubt any one interested has read the details in farm papers and elsewhere. However, the program is set up in such a way that practically every farmer in the county can receive benefit payments of one kind or another by slightly changing the type of crops raised and by incorporating a new soil building practice. There are to be no contracts, no processing taxes developed and each man is able to select the crops he wants to raise.

At this early date it seems desirable to announce the names of the various township committees. Melrose will select their committee on Wednesday, while Beaver Island will wait until navigation opens before organizing for this project. Following are the committeemen:

South Arm Township: Elmer Hott, chairman, George Nelson, Martin Ruhling; Eveline: G. C. Ferris, chairman, George Hanson, Herbert Gould; Hayes: Lee Sneathen, chairman, Fred Willis, T. J. Smith; Norwood: Edd Gregory, chairmnn, William H. Mayne, George Parsons; Evangeline: Earl Griffin, chairman, L. J. Fineout, Wilber Somerville; Marion: Verne McGahn, chairman, W. H. Henley, Frank Matchett; Bay: Harry Smith, chairman, Albert Bathke, John Taylor; Wilson: Harry Behling, chairman, Charles Shepard, Charles Reidel; Boyne Valley: Harry DeNise, chairman, Ed. Topolinski, Tom Matelski; Chandler: Carl Clark, chairman, Martin Howard, Howard Wood; Hudson, Art Guerin, chairman, Stephen Howard, Peter Dobinak.

Eighty-five farmers attended the Boyne River Grange meeting for the largest attendance for the 12. Everywhere the response was all that could be expected. Considerable time and attention will be devoted to carrying out the new program.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
W. W. Hurd, Pastor

Easter: Special sermon topic: "Jesus Breaks Jail! Dangerous Man at Large!!" The choir is preparing special music.

Please take note! The time is changed to 11 o'clock, because of the early morning service.

"Among the Lilies," another Easter sunrise service, at 7 o'clock. Worship, and address by Mrs. Hurd.

See complete write-up elsewhere of the beautiful Good Friday service. At 1:30, sharp! Plenty! Please do not mar this solemn service by coming late. Features are the two solos by Mrs. Krieghoff, and the play, "In Pilate's Hall." The service will close with the "commemoration," using the service Jesus gave us for that purpose.

Next week Wednesday the annual post-Easter supper in the church, at 5:30.

The Club meets this Thursday with Mrs. Ellis. Potluck.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES
Charlevoix and Ironton

Thursday evening we will hold our annual Holy Week service. The Rev. Peter Koopman, of the Atwood Reformed Church, will preach the sermon. After the sermon the Lord's Supper will be celebrated. Before the sermon those who wish to unite with the church will be received.

Friday this church will cooperate with the other churches of the county in the County-wide Union Good Friday service. The service this year will be held in the Baptist Church.

Sunday the Sunday school will render an Easter program, and at 11 o'clock the Easter service of the church will be held. The public is invited to any and all of these services.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATES ARE NAMED

SPRING CONVENTION HELD HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Complete Harmony and Eothusiasm Revealed by Nearly Two Hundred Delegates Present

Party enthusiasm, indicative of the strenuous campaigning planned for the September primary election, was the dominant feature of the Charlevoix county Republican spring convention held Tuesday evening at the court house here.

Nearly 200 delegates representing every corner of the county gathered tu renew and strengthen their support of Republican principles and elect delegates to the district and state conventions.

William M. Sanderson and Mrs. Agnes Lorch were unanimously named temporary chairman and secretary, respectively, and subsequently as permanent chairman and secretary.

Election of delegates resulted as follows: Charlevoix, Dr. F. F. McMillan; Floyd W. Ikens, alternate; Boyne City, D. W. Dicken, Charles McCutcheon, alternate; East Jordan, Howard Porter, Barney Milstein, alternate; Boyne Falls, William J. Pearson, Joe Bartholomy, alternate; county-at-large, E. E. Stroud, William M. Sanderson, delegates, Jay Adams, Cash Hayden, alternates.

Resolutiona prepared by a committee composed of Arthur L. Fitch, William F. Tindall, Martin Rueling, J. H. Gallagher and Mrs. R. H. Armstrong, were adopted. The resolutions put the convention on record as endorsing the administration of Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, pledged support of U. S. Senator James Couzens, and endorsed Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg for President of the United States, directing that the delegates go to the state convention at Detroit so instructed. The resofutions embodied a scathing attack on Democratic administration policies and an urge for the return of Republican principles to save the nation from chaos.

Brief, rousing nddresses were given by Dr. F. F. McMillan, Floyd A. Supp and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, of Charlevoix, William J. Pearson, of Boyne Falls, Charles McCutcheon and Probate Judge Ervan A. Ruegsegger, of Boyne City, and Rep. Douglas D. Tibbitts.

Following Mr. Tibbitts' announcement that he would not be a candidate for re-election after four years serving the district, the convention adopted a resolution of appreciation for his efforts in behalf of the district.

Perfect party harmony and determination to maintain Charlevoix county's position as the strongest Republican district of Michigan were outstanding characteristics of the convention.

ISLAND PLANE KEPT BUSY CARRYING FISH

Five Round Trips Made Sunday—Expect Boat Service Start Soon

Unusual activity of the Charlevoix-Beaver Island mail plane during the past week is accounted for by large shipments of fish coming from St. James.

Pilot George Austgen made five round trips last Sunday, carrying on an average of 600 pounds of perch each trip. Fishermen are taking large catches with hook and line from St. James harbor daily. Passengers have been on the increase also.

With the gradual breaking up of ice floes between the island and mainland, it is expected the resumption of boat service is not far distant. Pilot Austgen reports large expanses of open water within the past few days. Navigation to the island had started by this date a year ago.

LOCAL STREAMS PRODUCE SMELT CATCHES

Thousands Taken from Stover, Loeb and Barber Creeks

While major smelt "runs" have stopped at Boyne City and East Jordan, streams adjacent to Charlevoix are still providing excellent sport and plenty of fish.

Loeb, Stover and Barber Creeks, visited nightly by large crowds for over two weeks, have produced thousands of smelt and the "run" is still under way, it is understood. One local party reported dipping three bushels of smelt one night last week, and catches running into the hundreds have been numerous.

CHARLEVOIX BEREFT OF PROMINENT WOMAN

Mrs. Margaret M. Harsha Succumbed After Long Illness Sunday

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret M. Harsha, whose death occurred Sunday, April 12, following an extended illness at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Earl A. Young, were held Wednesday afternoon from the residence on State street, Rev. G. R. Parker officiating.

A woman whose life was devoted to charity and activity in religious and club circles for over 50 years, Mrs. Harsha's death takes from this community a beloved figure.

Margaret M. Carnes was born in Baltimore, Md., in 1863. With her parents she went to Wooster, O., where she received her education, graduating from Wooster College. In 1883 she was united in marriage to Horace Shaw Harsha. As a bride she came to Charlevoix.

She was identified immediately with the newly organized Congregational church, becoming one of its charter members. She was not only active in the various organizations within the church, but for 30 years was its efficient clerk and as many years a teacher in the Sunday school. She gave freely of her time and talent to any worthy cause. She was a charter member of the Shakespeare Study Club and a member of the Petoskey D. A. R.

Surviving are five children, John, of Detroit, Mrs. David Banksun, of Mobile, Ala., Mrs. Earl A. Young, of Charlevoix, H. Paul, of Plymouth, Mich., Mrs. M. D. Slaughter, of Mt. Pleasant; 10 grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. J. A. Culler, of Oxford, O.

Appointment of Committee Chairmen Made by Mayor Arthur Bergeoo for 1936-37 Fiscal Year

The organization meeting of the Charlevoix city council, the first regular session following the spring election, was held Monday night.

Mayor Arthur Bergeon, returning to a familiar role, opened his administration with greetings to the council. He assured the members his hearty cooperation in all matters pertaining to civic welfare and requested the support of the city's governing body as assurance of a successful administration.

Ernest J. Kibbe, the only new member on the council, also returned to a familiar role, having served several terms prior to his recent election.

Committee chairmen responsible for the conduct of city affairs during the 1936-37 fiscal year were left the same as the preceding year with the exception that Alderman Kibbe takes over the chairmanship of the committee headed by his predecessor, F. J. Fessenden.

The line-up of committee chairmen is as follows: Finance, charter and ordinance, Alderman P. D. Campbell; streets, sewers and public health, Alderman Leo W. Carey; advertising, Alderman F. E. Cartier; parks and public buildings, Alderman J. J. Hallett; police, fire and license, Alderman Arthur Ranger; public utilities, Alderman E. J. Kibbe. Other members of the committees will be named at an adjourned session to be held Monday evening, April 20th.

The business of Monday night's session was of routine nature, including the hearing of South Bridge street property owners protesting sewer and paving assessments which were referred to committee; approval of the regular payroll, etc.

CONG. BROWN SEEKS COAST GUARD CUTTER

Introduces Bill to Provide Ship for Superior and St. Mary's River

Congressman Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace, has introduced a bill for the construction of a coast guard cutter to render assistance to marine commerce and to help break ice on the St. Marys River and on Lake Superior and Lake Huron.

For over a year the Navy department has been building seven, 328 foot boats, one of which the Michi-Congressman had hoped to get for Sault Ste. Marie which has been without service since the "Seminole" was decommissioned in 1934.

The annual Mother and Daughter banquet will be held at the Congregational church, Wednesday, April 29th.—Adv16t1

BOARD OF COMMERCE IS ORGANIZED HERE

REPLACES DORMANT ASSOCIATION OF COMMERCE IN DIRECTION OF RESORT PROMOTIONAL ACTIVITIES

New Officers, Board of Directors and Committees Launching Most Active Campaign for 1936 Summer Season; Harold Hallett Chosen President of New Organization

The Charlevoix Association of Commerce, dormant for nearly a year as far as organized effort was concerned, has been reorganized as the Charlevoix Board of Commerce and is preparing for the most active summer season in recent years.

Youthful energy and enthusiasm and ripe experience are well blended in the official personnel of the new organization. Harold Hallett is president, with Karl Erber, vice-president; Fred Tyler, secretary, and Archie Livingston, treasurer.

The board of directors—a new feature in the local commercial organization set-up—is composed of six members, with the president of the Board of Commerce as chairman. Two of these directors are elected for three year terms, two for two years, and two for one year, and are as follows: Three years: R. F. Sloan, O. P. North; two years: H. E. Buddy, O. J. Hammond; one year: W. E. Fessenden, E. J. Edwards.

The reorganization committee of six, appointed at the first meeting on Friday evening of last week, presented a very comprehensive set of by-laws to the meeting held last Wednesday evening nt the council rooms. These by-laws, drafted with the generous and skilful assistance of Attorney A. L. Fitch, were adopted by unnnimous vote of those present, some thirty representative business and professional men of the community. Officers were elected and a short meeting of the newly formed board of directors was held immediately following the main session.

At a meeting of the board of directors Friday evening, standing committees and special service committees were appointed, the first named acting as chairman, as follows:

Standing committees—Finance: O. P. North, O. J. Hammond, H. I. Ochs; membership: Henry Buddy, George Haggard, Shirley B. Henry; entertainment: Gordon Todd, Floyd Brown, Arthur Wexstaff.

Special service committees—Games and sports: Charles Hamlin, Kenneth Usher, Dean Davenport, A. L. Livingston, Ray Kipke; marine: Henry Partridge, Clair S. Webster, Ray S. Hamilton, Harold Miller, William C. Bellinger; conservation: William H. Wallace, Clarence N. Wood, Roy Ranger, William Fessenden, Karl Erber; advertising: H. A. Craig, E. J. Edwards, Earl A. Young; industry and employment: R. F. Sloan, Robert Bridge, Charles Emrey; winter sports committee: Officers of Winter Sports Club.

The officers, board of directors and committees will meet Thursday evening at the council chambers for the purpose of outlining activities and adopting a budget which will be presented to the city counell for approval next Monday evening.

The lines along which the new Board of Commerce will operate may be briefly summarized, as follows:

Provisions are made in the by-laws for regular business meetings of the commercial body and its board of directors. In addition to its regular meetings, specifically prescribed, the board of directors is subject to call at any time in the discretion of the president for the consideration of matters where quick action is essential. The directors intend to start in on their work hy taking stock of the various things needed to be done to improve our resort business this summer, budget their cost of operation and present their plans in writing to the city council, asking for an appropriation to cover.

No assessments will be levied on members of the Board of Commerce except the annual dues of 50 cents per member, as provided in the by-laws. Any citizen of the town is eligible to membership in the Board of Commerce who will sign his or her name to the by-laws and pay the prescribed dues. This rule, huwever, does not limit voluntary contrihutions.

The cost of the Board's operationa will eventually be spread upon the tax roll, where it obviously belongs. There is not a mnn, woman or child in Charlevoix who does not benefit, either directly or indirectly, by whatever is done to increase the number of tourists and vacationists who come to Charlevoix nnd spend their money in this community. More resort business means more employment, more money in circulation, more growth for the town. Too long has the principal burden been placed upon the shoulders of the local merchants, who not only pay the regular taxes on their property and the light, water and power rates, but are taxed again when asked to carry the load of resort advertising and promotion expense.

Heretofore, summer residents enjoying the heauties and advantages of the town and owners of valuable, revenue-producing resort property have escaped, practicnlly scot-free, sharing in the expense of making Charlevoix a better resort and keeping its attractions constantly before the public. In an even greater degree is this true of those who have found employment here and whose chances of steady work and better wages rise with the increase of resort business. Therefore, it is only just that a greater proportion of the city's revenues be spent for the purposes to which the new Board of Commerce is pledged to devote its time and energy.

A community, like an individual, cannot long pursue a policy of receiving without giving. Jealous eyes are turned on towns to the north and south of us and much chagrin is expressed when the number and scope of their summer activities is compared with what we have been able to accomplish. An examination of the amounts spent by these sister cities for such purposes should serve to quiet criticism of local efforts that have been bravely put forth under the heavy handicap of insufficient funds. Eighteen hundred dollars a year will not match sixty-five hundred in accomplishment, nor can one man do the work of a dozen.

First of Programs to Be Given Monday and Friday Well Received

An innovation in WPA recreational activities was inaugurated Monday for Charlevoix county with a one hour radio broadcast which is planned as a permanent feature for Monday and Friday afternoons between 4 and 5 o'clock.

The new feature, developed by Dean Davenport, county director, is made possible through the cooperation of the Radio-Electric Appliance Co., of this city, over whose short wave system the programs will be broadcast. The wave length is around 1400.

Monday's initial broadcast featured a group of Boyne City artists under the direction of Mrs. Bissell, recreation leader. The numbers included a piano solo by Jack Schneider, eight years ald; violin solo by Clyde Green, 13 years; guitar and mouth organ number by Orville Scott, 12 years; piano solo by Amber Jean Hall, 11 years; reading by Jack Schnelder; two feature songs by Georgia Helen Hall and Betty Kay; piano trio, Georgia Helen Hall, Wanita Middleton, Betty Kay.

Dean Davenport announced the program and added numerous piano selectiona. The program came through clearly, was heard throughout the city and aroused much favorable comment.

Another Boyne City group will provide Friday afternoon's program of music and dramatics under the direction of Miss Edith Lamereaux. Next Monday's program will feature an East Jordan group.

TRAVERSE CITY BUILDS TEN SMALL BOATS FOR ITS SUMMER VISITORS

Ten sail boats of the snipe class will be built at Traverse City during the spring months, under a subsidy of the Chamber of Commerce, and placed in the local yacht basin for use of summer resorters and tourists this summer. Sea Scouts, all experienced sailors, will be used to man the ships during the season for inexperienced boatmen.

The snipe fleet will add considerable color to Grand Traverse Bay this summer, since each boat is equipped with a different colored sail. A number of snipes and many larger sail boats have been built during the past two winters, marking a revival in sailing in this region.

Ben Samuelson, the ship builder who is constructing the fleet, has agreed to take the snipes to sailing regattas in the Northern Michigan resort area during the summer.

MICHIGAN STATE COLLEGE SHORTS

Plans are being made for planting 225,000 trees and 100,000 seed spots in the Berrien county soil erosion project sponsored by the federal government. Woodland improvement work, conducted in collaboration with the county agent and with extension specialists from Michigan State College, East Lansing, has been completed and planting will begin soon. The project is being conducted as a demonstration of proper soil conserving crops and frequent clinics are held for interested farmers. Trees are used for the steeper slopes which are badly eroded and lower slopes are being converted into permanent pasture.

Medium-thick honey can be substituted for one-half the sugar in cake or quick-bread by reducing the liquid one-fourth, the Michigan State College Home Economics Department reports. If honey is substituted for all the sugar, reduce the liquid one-half. If the honey is very thin or very thick, this proportion may have to be altered accordingly.

Changing weather conditions this month are a blessing in disguise, according to C. B. Dibble, extension specialist in insect control at Michigan State College, East Lansing. Such insects as cutworms, grasshoppers, cucumber beetles, and squash bugs, which survived the winter because of the protection of deep snows, are now suffering severely from the rapid and frequent weather changes, he says.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

School Reaches the Home Through the Children

During a visit of Miss Alice Evans, director of the Health Education Service of the Children's Fund of Michigan, to the Walloon Lake school, Miss Evans used a very responsive light meter to test the light in various parts of the room. It was found that the children farthest from the windows were getting very poor light since the needle of the light meter showed they were getting about five foot candles of light. It is regarded that for the reading of large print anything below 10 foot candles is inadequate and there should be from 10 to 20 foot candles as a minimum. To be well lighted, the row of seats farthest from the windows should have from 10 to 20 foot candles of light even on dark days. This is considered sufficient for the reading of print of ordinary newspaper type size. (A foot candle is the measure of light thrown by a candle to a distance of one foot.)

The school children took the initiative to write to their school board reporting the inadequate lighting of their school. Each pupil wrote a letter, the children selecting the letter they considered best and that was sent to the director of the school board. Later the school board sent word to the children to the effect that the request they had made for improvement of the lighting at the school had been given careful consideration and that before the beginning of a new school year they might expect a change.

Parents do seriously consider their children's needs, and when the desirability of an improvement is brought home to them they are oftentimes quick to make the necessary changes.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellencamp

Township Committees Will Meet on Friday, April 17

A telegram received Saturday gives the information that all of the township committees in both Antrim and Charlevoix counties will meet at East Jordan on Friday, April 17, for the school of instruction and to elect the county officers.

It is presumed that all of the details of the program will be worked out and ready for presentation to the farmers.

Soil Conservation Program Progressing Nicely

During the last week material has arrived from Washington indicating the approved practices which will qualify cooperating producers in the North Central Region for soil building payments and the amount per acre which will be allowed for these practices.

Following are practices of interest to people in this county: (1) Seedlings made on crop land between October 1, 1935, and September 30, 1936, inclusive, or alfalfa and lespedeza sericea, $2 per acre; red clover and mammoth clover, $1.50 per acre; alsike clover, sweet clover, white clover, and Korean lespedeza, $1 per acre; legume mixtures with 50 per cent or more of alfalfa, sericea, red clover or mammoth clover, $1.50 per acre; and legume mixtures of 50 per cent or more of alsike, sweet or white clover, or Korean lespedeza, $1 per acre; (2) Soybeans and cowpeas seeded on crop land on or after October 1, 1935, and plowed under as green manure on or before September 30, 1936, $1.50 per acre; (3) Application of at least two tons of ground limestone per acre on crop land or pasture sometime between January 1 and September 30, 1936, inclusive, $2.50 per acre; and (4) Plantings of forest trees on crop land or pasture land between January 1 and September 30, 1936, inclusive, $5 per acre.

As the government is sharing the extra cost of seed and labor necessary in adopting these approved practices, payments will not be made if the labor, seed, or materials are furnished free to the farmer by any state or federal agency.

The number of dollars of the Class II payment for any farm cannot exceed the total number of acres of crop land used for soil-conserving and soil-building crops on the farm in 1936. In the case of small farms having less than 10 acres of soil-conserving or soil-building crops in 1936 the maximum Class II payment will be $10.

In addition to the general provision regulating payments, specified rates and conditions for payments have been established for "special crops," including tobacco, sugar beets, and flax.

It is expected within a few days that the school of instruction for local committeemen will be held and the farm visits started.

Ten Farmers Start Keeping Farm Records

Considerable attention has been devoted to the farm account project during the last two weeks. At the time of checking in books, 42 were received and sent to the farm management department for summary. Since that time nine more books have been received, and sent in, which finished the project for 1935.

Ten new cooperators have been secured for 1936 as follows: Clyde Smith, Charlevoix; Emil Thorsen, East Jordan; J. Ransom, East Jordan; Ed. Topolinski, Boyne City; Don Fox, Boyne City; Dewey Howard, Boyne City; Harley LaCroix, Boyne City; Don Moreau, Clarion; Leonard Hite, East Jordan, and T. J. Smith, Charlevoix.

For the new year there will be over 60 farm account records being kept which is a very creditable record. Charlevoix county has always been one of the leading counties in the state insofar as the number of folks who are keeping farm account records. There are a dozen in this county who are keeping their eighth record. Ask any one of them what he thinks of farm account books and he will invariably answer "I wouldn't farm without one."

Professor O. I. Gregg, Landscape Specialist, Visits County

As a result of activity Monday and Tuesday, it is expected that six more farms will follow the suggestions given by O. I. Gregg, landscape specialist of Michigan State College, and beautify their home grounds.

Nothing adds so much to enjoyment as to drive by neat and attractive farm homes. Without a doubt there are at least 40 farms in this county that have landscaping outlines prepared. Many of these have already made much progress toward beautifying their homes, while in other cases the job is completed.

Last Monday and Tuesday the following farm homes were visited and plans made for landscaping: Mrs. Constance Gallop, Boyne Falls; William A. Shepard, East Jordan; Clarence Beattie, Charlevoix; Ed. Yahr, Bay Shore; Hugh Russell, East Jordan, and Henry Eggersdorf, Boyne City.

To succumb to temptation is some people's idea of a good time, and occasionally we are disposed to agree.

CHAPTER XXV

"And Joe got a splendid slice, and Joe's the one that ought to have it, too," Tony said. "He helps so many people. There's no end to Joe's goodness!"

"And yet you can't love him? Tony, Tony, Tony, how blind I've been! It's sickening," Larry said, with a rueful smile, "to have had—to have had all the difficulties in one's life that I had to meet, and to have felt, as I did feel, that if I ever were free I could make my own destiny so wonderful, so happy, and then to have had my chance and instantly thrown it away."

"And Yet You Can't Love Him."

"Were you terribly young when you married Ruth, Larry?"

"Twenty-one."

"A boy."—

"That was all."

"And did you love her?"

"I admired her tremendously. She was a great horse-woman, you know, and she had a splendid stable. I remember thinking her glorious, galloping along those lanes in autumn, and telling her men in the stables what to do with this fine horse and that. Yes," he said, with the thoughtful expression she liked best of all on his handsome face, "I always loved Ruth. Not—but then there are different ways of loving. I think she never had any misgivings. I think she was never anxious, until you came along, and everything got out of hand."

"That's the thing I find it hard to forgive myself."

"One can't always help those things, Tony. We didn't—after all, we didn't—what shall I say?—betray her."

"Not in actual fact, no, I didn't," Tony said in a lighter tone, as she rose to carry her salad dressing to the ice-box, "I didn't surrender. There were times—" She smiled at him over her shoulder.

"But we didn't," she said. "I remember praying about it, banging on to my ends until my fingernails were almost torn out. But I'm glad now—every woman is glad afterward when she remembers."

Coming back, she sat down at the table with idle hands, looking at him frankly.

"For that part—fire and flame and breathlessness and not eating your dinner and lying awake all night—that part isn't the important part, is it? It never has lasted, it never will."

"Couldn't it?" the man asked, a dark flush on his face, his voice low.

"No, for it isn't the right, the wise and true part," Tony answered. "And, for the rest, Larry, seriously, seriously, haven't you and Caroline a great deal in common? Haven't you two more in common than you and I ever could have had? You like dinners—chinchilla coats—"

"I despise dinners. I despise chinchilla coats;"

"If you two had a handsome apartment in San Francisco, entertained a good deal, were in on opera nights and polo weeks—"

"What are you talking about?" the man asked almost roughly. "You're not—you're surely not trying to—trying to persuade me that Caroline and I are rightly married? I tell you it was one of those impulsive, stupid things that men and women only do when they have lost their bearings, when they've been under a heavy strain. A week later—we were in Paris then—we both seemed suddenly to wake up, to come back to our old point of view. We said then, 'We must make a go of this, we've drawn the attention of all our world to our marriage, we can't confess failure!' But from that moment to this we've never thought alike, we have nothing in common, we are only making each other miserable!"

Tony looked at him speculatively.

"I noticed the gray hair, Larry."

"That began when I was ill. Oh, Tony, if I could only go back the last eight months and have it all to live over again! It was so simple—so easy, just to bring Ruth's mother home and to come out here to you! But it seemed to be a time when I had to plunge madly ahead—dizzy with freedom, perhaps, feeling that now I could do anything, travel, buy a country place, have horses, do all the things that of late years hadn't interested her—

"And within a few weeks Caroline and I were somehow engaged, and even then I wasn't taking it all seriously; even then I didn't realize that she was in earnest. We had said at first that of course we would wait the whole year—then she began to—well, and I did, too. I'm not blaming anyone but myself. We were there at the villa, with everything to settle, discuss, decide, and since we were going to be married some day, why not at once, and quietly, and not tell anyone for six or eight months?"

"Larry," Tony said seriously, "you don't have to tell me. Nobody knows better than I how easily one can do a thing in one mood and wonder about it in another."

It was the first touch of anything like sympathy, like tenderness she had shown him, and he grasped at it eagerly.

"Tony, only promise me this: that whatever the complications of the next year are, whatever Caroline and I decide to do, you'll be my friend. I may have your friendship, mayn't I, Tony? You and I may see each other, and talk things over, and go back to the old days when we used to go to lunch at one and talk until half-past three?"

"I don't like to remember those days!" Tony said, smiling. And in the silence Joe put his head in at the door and asked: "Do we eat in here?" and her talk with Larry was over. The door between the living room and the kitchen was opened, and Caroline and Joe began to set a table in by the fire.

"Any more talk of your going to New York, Tony?" Caroline asked.

"Not now, no."

"I got my coat there," Caroline said. "The divinest chinchilla you ever saw. I'll show it to you tomorrow."

Tony did not look at Larry.

"I remember you wanted one."

"Ready, Joe," Tony said. The salad was green and crisp in its bowl; the enchiladas smoking hot. Joe brought a great stack of brown toast to the table. "Does anyone want coffee now? Nobody wants coffee until later, Joe," Tony said.

"Are you going to town tonight, Tony?"

"No. Not tonight."

"Staying with Brenda?"

"No," Tony, her face suddenly pulling, but her eyes like sparkling blue stars, burst into joyous laughter and caught Joe around the neck as she passed his chair at the table. "Oh, Joe, darling, we'll have to tell them!" she said.

Larry shoved his chair back a little, facing them with a faintly knitted brow. Caroline's face was a study in hurt incredulity.

"You two are engaged," she said quickly, as one not to be surprised.

"Married!"—Joe said. Tony drawn down on his knee now, and his kiss against her chin. "We were married two weeks after you were. We've been bursting to tell you, but we've not told anyone except Cliff and Brenda and the family, and Tony didn't want to spill it without asking me, and I didn't dare without asking her! This is my beautiful, my adorable, my glorious wife!" he said. "And she's going to Rio with me next month, aren't you, sweetheart?"

"This is my husband," Tony said, under her breath, looking only at Joe, her arm about his neck, her words only for him. And so said, they sounded like a song.

"And we cook here, and garden here, and fool around here," Joe stated, beginning to serve the ham enthusiastically, as Tony, flushed and laughing, went around to her own place. "And perhaps angels in heaven have something on us for happiness, but we doubt it. I talked Tony into it just after we had word from you, but for various reasons we kept it quiet. They wanted her to finish up her work on the paper, and break some one else in."

"I can't still quite see the reason for the secrecy with us," Caroline observed niggingly, after a somewhat forced flurry of explanations and congratulations, and the evening was over, and the Bellamys were going.

"And something tells me that I'll never be intimate with my sister-in-law," Tony observed, in reference to this parting shot, when they were gone.

"Something tells me that neither one enjoyed the evening," Joe said, happy with his pipe, his fireside, his wife, his peaceful Sunday evening. "Tony, did you and he have it out?"

"While I was getting dinner, yes. In a way, we did. And in a way I felt terribly sorry for him, Joe. You're so wise and you're so good, and you know everything, and every one adores you, and you're wonderful," Tony said simply. "But poor old Larry's still the big wooden Indian, handsome and clever and adored by the girls. He just can't believe that life is being mean to him."

"Joe, You're So Wise and You're So Good."

"Sit here on this thing."

She took the familiar red leather hassock at his knee; her eyes were fixed on his, her dark hair rumpled a little into a babyish nimbus about her face. Joe put down his pipe, and they locked hands.

"Do you really love me, Tony?"

"Joe, so much that I can't pull out a weed or pick up a shell without needing you to praise me and see me and talk to me about it."

"There wasn't the least twinge tonight?"

"Nothing but pity for the poor fool girl who fell in love with a painted totem pole."

"Larry isn't a totem pole, you know."

"To me he is. I looked at him and I looked at you, Joe, You are so wise and quiet and good—" She stopped.

"Go on, wench. Your discourse displeases me no whit."

"Yes, but you know what I mean. You're so big that you can afford to be little, and fool around here making fires and playing with me. But Larry—did you notice that he spoke of his valet, Joe? He would have a valet!

"However," Tony added in satisfaction, "I think he saw how happy we are; I think he did. Anyway, she did."

Joe's laugh—she loved it, and it was rather rare—broke out.

"They did, unless they've suddenly gone stone blind. You were rubbing it in all over the place! I never saw you look so pretty or heard you laugh so much. You let 'em have it right in the eye."

"Oh, Joe, I didn't!" Tony protested.

"Oh, Tony, you did!"

"I didn't mean to," Tony apologized, looking up penitently into his eyes. But her face was radiant. "The truth is, darling," she said, "that I had rather been dreading meeting Larry. I wasn't exactly conscious why, but in the background of my mind—my soul, all these months, there's been the feeling that I'd be glad to meet him—glad to—well, have it over!"

"And was it so awful?"

"Awful?" Her joyous laugh rang out. "Why, it was—it was flat!" she said. "For the last two years I haven't seen him, you know, and I have seen—I have had the friendship of a real man. And it was almost dizzying, it was almost bewildering to feel my old emotions slipping about and changing places, and to feel under it all 'Joe, Joe, Joe's mine and I'm Joe's forever and ever, and this handsome, important, serious man doesn't mean one thing to me!"

She sat silent, staring into the fire for a long moment, her shoulder pressing in comradely fashion against his knee. "Joe," she said suddenly, "do you know I feel sorry for Larry?"

"I've always felt a little that way about him, I think."

"They were so stupefied," Tony mused, "that I didn't dare spring our real news on them."

"They'd think you were crazy, with this long trip ahead of you, and married only six months."

"Why crazy? There are hospitals and nurses in Rio, I should hope!" Tony said. "Caroline wanted a chinchilla coat. I want something else. That's all there is to it."

Outside the house a soft autumn wind sprang up, whined about the chimney. The dog stirred comfortably on the hearth; two logs fell together and sent up a fresh rush of flame; the lamp burned softly. Tony, her face bright with her own thoughts, stretched a hand up to her shoulder and felt Joe's fingers there.

"What of the way to the end? The end crowns all," she said.

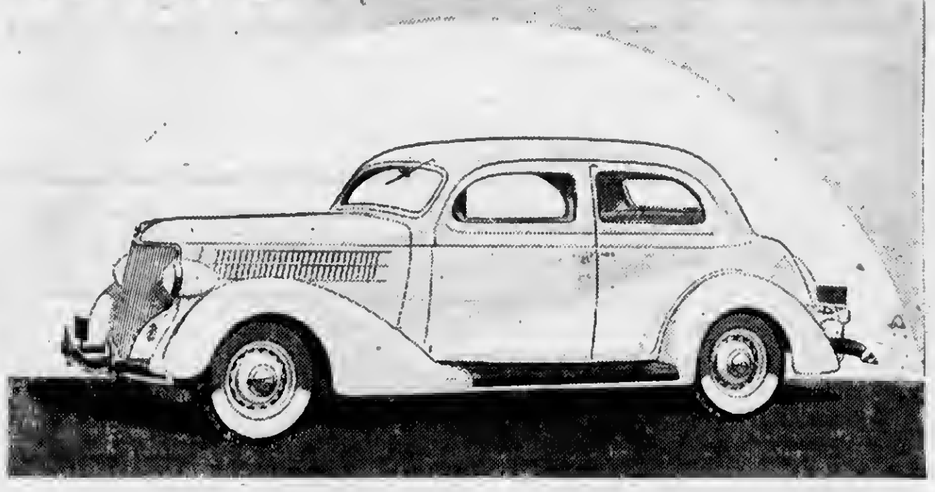
Ford—FOR ECONOMY



"The Ford V-8 uses less fuel and oil for the power it gives than any other car we have ever made AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST"

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better. For, the fact is, it's way down the list.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile. Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car:

More value for every dollar you pay.

Lower cost for repairs and service.

Long life. Slow depreciation.

Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1645 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

WEIGHT TAX RETURN SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Charlevoix Co. Allotted $31,024.64 for First Quarter.

Automobile weight tax returns to counties, amounting to a record total of $11,490,289, are now being mailed for the first quarter of the year.

Of the amount allocated to the counties, only $9,462,262 will actually be paid because $2,028,026 was advanced earlier in the year to aid local governmental units in removing the record snowfall during the past winter.

Current first quarter returns are nearly $3,000,000 more than the amount paid to counties for the same period last year. In 1935, first quarter payments totaled $8,557,303 and in 1934 they were $5,906,000.

Allocations include $31,024.64 for Chalevoix county.

ROSE-WRIGHT WEDDING OF MARCH 22 OF INTEREST IN CHARLEVOIX

Of interest to local residents is the belated announcement of the marriage March 22, at Riverside, Calif., of Mason H. Rose, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Rose, former local residents, to Miss Aileene Wright, prominent debutante of Beverly Hills, Calif.

H., and Duke University, at Durham, N. C. He was a junior at the University of Southern California, where he was an outstanding player on the Trojan football team and assistant tennis coach. Mrs. Rose was also a student at U. of C.

The couple will return in July to Los Angeles, Calif., to make their home, where Mr. Rose will be associated with Mr. Wright in the insurance business and oil industries.

AT THE MOVIES

Ocean-Going Spook In "Ghost Goes West"

A haunted Scottish castle that is transported to America, complete with its ancestral ghost, provides the novel setting for "The Ghost Goes West," Alexander Korda's gay romantic comedy which brings Robert Donat to the Palace Theatre in a dual role April 18-19.

Donat is seen as Donald Glourie, an impoverished young Scotch nobleman who is foreed to sell his ancestral castle to an American millionaire, and also plays the handsome ghost who strolls the castle halls. Eugene Pallette plays the millionaire and Jean Parker provides the love interest as his daughter Peggy.

"Desert Gold" Is Splendid Film Fare

A drama tingling with excitement and suspense, Paramount's "Desert Gold" will open April 22 at the Palace Theatre. The stirring tale of a white man's treachery in his effort to obtain the last of an Indian tribe's wealth, is the basis for one of the most moving tales of the Old West. It is a story that only a master craftsman like Zane Grey could write.

Tom Keene is excellent as the young engineer who falls in love with Marsha Hunt, a charming and capable actress. Monte Blue convincingly plays the mine promoter who kidnaps the Indian, portrayed by Larry "Buster" Crabbe, while the comedy moments in the picture are well carried by Raymond Hatton and Robert Cummings.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

The third in a series of articles on improving the home grounds by Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld.

How to Plan Your Yard: Formal

To many people the term formal implies a garden which is stiff and unpleasant to look at. The reasons for this attitude are that many formal gardens have been poorly designed, and that most of us have been taught to look upon Nature as the ideal from which all gardens should be copied. These attitudes are not well founded for a well-designed formal garden can be more serviceable and offer more possibilities on a small lot than an informal treatment.

The design of the formal garden should be very similar to the design of the house itself. The areas such as the vegetable garden, driveway, etc., are well separated just as are the rooms of the house. This type recognizes that the parts of a garden as well as the parts of a house should be designed as distinct units, that is, areas used for different purposes should be definitely separated from each other. The layout is an extension of the house plan. Both house and garden have been designed for the use of people and therefore the principles which have been worked out for one apply to the other. Most of the rooms in our houses are rectangular in shape for this has been found to be the most satisfactory for our use, and the same is true for the garden.

Whereas the informal garden is composed of irregular shapes as found in nature, the formal garden is composed of geometric forms, definitely man-made. While a very formal house demands a formal garden, an informal house may have a well related garden which is somewhat formal in character.

To be really effective informal plantings require relatively large areas and most of our city lots are too small for this. The neighbor's garage seen through our naturalistic shrub border detracts from the effect which we hoped to produce. Since the rectangularity of the city plan, of the lot lines, and of the architecture of the houses can be seen on all sides, it is better to make the garden in harmony with this. The advantages, then, of a formal treatment are more useful garden areas, more economical use of space, and harmony with the rectangularity of the lot and surrounding buildings.

Some of the characteristics of formal gardens are:

1. Garden is designed for people rather than for plants. Although it sounds like an absurdity, many people are more concerned with providing good conditions for the growth of their plants than for the enjoyment of people. It cannot be over-emphasized that the purpose of a garden is to provide a place for comfortable outdoor living—a place for children to play, for outdoor eating, or for entertainment. A well-designed garden makes adequate provision for these activities, and places the plants in a position of secondary importance.

2. Predominance of geometric lines or shapes. This gives an economical and functional division of the ground area, and creates an outdoor area in harmony with the straight lines of the house.

3. Effect of garden depends on design rather than on plants. Whereas in an informal garden the entire effect is dependent on the combination of plants, in the formal garden the effect is achieved by the relation of the plants to the path, house, garage, and pools or other features.

4. Plant shapes and habits are often altered to achieve effects. As in the building of our houses, wood and stone are shaped to suit our needs so in the development of our formal gardens, we frequently use the clipping shears. Sometimes this is done to prevent a plant from becoming too large or straggling although more frequently it is done to give plants shapes which are harmonious with the design of the garden. This includes clipping hedges and creating geometric accents such as rounded or upright shrubs at the corners of pools.

5. Gardens are frequently symmetrical in balance.

If you want to design your lot formally, take these factors into consideration.

Relation to House

1. Front yard similar to entrance hall of house. The planting along the foundation and boundary lines should leave a lawn area which is fairly regular in shape. It may be completely open to the street or separated from it by a low hedge. A tree or specimen shrub well-placed in relation to the foundation and boundary planting will add interest.

2. Principal axis of garden meets at some important feature, such as a door, window, or flight of steps. The axis is an imaginary line through the center of the garden about which the parts balance. It might be called the backbone of the garden and should be well related to the house.

3. Garden similar to house in general character. Large houses can have large gardens; small houses should have smaller ones. If the house is very formal in character, the garden should be very formal. The material which is used in the house may be repeated in the garden to advantage. For example, a white fence using some of the detail to be found in the house is often used in Colonial gardens.

4. Porch or terrace relates garden to house. Although not necessary such an area will act as a transitional element since it involves some of the characteristics of both. A porch or a small terrace paved with brick or flagstone makes a splendid place from which to enjoy the garden and such areas considerably increase the length of time during which we can use it.

Design of the Garden

1. General outline of garden should be related to lot and house. On most lots the garden will include all of the land between the house and the property lines which is not used in some other way. The general shape will be rectangular although this may be modified somewhat in the design.

2. There should be one dominating feature. This may be a fine tree which was growing on the lot, an open lawn area, a pool, or a shelter. The main feature is generally on the main axis of the garden, and all of the other features should be related and subordinated to it. If a small pool is the feature of the garden, it could be placed either in the center or at the end of the garden. Around it would be placed flower beds and walks which would repeat and accent the original shape of the pool.

3. Paths and walks should be direct and ample in width. They may be either straight or curved but should lead you from where you are to where you want to go. A hard surface such as flagstone or brick will make the garden more usable in wet weather.

4. Flower beds should not be too wide. They may be either borders along the edges of the garden or simple geometric shapes such as squares filling the center panel.

5. Enclosure should be as complete as possible. This enclosure is to give a background for the flowers, and privacy for those using the garden. It may be a clipped or free-growing hedge, a wooden fence, or a wall of stone or brick. The choice of materials may be determined by the character of the house and the money available.

6. Formal areas should be separated from informal areas. This can be done with high or low hedges, shrub borders, fences or walls.

Planting

1. Trees used for background and accents. Large trees such as Elms for backgrounds and Lombardy Poplars for accents may be used. Poplars are particularly valuable because they take up so little space. Frequently, one large tree will furnish sufficient shade for the entire garden.

2. Shrubs used to emphasize design. The shrub planting is almost entirely confined to hedges and accents such as corners of pools or flower beds, near seats and gates. Evergreens may be used as accents in flower borders to add interest.

3. Flowers arranged in well-planned color schemes. The arrangement of flowers in the garden should be just as carefully planned as the arrangement of colors in a living room. Interesting effects are often obtained by limiting the flowers to one or two colors, such as white, white and pink, or blue and yellow.

Accessories

Well placed accessories add greatly to the effect of a small formal yard. These may be such things as walls, steps, pools, seats and shelters. Potted plants used in rows are very effective. The design of all accessories depends upon the character of the house and garden, and many of them can be made at almost no expense.

Announcement of the appointment of the chairman of the four committees of experts to aid the Michigan State Safety Council in its future workwork has been made by Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State and Chairman of the Council.

David H. Crowley, Attorney-General, will head the Legislative committee, which will be asked to draft a code of the motor vehicle laws, for submission to the 1937 legislature.

Murray D. Van Wagoner, State Highway Commissioner, will head the engineering committee, charged with responsibility for making such recommendations as appear required for the increased safety of highway construction.

Chairman of the Educational committee, which will supervise the preparation of material suitable for education of adults and school children against dangers of traffic and other possible hazards of ordinary life, will be Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, State superintendent of public instruction. This official has already been active in promoting courses of instruction in safety in the state's school system.

The group with whom responsibility for coordinating efforts to bring about uniform and impartial enforcement of motor vehicle laws and ordinances, will be Oscar G. Olander, Commissioner of State Police.

The chairmen will shortly announce their selections of committee members. Each committee will include about 25 members.

Creation of the four committees is the outcome of the general statewide safety conference held in Lansing March 19, on invitation of the Secretary of State. Representatives of legal, enforcement, engineering and educational groups attended the conference.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Eggs, together with beets, cabbage, carrots and spinach are the best values available in perishable foods. Meats with the exception of veal are higher and butter is also higher.

Excellent values are available in canned foods and particularly peaches. A large surplus is available which the California farmers and packers hope to dispose of before the new crop ripens. Stocking up on this food now will save you money, help the balance of production and consumption and help you give your family attractive dishes they will enjoy.

Cantaloupes, honeydews and grapes are swelling the list of available fruits. Homegrown rhubarb is now coming to market though the standbys still are bananas, oranges, grapefruit and apples. Strawberries and pineapples are moderate in price.

Here are three menus planned for different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner

Braised Chuck Steak Potatoes
Sliced Beets
Bread and Butter
Tapioca Cream
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Roast Loin of Pork Potatoes
Creamed New Cabbage
Bread and Butter
Peach Upside Down Cake
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

Clear Soup
Roast Beef Browned Potatoes
Asparagus on Toast
Lettuce Russian Dressing
Rolls and Butter
Fresh Pineapple Orange Cake

Why People Sometimes Do Such Stupid Things

FINE EASTER SERVICES CONDUCTED SUNDAY

Splendid Programs and Lerge Attendence at Methodist Church

All three of the special Easter services at the local Methodist church were of the most unusual interest, fine in worshipful value, and beautiful as well.

There was a large attendance Good Friday. This is an old institution, dating from the famous pastorate of Rev. Quinton Walker, who came here in 1912, and stayed six years. For this service, the front of the church was darkened at the windows, for the lighting effects of the play, "In Pilate's Hall," put on by 11 characters, and was specially well given. The two solos of Mrs. C. F. Krieghoff were a most delightful and worshipful addition to the program, being selected with much taste, and executed with fine interpretation, and splendid tonal quality.

For so early an hour, the sunrise service was well attended, the church being over half full. This service was called "Among the Lilies," a large number of this particular flower being provided by the classes of the Sunday school. Miss McMillan gave a very appropriate reading, portraying the strange story the Roman guard told his wife when he returned home. Leslie Shapton gave a beautiful instrumental number, and Mrs. Hurd a short address.

The regular service was postponed until 11 o'clock, which seems a good arrangement, when there is a sunrise service. This was largely attended. The pastor used the text, "Death Could Not Hold Him." Five adults were received into church membership.

JOHN JOHNSON TO BE HONORED HERE

PIONEER'S 100TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY MONDAY

Business Places Will Close for Public Meeting at Gymnasium at 1:15—Program Arranged

John Johnson, Charlevoix's "grand old man," will be 100 years old on Monday, April 27th, and this city is preparing to pay homage to him.

A public meeting will be held at 1:15 at the gymnasium. Business places close between 1 and 2 o'clock, school pupils, the American Legion, Baxter Relief Corps and civic organizations will attend in a body.

The brief program will include band music, several vocal solos and five-minute talks reminescing on Johnson's citizenship, his church activities and early history. The event is sponsored by the Board of Commerce and ladies of the Methodist church.

John Johnson, former Confederate soldier, is honorary member and sole survivor of the local G. A. R. Post. The honor was bestowed upon him about 40 years ago when the post had a roster of over 100, despite the fact that he had been a Confederate soldier. He served not from choice but was drafted. His mother, Katherine Johnson, was a Carolinian, and his father, Samuel Johnson, a Virginian. Like his mother, John did not sympathize with the southern cause, though his father and brother fought for the Confederacy. The fother is believed to have died while a prisoner of war.

After being drafted, Johnson's company was sent to Clarkesville, Tenn. After the fall of Fort Donnelson, his company was ordered to fall back to Nashville, Tenn., where the officers and many of the men, together with Johnson, deserted. Johnson came north with his wife, intending to join the Union army but did not do so. After short residences in Ohio and Iowa, he came to Michigan and took up a homestead near Ellsworth, moving five years later to Charlevoix, then a small community of log cabins.

One of Johnson's first jobs in Charlevoix was to assist in cutting a road through the virgin timber between Charlevoix and Petoskey. Few white men were on the job, most of the work being done by Indians. He worked later as a lumber culler and farmed for many years. About 43 years ago he became groundskeeper at the Belvedere Club. He is still caretaker for a number of resort cottagers.

It is one of Johnson's boasts that he has never missed voting since he cast his first ballot for the presidential candidate of the Know Nothing party in 1858. He is a charter member of the local Methodist church and has rarely missed attendance.

Charlevoix county supervisors adjourned their spring meeting last Wednesday after a two-day session.

A tentative budget of $79,800, requiring nine mills, the same as last year, was adopted.

The board granted $1,000 to the Charlevoix County Emergency Relief, $500 for April and, if needed, $500 to apply on May and June relief. The county will be represented on relief matters by three members of the poor committee, who, when called, will act in an advisory capacity. The board recommended relief be refused habitual users of liquor.

A refund of $103.09 in taxes collected in Charlevoix from soldiers' widows and paid to the county was granted.

HONORS AWARDED FOR SCHOLARSHIP

CARL BEATTIE IS CHOSEN AS CLASS VALEDICTORIAN

Miss Adeline Bellinger Named Salutatorian of 1936 Senior Class —Others Recognized

Scholarship awards for the 1936 graduating class of Charlevoix High school have been announced by Harry E. Bingham, high school principal.

Clare Beattie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Beattie, of Barnard, is the valedictorian. He achieved the honor by recording a scholarship average of 96.1 during the four high school years. Fine work in the school band as a cornetist, excellent support of class activities and a fine part in a class play indicate a well-rounded preparation for a future college career.

Miss Adeline Bellinger, daughter of William C. Bellinger, is class salutatorian with a four-year average of 92.2 per cent. Other than scholastic interest is apparent in Miss Bellinger's career. She has been a member of a junior orchestra, active in the work of the Girls' League, has taken a leading part in a junior class play, "Seventeen," and has shown an active support of girls' athletics.

Other members of the class whose work in high school has won recognition are Gloria Dickie, Garvey Pollard, Monica McHugh, Ernestine Nickerson, Charles Scott, Rosemary Cooper, Esther West and Christina Withers.

Commencement exercises for the senior class will be held Wednesday, June 3rd, at the high school auditorium.

CHILD HEALTH LEAGUE MEETS AT BOYNE CITY

Annual Session Is Scheduled for Wednesday, May 6th

The annual meeting of the Charlevoix County Child Health League will be held at Boyne City, Wednesday, May 6. A dinner will be served at 6:45 in the school gymnasium.

The League is particularly fortunate in being able to secure Floyd Starr, president of the Starr Commonwealth for Boys at Albion, as guest speaker. Even under ordinary circumstances it is unusual to obtain Mr. Starr for a speaking engagement in this northern territory and, since the disastrous fire of last winter, which destroyed one of the school's large buildings, all speaking engagements have been refused. However, because of the association of Mrs. William Tindall, of Boyne City, with the Starr school as field secretary, and Mr. Starr's interest in the aims and work of the Child Health League he consented to speak.

All fathers and mothers, teachers and others interested in the physical and mental health of young people should take advantage of this opportunity.

COUNCIL APPROVES COMMERCE BUDGET

NEWLY REORGANIZED BOARD OF COMMERCE PRESENTS PROGRAM REQUIRING OUTLAY OF $4,260

Stage Is Set for Summer Activities Including Advertising, Tennis, Golf, Water Events, Conservation Program—Vote Permanent Secretary and Sports Director

Approval Monday night by the city council of a Board of Commerce budget aggregating $4,260 for resort promotional activities set the stage for the most ambitious summer advertising and recreational program this city has attempted in years.

Without a word of dissension and with a spirit manifesting 100 per cent cooperation with the efforts of the newly reorganized Board of Commerce, the council action assured financing of a program which promises to put Charlevoix in the foreground among Northern Michigan resort cities.

Another encouraging note in the efforts of the Board of Commerce is the response to its membership drive. Henry E. Buddy, chairman, reports approximately 300 paid memberships with the campaign still in its infancy.

Under the new set-up, the city council will pay all bills from the funds approved in the budget. No bills will be honored unless O. K.'d by the finance committee of the Board. Care will be taken to see that there is no overlapping of undertakings or expense. Such organizations as the Sportsmen's Club, Charlevoix Polar Bear Winter Sports Club, Tennis Club, Yacht Club, etc., will cooperate with the proper Board of Commerce committee in the preparation of activities falling under their several controls. The city will not make any contributions for the support of these activities other than what is already provided in the budget appropriation.

Meetings of the board of directors will be held each Wednesday evening at the council rooms at 5 p. m. Anyone wishing to bring suggestions before the Board should put same in writing and get it in their hands before the next regular meeting, or else make appointment to appear in person before the Board. Communications may be addressed to the secretary, F. V. Tyler, P. O. Box 74.

On Thursday evening, April 30th, at the Charlevoix High school gymnasium, there will be a free public meeting and entertainment. This meeting will interest adults, principally, although if there are any mothers or fathers who cannot come without their children it is perfectly permissible to bring them. The entertainment will consist of music by the city band, amateur stunts, possibly a motion picture and an outside speaker with an interesting message. Officers of the Board of Commerce will endeavor to explain what the organization is planning to do this year to make Charlevoix a better resort than ever before.

The secretary will be maintained in his office and will have charge of the license plates, the regular correspondence of the Board of Commerce and such correspondence and other detail office work as the committee chairmen and the directors may have for him to do. He will also conduct the information and employment bureau as formerly. He will be paid a straight salary. Revenue from license plate and stieker sales that formerly went to the secretary will be diverted into the budget funds of the Board of Commerce and used to apply on the salary of a sports and game director, who will be hired for the summer months to coordinate and personally supervise the various outdoor activities.

This program is quite comprehensive and will include such features as baseball, soft-ball, shuffle-board, golf, tennis, water sports, Venetian boat parades, small yacht races, track competitions for the youngsters, outdoor entertainment of various kinds.

Advertising plans include the compiling of a new, attractive illustrated folder setting forth the attractions of Charlevoix, radio advertising with broadcasts from St. Louis, Detroit and Cincinnati, repainting of Charlevoix advertising signs along the highways and placing of new signs at strategic points.

The conservation committee figures on compiling complete information on fishing throughout the county, including location of streams and lakes with names of boat owners along their shores who will rent their craft, best routes to get there and types of fish to be found. The planting and feeding of fish and care of the rearing ponds, fish pools and aquariums will be shared with the Sportsmen's Club and even forestry will have its place among the committee's charges.

The entertainment committee will be charged with the duty of conducting public meetings and entertainments and the reception of conventions, visiting delegations and cruise tourists, notable visitors or public officials.

The industry and employment committee have no definite plans as yet, but are standing by ready to take over anything that promises greater industrial development for Charlevoix or increased employment. This committee is really, however, one of the most important.

The winter sports committee, consisting of the officers of the Charlevoix Polar Bear Winter Sports Club, which was re-formed last fall, is quietly working out plans for the winter of 1936-37. It is a little early yns yet, to quiz them on details.

There has been no change in the personnel of committees as reported last week, except for the addition of Ivan Falconer to the entertainment committee. According to the revision of budget apportionments made last Thursday evening, they now stand as follows:

Committees	Amount
Games and Sports	$ 300
Marine	650
Conservation	260
Advertising	1,500
Winter Sports	50
Executive Expense	1,000
Total Budget	$4,260

With the fine response that it has so far met from the public, the city officials and other civic organizations and with the spirit of zeal and harmonious cooperation that has been evidenced by the directorate and members, the new Board of Commerce should make for itself an indispensable place in the life and business of this community.

LOCAL BANK JOINS FEDERAL RESERVE

COUNTY STATE BANK ANNOUNCES CHANGE

Greater Service to People of Community Made Available Through New Connection

Announcement has been made by Robert Bridge, president, that the Charlevoix County State Bank has joined the Federal Reserve System.

In making the announcement, Mr. Bridge stated that officers and directors had been considering the move for many months. Early in 1936 formal application was made for membership and the bank examined by Federal Reserve examiners. Having established the required reserves and complied with the rigid requirements of the Federal Reserve Board, the institution was officially notified of membership on April 17th.

The Federal Reserve System established by an act of Congress in 1913, has been a great central bank for the use of member banks. The rediscount privilege and the central clearing system has greatly facilitated the banking business throughout the country.

During the summer season Charlevoix citizens are asked to accept checks from summer visitors living in distant cities. Membership in the Federal Reserve System means faster service on the clearing of these outside checks and drafts. The local banking institution, already a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation with deposits insured up to $5,000, expects through membership in the Federal Reserve System to keep a closer touch with federal banking regulations and tie into the scheme as outlined by the federal banking acts of 1933 and 1935.

The Charlevoix County Bank, originally organized in 1884 and then through reorganization chartered the Charlevoix County State Bank in 1934, is one of the old established institutions of Charlevoix. Membership in the Federal Reserve System will place the bank in a better position to serve the people of this community.

COUNCIL ORGANIZATION COMPLETE

MAYOR BERGEON NAMED BALANCE COMMITTEEMEN

Repeal of Amusing, Antiquated Ordinances of Olden Days Part of Monday Night Action

Completion of the reorganization of the city council for the ensuing year was but one of numerous items of important business transacted Monday evening.

While committee chairmen were named at the first meeting of the new council last Monday, Mayor Bergeon completed the personnel of the committees at this week's session. The complete line-up, with the first named as chairman, follows:

Streets, sewers and public health —Ald. Carey, Cartier and Kibbe.

Police, fire and license—Ald. Ranger, Kibbe and Hallett.

Parks and water front—Ald. Hallett, Ranger and Campbell.

Charter, ordinance and advertising—Ald. Cartier, Campbell and Carey.

Finance, printing and purchasing —Ald. Campbell, Carey and Ranger.

Several matters were referred to committees, including leasing concession rights for handling freight at the new city dock; the purchase of pipe to replace water main on Ferry avenue which was broken by frost last winter; the matter of placing "No Speeding" signs on US-31 in the north and south side districts, also of stop signs at all intersections on US-31 not already supplied.

Robert Bridge reported for the Kiwanis on a proposal to turn the Charlevoix Golf Club course over to the city for operation and maintenance. This matter was referred to the committee as a whole to investigate and report at the next regular meeting.

The Curfew Shall Not Ring!

The council adopted an ordinance which had for its purpose the repeal of numerous antiquated ordinances adopted many years ago to provide regulations essential in those times. One repealed prohibited humans, animals or vehicles from crossing the swing bridge faster than a walk. Another prohibited horses and mules from roaming at large within the village limits. Children under the age of 14 years were given a "break" with repeal of a curfew ordinance which provided they be off the streets or home from public places, including the post office, after 8 o'clock. Another ordinance repealed provided for a sealer of weights whose duties were to see that the public did not get gyped on the weight of coal, fruits, farm produce, etc. The state now provides that protection.

ANGLERS WAIT OPENING TROUT SEASON SATURDAY

Barring Heavy Rains, Streams of the County Will Be Normal

Compliance to a prayer from anglers for warm weather alone stands in the way of a normal opening of the 1936 trout fishing season in Charlevoix county on Saturday, April 25.

Due to the total absence of frost from the ground, a four-inch snowfall Monday is disappearing slowly and is not expected to alter water conditions which have been practically normal for more than a week. Barring the possibility of heavy rains between now and Saturday, streams should be in good condition.

While only the most optimistic give the fly fishermen even an outside chance due to persistent cold weather and subsequent lack of "bugs," the true fly adherent will stick to his feathers and leave the bait plugger content with the satisfaction his is the only way, and in all likelihood it will prove thus.

Many Charlevoix fishermen are preparing for the opening with the Jordan and Cedar rivers out in front in popularity.

SCHOOL BAND WILL GIVE FREE CONCERT

PLANT FOOD AIDS FARM GARDENS

Expert Suggests Commercial Fertilizers with Available Manure.

Proper attention to plant food in the farm garden can make an enormous increase in the yield of vegetables, suggests James Tyson, assistant professor and research assistant in the soils department at Michigan State College.

Barnyard manure is the natural fertilizer to use on farm gardens because it is available and requires no financial outlay. Yet valuable as it is as a source of plant food, applied regularly at intervals of two or three years, he recommends the addition of some commercial fertilizer to the garden soil.

"For clay soils, add 400 pounds of 4-16-4 or 2-16-2 to the manure application of 10 to 15 loads per acre. For loams and sandy loams," Professor Tyson recommends, "use 400 pounds of 4-16-8 or 600 pounds of 2-12-6 per acre. For beans and peas in clay soils use 0-20-2 fertilizer or 0-14-6 in loam or sandy loam garden soil.

"Barnyard manure should be spread over the garden before plowing. Some of the fertilizer may be broadcast over the surface and plowed under and some of it saved to spread in the bottom of the row and covered with soil before planting seeds. Another good method is to apply the fertilizer in parallel bands two inches on each side of the seed row and a little below the seed. This is especially useful in the potato rows."

Farm gardens strongly acid in reaction will respond to the use of lime says Professor Tyson, but he does not recommend an application on soil to be used for growing potatoes because of the greater danger from scab injury.

DAIRYMEN WASTE MONEY FOR FEEDS

College Research Indicates Half Million Can Be Saved on Dairy Costs

Dairy farmers in Michigan needlessly spend more than $500,000 in purchasing "shot gun" commercial mineral mixtures that are not needed, says Dr. C. F. Huffman, professor and research associate in dairy husbandry at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

"Under our conditions, with alfalfa so abundant, odorless steam bone meal is all that is needed in the vast majority of instances in dairy feed rations," Dr. Huffman points out. "Occasionally a small amount of iodine is necessary. For this purpose either sodium or potassium iodine can be used by mixing one ounce of either with 10 pounds of salt and then remixing this 10 pounds of salt with 90 pounds of salt to make up 100 pounds of iodized salt. Or the commercial iodized salt may be purchased."

Dr. Huffman's statements are based on ten years of experimentation in which scores of dairy cattle were fed for five years or more. The special mineral mixtures now offered commercially at prices from $75 to $100 per ton were found to be luxuries that cannot be afforded because of the effect of increased cost of production. One hundred pounds of odorless steam bone meal costs about $2.25 in most places in Michigan and is sufficient for three or more cows for a year.

The Miracle Becomes a Commonplace

THIS Michigan gentleman takes modern telephone service calmly. He does no marveling over the fact that he can so easily call up a friend to ask about a sledding party, or to find out tomorrow's assignment in arithmetic.

And yet his father knew a day when it was still considered a miracle that two people, miles apart, could talk to one another just as if they were standing face to face. He can remember when the telephone was a curiosity, when the service was slow, expensive and almost entirely restricted to local use.

What changed the miracle to a commonplace? Why did telephones in Michigan, during a single generation, increase from 340,000 to 630,000?

The chief factor behind this change was value. A constantly growing usefulness made the telephone a good "buy." Each year additional thousands of people found it worth more than it cost. Every new telephone installed broadened the range—and value—of the others. The service grew steadily more prompt, more dependable. New uses were found for it. Subscribers learned that it brought them profitable convenience, comfort, protection. And the telephone, meanwhile, changed from a curiosity to an indispensable part of the social and business life of Michigan.

The sincere desire of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company is that each year shall see greater telephone value rendered for every dollar of telephone cost.

HISTORY AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS of CAMP WOLVERINE

Carlos Laguire, Chief Foreman

On the morning of June 6, 1933 the first rookies caught sight of their new home in the wilderness at the present site of CCC Camp Wolverine 54-S in the Harlwood State Forest. Their principle aim was to be the preservation of the area's natural resources. That was three years ago.

The CCC movement celebrated its third birthday on the 31st day of March and the progress in forestry and all conservation work is a monument to three years efforts. The rehabilitation of the youth is and has been a much discussed topic. There has arisen the question in the general public's mind "Just what are we getting out of the CCC in actual constructive value?" "Is our money being well spent and toward the right goal?" The following resume of three years activities at this camp is a partial enlightment on the subject.

Camp Wolverine is situated in the most north-easterly corner of Charlevoix county and has expended its efforts in two additional counties, Emmet and Cheboygan. The original plan placed the camp within the boundaries of the Hardwood State Forest for the purpose of increasing the length of firclines and truck trails, planting, fire hazard clean up and forest culture. This soon expanded to a more practical plan whereby the entire conservation department in this district benefited more or less by the camp's activities.

In addition to the work on the State Forest lands work on State parks was taken up, and projects were initiated by the Field Administration Division in which hazardous conditions were corrected in the general plan of fire prevention. The Fish Division derived numerous benefits from the labor as well as all the other divisions in the department, Geological, Game, Blister Rust, and Land Economic Survey.

The plan as set up provided for the correct supervision of all work by competant foremen, who were highly proficient in their own lines, through the Supervising Agency called "Michigan Emergency Conservation Work." No field work has been done without the prior approval of some division of the Conservation Agencies.

Truck Trails for the rapid transportation of men and equipment in the event of forest fire, have been constructed within the bounds of the Hardwood State Forest. Eight miles of fire lines have been built. Two thousand seven hundred acres of forest land have been planted to Norway, white-pine, and Jack-pine. Thirty-four miles of lineal survey have been completed. A septic and disposal system and a complete water system has been built, and installed at Forest Headquarters. The Headquarters Grounds were improved and landscaped; road direction and boundary signs built and erected. Insect pest control and survey; seed collection for the seeding of the state pine nursery at Higgins Lake; and hardwood seed collection for the hardwood nursery now under construction within the Hardwood State Forest boundaries were other activities. Painting and general maintenance on the forest headquarters dwelling, procurement of two hundred telephone poles and 300 fence posts are finished projects for the Hardwood State Forest alone.

Five and one-half miles of telephone line were constructed for the fire fighting system. The old Whiting park fire tower was dismantled and a new and improved tower of modern design was erected at the old location. The road leading to the Hudson Tower in Hudson Twp. of Charlevoix county has been improved to provide rapid and easy access to the tower. Considerable fire hazard reduction work has been carried on in conjunction with the fire division. This work is probably one of the most important from the fire-fighter's viewpoint, especially in this territory of heavy timber slash and thick ground cover which is always evident after heavy lumbering operations.

Park activities have absorbed considerable time and work expended. Camp Wolverine has worked in two of the most beautiful parks in the State. Young's Park on Lake Charlevoix near Boyne City and Burt Lake State Park on Burt Lake near Indian River. These locations have us their inherent attraction positions on beautiful lakes offering excellent fishing, boating, and bathing. At Young's Park we have been instrumental in aiding in the construction of a service building, modern in every respect, for the comforts of campers and bathers. Flowing water has been provided by the construction, by CCC and ECW, of pressure water system of some twenty-five hundred gallons capacity, fed by a flowing well and pressure provided by a hooster pump.

Parking lots, guard rails, foot paths, camping ground improvements construction of camp stoves and fireplaces, construction of latrines and toilets, landscaping, beach clean-up and building of an entrance road to the Park and a caretaker's dwelling are but a few of the activities carried on at both parks.

Ground Water Survey Projects carried on by the Geological Division have covered an area of some twenty-four thousand acres. This primarily is intended for fire protection purposes; in locating sources of immediate and adequate supplies of water.

Blister Rust eradication has been carried on and three thousand and twenty-five acres of this eradication work was done in the year of 1935 alone.

Land Economic Survey Projects have been initiated and consumated county, two-thirds of Charlevoix county, and a small portion of the southern extremities of Emmet county.

The development of streams and lakes for the fish division has improved fishing conditions. The work carried on at the Oden Fish Hatchery by Camp Wolverine is considered by the departmental representatives to be of the highest value, especially the construction of fish rearing ponds.

Last but not least is the expenditure of 267 man-days on actual fire suppression in this teritory. Due to rapid transportation methods and the willingness of the men with their immediate equipment, the camp has prevented considerable loss both in timber wastage and man-power.

LIMITED SPEARING ALLOWED UNTIL MAY 15TH

Non-Trout Streams Open for Taking of Several Fish Species.

A limited use of the spear and the dip-net is permitted under law this spring until May 15 for the taking of certain species of non-game fish in non-trout streams not otherwise closed and in certain designated trout streams of the state.

The spear may be used without artificial light for carp, suckers, redhorse, mullet, dogfish and garpike in the rivers and streams not otherwise closed to spearing and in certain designated streams or portions of streams. Artificial light may only be used in designated streams.

Dip-nets, not to exceed nine feet square, may be used to take suekers, carp, dogfish and garpike in non-trout rivers and streams, except Muskegon river, and in other rivers and streams or portions of streams designated by the director of conservation. Local conservation officers will gladly give information as to whether local streams are open to either spearing or netting.

CCC ENROLLEES SOUND THUMB, STANDARD LAKE

Information to be Used for Fish Improvement Activities.

Maps and plats upon which are incorporated all of the data obtained in the sounding survey of Thumb and Standard Lakes in the Hardwood State Forest area, have been forwarded by CCC Camp Wolverine to the Fish Division of the Michigan Department of Conservation, chief foreman Carlos LaGuire reports.

Survey work by camp enrollees was under the supervision of junior civil engineer Harvey Eustrom. It was completed March 13th. Data obtained was later transferred to the maps and plats.

The data includes depth at regular intervals, topography, forest cover types, and other physical features of the land surrounding the lakes for one-half mile back from the shores, and information concerning the bottom soil and weed beds in the lake.

This information will be used by Fish Division experts as the basis for future improvement and development work in the lakes.

LAND O' LAKES IS NO PLACE FOR SNEEZES SAYS CARVETH WELLS

Hay fever sufferers take notice.

Carveth Wells, popular explorer, author and star of Continental Oil Company's Sunday radio hour, says that hay fever sneezes are as rare as the Dodo bird in the beautiful lake regions of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

The farther north you go the more sneeze proof you become, Wells has discovered. Eventually, even the old-fashioned snuff box seems to lose its efficiency.

Other intriguing facts about the Land O' Lakes—"a vacation paradise everyone from Junior to Grandma will vote for"—are to be broadcast by Wells Sunday, April 19, over 30 of the nation's best known stations.

"Wisconsin offers river scenery at least equal to that found along the Rhine in Germany," according to Conoco's genial globetrotter. "And in Minnesota, with at least 10,000 lakes to choose from, there's really no reason for not learning to 'paddle your own canoe'. Some of the grandest scenery in Michigan is to be found in Hiawatha land in the state's Upper Peninsula."

Local listeners who wish to tune in on Wells Sunday, April 19, may do so by dialing station WGN at 10:15 o'clock.

Christmas trees for eastern markets were imported from Vermont, Maine, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, New Hampshire, West Virginia, Oregon, Washington, and the Canadian provinces of Quebec, New Brunswick, Ontario, and Nova Scotia.

WILLIS HOLSTEIN HERD IN TEST ASSOCIATION

Well Known Hayes Farmer Has Joined Northern Association

The Holstein herd, owned by Fred Willis, Orchard Bay Farm, was recently put on test in the Northwest Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

This herd was well know around Charlevoix a few years ago. Under the management of Fred Willis as herdsman, it averaged 420.9 pounds of butterfat per cow in 1925-26, and came back next year with 402.28 pounds. Individual cows in the herd made high records, too. One cow was highest in the county in 1924-25 with a production of 499.6 pounds of butterfat, another made 509.2 pounds the year following.

The Northwest Michigan Dairy Herd Improvement Association includes dairymen and herds in Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, Cheboygan, and various other nearby counties. It was organized in June, 1933, and is now completing its third successful year. The records kept on members' herds have been used to locate cull cows, as a guide to better feeding of the good cows, and to prove sires by obtaining records on their daughters.

REPUBLICANS AVOIDED ANY PARTY RIFTS

Courier Corrects Error in Reporting Endorsement at Co. Convention

The Courier erred last week in announcing the endorsements passed by the Charlevoix county Republican convention last Tuesday evening.

It was stated the convention endorsed Senator James Couzens for renomination to the United States Senate. This was erroneous, as the convention avoided any possibility of establishing a rift within the party over the candidacies of Senator Couzens and former Governor Wilber M. Brucker by not endorsing either candidate as against the other.

We don't need men with new ideas as much as we need men who will put energy behind the old ideas.

OPEN BOWLING ALLEY HERE NEXT SATURDAY

Packard Duck Pin Bowling Ass'n Locating in Powers Building

Lovers of the sport of bowling are showing much interest in the new duck pin bowling alleys, which are now being built in the Cy Powers building in this city, and which will be opened next Saturday evening at 7:30.

The alleys, which are owned and operated by the Packard Duck Pin Bowling Association, an organization operating alleys in many states of the middle west, are entirely new alleys and the best that can be obtained. A year's lease has been taken on the Powers building, thus assuring the bowlers of Charlevoix that the institution is to be a permanent one. L. J. Hansen, of Greenville, has already moved to this city and will have active management here. He is one of the foremost bowlers of the middle west and is a partner of the organization.

Mr. Hansen informs us that the alleys will be run on a high moral plane, and that ladies will find nothing objectionable in the moral atmosphere of the place. He states that fully one-third of the elientele of the Packard alleys is composed of ladies.

A very unique feature of the Charlevoix bowling alleys is the fact that no merchandise of any kind will be offered for sale, that all the materials for their construction was purchased locally, and that, with the exception of the manager, all of the 15 people employed will be local people.

For the opening night, Saturday evening at 7:30, many special features will be emphasized, including the rolling of the first ball by a representative of the city, and an exhibition match between four lady teams of the city. Ladies and gentlemen are cordially invited to attend the opening and welcome the new organization to our city.

LITTLE "8" PLANS SPRING ATHLETICS

BASEBALL LEAGUE AND TRACK MEET INCLUDED

Conference Title to Be Decided May 30th, Date of Field Meet — Officers Re-Elected

Plans for spring athletic activities of the Northern Michigan Class C Conference (Little Eight) were formulated at the annual meeting of the group held Saturday at Boyne City.

Present officers were re-elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Hugh Doyle, Gnylord; vice-president, Stewart Coleman, Charlevoix; secretary-treasurer, James Quinn, Harbor Springs.

A baseball schedule was arranged in which each conference school will play five games. The conference was split into east and west districts, with Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Harbor Springs in the western district, and Gaylord, Grayling, Kalkaska and Mancelona in the eastern division. The winners in each district will meet in a play-off for the conference baseball title at either East Jordan or Mancelonn on May 30th, the date set for the annual conference track meet.

Charlevoix's baseball schedule calls for two home and three away from home games as follows: April 28, Harbor Springs here; May 1, Charlevoix at East Jordan; May 8, Charlevoix at Boyne City; May 15, Charlevoix at Harbor Springs; May 22, East Jordan at Charlevoix.

Baseball practice opened Tuesday afternoon indoors at the gymnasium. Outdoor practice will start as soon as weather conditions permit. Coach Kipke has a group of 23 candidates from which to build a team. In the group are six veterans from last year's squad, including Kenneth Cellner, catcher, Gordon Cummings, Frank Kulpa, Leslie Shapton and Edward Radle. Mound duties will probably be shared by Dan Gallagher, Frank Kulpa and George Greeley, although no selection for positions has yet been named.

Outstanding among Charlevoix's entries for track will be Ed. Radle, who set a record for the mile at the district meet in Cadillac and placed second in the same event at the state meet.

JUNIOR FARMERS COMPETE MAY 7, 8

Will Hold 17th Annual Program at Michigan State College

Junior farmers in Michigan in 150 of the state's 192 federally-aided Smith Hughes vocational agricultural high schools are sharpening their wits for the 17th annual Junior Farmers' week to be held on the campus of Michigan State College, East Lansing, Thursday and Friday, May 7 and 8.

In 1935 the judging, demonstration and entertainment program attracted 2,503 in judging competitions in grain, livestock, dairy, potatoes, poultry and speaking, in addition to 265 delegates in convention from the 170 chapters of Michigan's Future Farmers of America organization.

MARSHALL-VAN ZON NUPTIALS WERE READ WEDNESDAY EVENING

A pretty wedding took place last Wednesday evening when Miss Frances Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Marshall, of Charlevoix, became the bride of John L. van Zon, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. van Zon, Sr., of Petoskey.

Rev. E. P. Linnell read the double ring service at 9 o'clock at the apartment of the groom's parents, 309 Howard street, in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride was lovely in a white taffeta gown and carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas tied with white satin ribbon. The bridesmaid, Miss Evelyn Seymour, of Charlevoix, was gowned in grey crepe and wore a corsage of yellow rose-buds and orchid sweet peas. Nick van Zon, Jr., brother of the groom, was best man.

A supper was served following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a lovely bouquet of American Beauty roses and the bride's cake.

Mr. and Mrs. van Zon will be at home to their friends at 308 Grove street, Petoskey.

Mrs. van Zon is a graduate of the Charlevoix High school class of '32 and Mr. van Zon a graduate of the high school class of Rochester, Mich., in 1929. Mrs. van Zon was the 1936 Winter Queen of Charlevoix and took a prominent part in Michigan's Ninth Winter Carnival at Petoskey. Mrs. van Zon is a member of Petoskey's Figure Skating Club and is well known for his fancy skating exhibitions.

RESCUED AFTER 11 DAYS IN DISABLED FISH BOAT

Three Local Men Taken Off Their Craft at Frankfort

Capt. Ernest Smith, of this city, Irving Nowland and Beverly Buggs, crew members, who had drifted aboard their disabled tug, Bonnie, for 11 days in Lake Michigan, were rescued last Wednesday.

The coast guard cutter Escanaba picked up the Bonnie and towed her to South Manitou Island. Subsequently the tug was towed to Frankfort harbor and brought in by the coast guard cutter there. It had lost its propeller after the shaft had broken.

Smith said that the vessel approached land twice while it drifted about in the lake, but that offshore winds had forced it back into the open water. Two days' provisions on the craft had to be rationed out, and the coal supply was almost exhausted when the Bonnie reached South Manitou Island.

Attempts to rescue the helpless tug from Charlevoix failed and resulted in four members of the local unit becoming ice-bound at Beaver Islnnd. George Kelderhouse, Quinton Duhm, James Marsh nnd Ira Weeden, who started out last Wednesday in the life boat to search for the tug Bonnie, have been marooned since that time at Beaver Island, and are awaiting favorable conditions to return to the station here.

He is independent of any human creed, but is refreshingly loyal to God's Word. He makes a strong appeal to the intellect and heart. As a public speaker he stands well in the front rank.

HAROLD LAMB, CHARLEVOIX, ANTRIM DIRECTOR

Given Clean Bill by Reversal of Grand Jury Findings

Harold F. Lamb was named Antrim county relief administrator Monday by the State Emergency Relief Commission, and recommendations of a committee of county officials were adopted in full.

Lamb is now Charlevoix county relief director and under the new arrangement will be joint administrator for the two counties.

Charlevoix county supervisors acted similarly to those of Antrim county in Lamb's behalf. They endorsed him through a resolution signed by all members.

Regarding a recent grand jury investigation in Antrim county, Dr. William Haber, state relief director, told the commission after receiving a supplemental report of grand jury findings, dated April 18, "there is evidently nothing to it and methods objected to by the grand jury were changed April 1, 1934."

Chairman William J. Norton, of Detroit, said "the grand jury took the easy way out."

Haber announced that all recommendations in the supplemental report will be followed with the reinstatement of Lamb, former Antrim county administrator.

The report was signed by Circuit Judge Parm C. Gilbert, of Traverse City, who investigated the case as a one-man grand jury, Sheriff Carl E. Rushton and Prosecuting Attorney Robert Dunham of Antrim county.

BEAVER TRAPPERS RECEIVE BETTER PRICES

Spring Trapping Season in Lower Peninsula Closed April 15th

Michigan beaver trappers benefited by a marked rise in the prices on pelts this year. At Howard City 60 beaver pelts of various sizes brought an average of $11 a pelt. At Big Rapids a catch of 15 beaver pelts brought $181. Last spring the price on Michigan beaver pelts averaged approximately eight dollars, according to reports received by the Department of Conservation.

The 15-day beaver trapping season in the Upper Peninsula closed April 15; in the open areas of the Lower Peninsula it closed March 31.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

The fourth in a series of articles on improving the home grounds by Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld.

How to Build a Rock Garden

During the last few years rock gardens have become increasingly popular as features of home ground developments. While they are in part a fad, there are good reasons for their popularity. Their chief virtue is that they permit us to get a larger amount of interest in a small area than is possible with any other type of garden. A ten-foot space beside the garage, or a bay in the shrubbery border, is all that you need to develop an interesting garden of this type. This is made possible by the fact that the scale of these gardens and the flowers used in them are very small. Here we can have delicate and exciting little plants, which would never survive in our flower borders, and they can be seen to their fullest advantage.

A rock garden like other informal gardens is derived from nature. Here we are dealing with an aspect of nature which is much less common in the central west than the natural plantings which we emulate in our shrub borders. It is an attempt much like the one made by the Japanese in their gardens to secure natural effects in a small area.

Where should the rock garden be placed? Not in the middle of a lawn or along the edge of a sidewalk for a rock garden is not at home with an open area of lawn entirely surrounding it or when placed against a concrete sidewalk. A rock garden needs seclusion, for only then will its special character show off to advantage. A small unused corner of the lot or the back of a deep shrubbery bay are both excellent spots. If the whole lot is developed informally, the area given over to the rock garden need not be sharply separated from it. However, if the lot is formal, the segregation of the rock area is necessary because one is definitely man-made and the other is in imitation of nature.

After you have decided where it is to be placed, begin collecting the rocks. The type which you can collect will depend largely on those which are native to your locality although in some places rocks specially suited to rock garden construction can be purchased. Flat or stratified rocks are much superior to rounded boulders since they can be laid in structural masses suggesting natural cliffs and thereby avoid the peanut brittle look of too many poor attempts. The larger the rocks the better, although it is as important to have rocks of all sizes, some very large and some small, to give variety. Avoid too many colors as this will give a spotty effect. Be sure to get many more rocks than you think you will need because a great portion of the rocks will be buried.

In addition to being segregated from other parts of the development the rock garden must have some background, and before any stones are laid provision must be made for that. Leave several feet at the rear for small trees and shrubs. Such a background adds greatly to the illusion of naturalness which after all is one of the aims of a rock garden. This means that it will not be seen from all sides and that you will not look over the rock garden into the alley or whatever lies behind.

Rocks when found naturally in flat areas of land are seldom attractive. To secure the best effect it is necessary to have some difference in elevation, and it might almost be said that the greater the difference in elevation, the more effective the rock garden will be. These differences should vary from steep, minlature cliffs in the center to slopes at the sides. A very good way to secure elevation in a limited space is to build a retaining wall of several feet or more at the back of the rock garden. Immediately on top of the wall will be placed the background of trees and shrubs. The soil necessary for this built-up portion can be obtained from the excavations for a pool or by lowering the area in front of the rock garden. Either of these procedures will serve to emphasize the apparent height of the raised portion.

Care should be taken in laying the rocks to achieve as natural an effect as possible. If you have stratified rocks, keep the stratifications orderly as they occur in natural formations. Good ideas may be obtained from a study of natural rock ledges or the beautiful patterns often uncovered in stone quaries. Bury the rocks deeply to give them an appearance of security. This is especially important if you have only round boulders. In this latter case the finished effect of the rock garden can be improved by splitting some of them.

Any good garden loam will be satisfactory in a rock garden, but it is a good practice to mix some humus and fertilizer with the soil as this makes it more like that to which rock and alpine plants are accustomed. Clay is very poor for rock gardens as good drainage is essential. If you have clay soil, mix large quantities of sand or gravel with it.

Some people prefer to have their rock gardens include a collection of native plants of which Trilliums, Hepaticas, Bluebells, native Phlox, Ferns and Mosses are among the most desirable. There are also any number of alpine plants obtainable which range from common Garden Pinks to the unusual Edelweiss from Switzerland. Many of these will give a brilliancy not to be equalled in any other part of the garden. Although all spring flowering bulbs and lilies may be used in the rock garden, the small varieties such as crocus, squills, snowdrops, and Lady Tulips are more suited than the larger sorts. Any good nursery catalog will offer a large and exciting list of suitable plants.

Some evergreens such as Creeping and Pfitzer Junipers may be used in the rock garden to give contrast, and larger evergreens such as Mugho Pines and Arborvitaes may be used near it.

It is a good idea to plant the rock garden as you build it for only in this way can the roots of the plants be properly spread out. Be sure not to leave any air pockets in the soil for these mean sure death to the plants whose roots come in contact with them. Poke the dirt with a sharp stick firmly around each of the rocks as you place it.

The beauty of a rock garden is greatly enhanced by the addition of a small pool. Such pools are easy to construct and will be discussed in a later article.

BOAT OWNERS WARNED ON FEDERAL PERMITS

Crafts Must Be Registered and Re-Numbered Under Federal Law

Collector of Customs Martin R. Bradley, Detroit, has informed Michigan motorboat owners that they are liable to $10 penalty if they operate on navigable waters without re-registering and re-numbering their boats under the new federal law and regulations, according to Deputy Collector W. L. Phillips, Grand Haven.

Collector Bradley has sent notices to 16,000 motorboat owners advising that the law applies to all motor-driven watercraft, except documented vessels and motorboats of less than 16 feet originally designed for use with oars.

The new number for Michigan owned motorboats begins with 38, the number of the Michigan customs collection district.

Western Michigan motorboat owners, whose boats are yet to be re-registered and re-numbered, may make application to Custom House, Grand Haven, says Deputy Phillips.

BUY HUNT AREAS, FORESTER WARNS

College Authority Suggests City Demand State Buy Shooting Grounds

For the protection of farmers owning lands suitable for hunting and for the preservation of Michigan's valuable hunting, recommendation comes from Professor P. A. Herbert, head of the forestry department of Michigan State College, that city hunters demand that the state purchase hunting grounds at reasonable prices.

"Farmers are not receiving any advantage when hunters come to their doors, ask for permission to hunt, promise to close gates and respect property rights," says Professor Herbert. "Sooner or later the man who pays taxes on wild land will ask a reasonable compensation from those who desire to utilize that land. The average hunter who can afford to do so would rather pay than to beg permission.

"I am in favor of assisting the poor city hunter, however, who cannot afford to pay the private landowner. The opportunity to hunt without charge will become more and more restricted. It can be expected that more and more farmers, paying taxes, will post their land with no trespassing signs, for this is a property right that is widely recognized in the east and in Europe where game has become scarce."

As executive secretary of the Michigan Forestry association, Professor Herbert points out that as time goes on wild land values likely will increase as they have in the east. It would be much cheaper, he thinks, to fulfill the demand for public hunting grounds now than to wait for fifty years until land prices are much higher. As the demand for good hunting areas increases he believes both public and private owners will take steps to provide cover and food and restock, charging an amount for shooting privileges that will be sufficient to repay public ownership for the expense, or sufficient to repay the private owner to cover actual costs, taxes and a reasonable return on money invested in the land.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Formation of Proper Habits in Childhood to Safeguard Future Health

Habits of eating, sleeping, and elimination are all directly concerned with the physical well-being of the pre-school child. If these habits are properly established at a reasonable time, we may be assured that the foundation has been prepared upon which to build both mental and physical health.

One of the first tasks confronting the mother is the dual one of supplying proper nourishment to the pre-schooler and helping him to develop desirable habits for taking this nourishment at such times and in such ways as will best serve its physical needs. Because of the close relationship between the emotional and physical life of the child, it becomes a problem to the parent on the right attitude to take towards food. Physiological research has established the fact that emotions of various kinds, such as fear, anger, or excitement influence directly the flow of secretions that unduly excited by overstimulation at play or by fear, is in no condition to assimilate and digest his food.

In the development of proper habits of eating, nothing is more important than the state of mind of the child at meal times. Every effort should be made to have him calm and cheerful and, if possible, free from immediate demands on his time for other purposes. The child should have plain, nourishing, easily digested food that is well cooked and served in small quantities. Regularity in serving meals is of great importance. The child should not be hurried during the meal, nor should he be given so much time as to encourage dabbling with his food. The ordinary meal for a child should not require over 30 minutes at the most.

Sleep is a matter of the greatest importance to the mental and physical welfare of a child, especially during the first three years. A well-regulated, routine life for a child is absolutely essential and regular habits can be formed only if the child learns from experience that he is to do the same thing every day at the same hour. The hours for going to bed and arising, as well as for nap periods, should be firmly and unalterably fixed. There is a great temptation for parents to keep the child up a little later, or put him to bed a little earlier to suit their own convenience, or perhaps, they wish to display the child to friends who are coming in later on when he is resting quietly.

The value of good food habits and regulated sleep to children, especially in the pre-school age group, cannot be over-estimated. The proper functioning of the various bodily organs, and, what we term the state of well-being—mental alertness and emotional poise—may all be disturbed by inadequate sleep and improper feeding. If proper habits are established in early life much of the worry, anxiety and real agony that may come in adult life would be avoided.

"Klondike Annie" Lusty Tale of Gold Rush Days, West, McLaglen Score

"Mae Day" comes early this year. Mae West's new picture, "Klondike Annie," opens April 25 at the Palace Theatre.

In the best Western tradition, "Klondike Annie" is a breezy story of San Francisco's Barbary Coast and the fabulous Alaskan Gold Rush, with the blonde star swinging through a series of amusing and exciting situations with the same skeptical twinkle in her eye and the traditional "C'mup'n see me"—or its equivalent—on her lips.

"Here Comes Trouble" Thrill and Laugh Riot

With rapid-fire romance, drama and comedy, "Here Comes Trouble," the new Fox picture comes to the Palace Theatre April 29-30, to tell a grand story of an engine room Romeo and his manicuring cutie in a ship full of larcenous luxury cruisers.

Lanky Paul Kelly, who does some magnificent work in his first comedy role, is the hero of this picture, while pert and vivacious Arline Judge proves a fitting romantic partner in the role of his cuticle-cutting sweetie.

Palace Books New Expose of Prison Life, "Road Gang"

"Road Gang," the First National production scheduled as the feature attraction at the Palace Theatre on April 29-30, is a revelation of the terrible conditions existing in a penal institution run by crooked officials for the graft they get out of it.

State's Gas Tax Below U. S. Average

Michigan's tax of three cents a gallon levied on motor fuel is below the average for the nation, according to a survey just made by the Standard Statistics Company of New York City. State taxes range from two cents a gallon in the District of Columbia, Missouri and Rhode Island, to seven cents in Florida and Tennessee. Every state in the union has levied a gasoline tax since 1929. In that year Massachusetts and New York joined the other 46 states in this form of taxation for the building and maintaining of highways used by owners of the motor vehicles which use the highways.

Should the responsibility of caring for all persons on relief be turned over to state and local governments? Read how voters feel about this issue in "America Speaks," the nation-wide poll of public opinion. It appears in Sunday's Detroit News.

THREE SPECIES OF FISH ARE PROTECTED MAY 1

Closed Season Two Months on Bluegills and Sunfish

Beginning May 1, three well-known varieties of game fish will have legal immunity from fishing for a period of almost two months.

The law declares that no bluegills, sunfish or warmouth bass shall be caught between the dates of April 30 and June 25 in any of the inland waters of the state.

This complete immunity from legal fishing is provided by law to protect the fish during their nesting season.

The closed season on black bass began January 1 and continues to but not including June 25.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

MAY TAX SALE IS CALLED ILLEGAL

SUPREME COURT RULES IN FAVOR PROPERTY OWNER

Held Unconstitutional Because Descriptions of Delinquent Land Were Not Advertised

The May sale of tax delinquent property was held unconstitutional by the state supreme court last Thursday.

Plans for auctions in county seats next month were upset when the court held the act of the 1935 Legislature providing for sales would deprive owners of their property without proper notice in violation of a provision of the state constitution.

By action of the court, property owners have the assurance that only a special session of the Legislature can make possible a sale of tax delinquent lands before 1938. Governor Fitzgerald repeatedly refused to call a special session to halt the sale.

Jackson Judge Reversed

The point at issue in the ruling which reversed an order by Circuit Judge John Simpson, of Jackson county, directing the county clerk to hold the sale, was the publication of descriptions and the names of property holders.

In their appeal, Fred G. and Ada J. Dutcher, of Jackson, contended that the 1935 statute, which repealed provisions requiring the publication of a list of lands delinquent for taxes, deprived them of proper notice. Their claim was denied by the lower court, but the high tribunal granted the appeal.

Notice of the tax sales was published, but names of individuals and property descriptions were not, under provisions of the act which was declared invalid. Rolls in county clerk's offices were the only source of this information.

The opinion written by Justice Henry M. Butzel was confined to delinquent 1933 taxes, and stated:

"Our attention is called to the fact that other lands are being sold for taxes prior to 1933 by other chancery actions by virtue of Act No. 73 of the Public Acts of 1935" (which covered the 10 year installment plan of paying taxes).

"While it may be claimed that the reasoning of this opinion obviously applies to lands being sold under the present proceedings to lands under Act No. 73, such lands are not involved in the objectors' petition."

Deputy Attorney General James P. Shepherd indicated that he would provide an affirmative ruling on the request of Deputy Auditor General Gus T. Hartman for an opinion as to whether the opinion will halt the sale of any and all tax delinquent property.

Hartman declared that preparations for the sale will be stopped and the return of tax records from the counties will be asked if such a ruling is made.

NEED LITTLE CASH TO PLANT GARDEN

College Specialist Says $8 Will Buy Seed and Plants for Half Acre

Eight to nine dollars will plant that half acre farm garden with sufficient seed and plants to have a variety of 20 to 30 different kinds of produce, sufficient for a year's vegetable supply for the average family, says H. L. Seaton, instructor in vegetable gardening at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Depending upon location in the state, the first planting should be in the ground within the next two weeks if the ground can be worked. The early maturing vegetables should also have some more permanent companions started now, including strawberries, rhubarb and aspafagus, according to Mr. Seaton.

"An ideal half acre family vegetable plot should be planned to include at least 20 to 30 kinds," says Mr. Seaton. "There should be room for 75 to 100 tomato plants, 20 to 25 early cabbage plants, 100 asparagus, 15 to 20 rhubarb, 250 to 300 strawberry plants, one ounce each of lettuce seed, onions, beets, chard, and one-half pound of beans and sweet corn, one-fourth pound of squash and pumpkin and two ounces of cucumber and melon seed."

First plants in the next two weeks should be followed by second period plantings April 25 to May 10 and third plantings from May 5 to May 20.

The horticultural department has made a special study of family gardens and their needs and has drawn plans for different sizes and kinds of gardens. Plans may be obtained by writing Mr. Seaton. He broadcasts at 1 p. m. each Thursday over WKAR, Michigan State College of the Air.

LOCAL WOMAN'S RECIPE EARNS NATIONAL AWARD

Miss Ruth Hair Is Honored by Better Homes and Gardens

Miss Ruth Hair, R. F. D. 3, Charlevoix, Mich., has just been awarded a Certificate of Recipe Endorsement by Better Homes and Gardens for her recipe, "Carrot Salad."

This certificate, which brings national recognition to Miss Hair, is given by Better Homes and Gardens only to distinguished recipes which pass its tasting-test kitchen's high standards for dependability, excellence of taste, and family usefulness.

In addition to the signed certificate, Miss Hair also received six copies of her endorsed recipe, each bearing the Better Homes and Gardens stamp of recipe endorsement, which she is giving to friends.

In awarding these certificates, it is the magazine's aim to provide proper recognition for the creative work done by women in their own kitchens, and also to raise the standard of accuracy and dependability of recipes as a whole. No other magazine or institution gives this personal recognition and service to its subscribers.

Miss Hair's endorsed recipe follows:

Carrot Salad

1 cup grated carrots, 4 tablespoons finely diced or chopped onion, ½ cup thick sweet or sour cream, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon sugar, salt to taste.

Mix the carrots and onions together lightly and store in a cool place. Whip the cream very stiff. Add the mustard, vinegar, sugar and salt and mix. A dash of pepper and paprika may be also added if desired. When ready to serve, add the dressing to the carrot mixture and mix lightly. Place on crisp lettuce and serve at once. Serves four.

HEALTH TALK IS SET FOR MAY 7TH

CONFLICTS CAUSE CHANGE IN ORIGINAL DATES

J. Jensen, M. S. C. Spacialist, Talks at High School at 8:45—Meetings in Other Cities

On Thursday, May 7th, at the local high school, J. Jenaen, of the extension service of Michigan State College, will speak on "Values of Milk in the Diet."

This talk was originally scheduled for this week but, because of a conflict in dates with talks to be given in the Upper Peninsula, it was agreed to postpone the local appearance of Mr. Jensen until May 7th. The revised schedule is as follows: Charlevoix, 8:45 a. m.; East Jordan, 11:15 a. m.; Boyne City, 1:15 p. m., and Boyne Falls, 3 p. m. As the topic is of interest to adults generally, the public is invited to be present.

The dairy inspector with the District Health Department, Albert Renwick, and the county agricultural agent, B. C. Mellencamp, have been working together to have this talk given locally.

The District Health Department is very much interested in milk, the children's food; principally the safeguarding of milk. The reason why a dairy inspector is employed to work with the District Health Department is to promote the cleanly production, the cleanly handling, and the cleanly transportation of milk.

During recent months the District Health Department has inaugurated a practice which should go a long ways toward helping to insure the public a safe milk supply. In July, 1935, and monthly ever since, samples of milk have been collected from milk dealers in Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet and Otsego counties. It is impossible to test every supply in the district every month, but each source is reached each second or third month. Some supplies are tested practically every month, particularly the pasteurized and the Grade "A" milk supplies.

A laboratory technician is employed by the District Health Department to run the tests on the milk: a bacterial count test, a butterfat test and a sediment test.

The bacteria count on the milk is the best index of its sanitary quality that it is possible to get. A low count does not necessarily mean that disease germs are not present in the milk; and a high count does not necessarily mean that disease germs are present. But a high count does mean that such milk is a much greater potential source of danger than is milk with a low count. If disease germs do get into the milk in which the bacterial count runs high, that means that whoever consumes the milk will probably get a large dosage of the infecting agent.

The butterfat test determines whether the dairyman is meeting the requirements of the state law (required fat content being 3.25) and of any city ordinance covering dairy products.

The sediment test points to the cleanliness of a dairyman. It shows the amount of dirt that is allowed to get to the consumer through the milk. It is the object of the District Health Department to eliminate the production of a dirty milk in our area.

YOUNG STATE PARK GREATLY IMPROVED

CCC Workers Install New Water and Waste Disposal Systems

A beautiful spot made even more beautiful by CCC boys of M.E.C.W. Camp Wolverine, Young's State Park on Lake Charlevoix will be the Mecca of multitudes of tourists and home folk as well this summer, and for many summers yet to come.

Carefully preserving the natural appearance of the site, the CCC enrollees have added many improvements for the camper and tourist. A complete water system has been installed, supplying water under pressure as well as from flowing springs. A waste disposal system has made possible the moderization of the bath house. Ample improved parking space has been provided. Benches and tables becken to the picnic parties. Foot trails and fine sand beaches are other attractions.

The park is located two miles north of Boyne City at the east end of Lake Charlevoix. Work of the Camp Wolverine crew has been in co-operation with the Division of Parks of the Department of Conservation.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 41. NUMBER 18. EIGHT PAGES THE CHARLEVOIX COURIER, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 29, 1936 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

FISHING DATA IS NEEDED AT ONCE

BOARD OF COMMERCE PLANS A DETAILED DIRECTORY

Boat Owners, Guides and Bait Sellers Should List Equipment and Services Available

Fishing, as a sport, in the lakes and streams of Charlevoix county will be one of the major items to receive attention from the Charlevoix Board of Commerce, this year.

All those persons who own boats suitable for fishing—whether power, sail or row-boat—either on Round Lake or Lake Charlevoix or on the several smaller inland lakes throughout the county where fish may be caught, and all those who have bait for sale, tackle or other fishing equipment to rent, or who desire to proffer their services as guides, are asked to list complete information with the secretary, F. V. Tyler, at the Information Bureau in Charlevoix.

This should be done as soon as possible, as the information so collected will be compiled by the conservation committee of the board in pamphlet form, for distribution among our summer visitors.

Those desiring to list their equipment or services should do so by personal visit to the information bureau, by letter or by phone. Such information should include all necessary detail, such as size and kind of craft, capacity (number of persons that can be carried), kinds of bait sold, complete description of tackle available, amount of rental charges by hour, day or longer period, nature of services rendered and charges for same and—last but not least—location. Farmers and others having boats for rent on the smaller inland lakes should state where their boats are located on these lakes and how to get there from the main highways.

The pamphlets that will be put out by the Board of Commerce will also contain descriptions of the trout streams, routes followed to get to the best fishing spots, camp sites and other lore that experienced local fishermen know. Such information is also acceptable, although most of it will probably be gathered by scouts sent out by the board in the near future.

This new feature, it is believed, will fill a long-felt want, and should stimulate a greater interest among our summer people in the noble art of the immortal Isaak Walton. There is a large body of potential fishermen among vacationists who only need a little guidance and encouragement to become fervent fans.

SCHOOL BAND TO GIVE CONCERT FRIDAY NIGHT

Solo and Novelty Numbers Feature Program at Gymnasium

The Charlevoix school band will present its annual free spring concert on Friday evening, May 1st, at 8 o'clock at the gymnasium.

An interesting program is assured by this splendid group of young musicians, who have worked long and faithfully on the program. Music from light opera will be featured with the playing of selections from the well known and loved "Mikado" and from the "Merry Widow" operas.

A trumpet fanfare, which Mr. Major has written especially for this concert, will be featured first on the program. Soloists on the program will play interesting selections. Rosanne Partridge will play a clarinet solo, Marjory Wood a flute solo, Clare Beattie a cornet solo, and Robert Wexstaff will perform a tap dance with band accompaniment.

Some good marches and novelty music will fill out the rest of the program to make this an evening of enjoyment.

CITY TO APPROVE GOLF COURSE DEAL

INFORMALLY ACCEPT CHICAGO GOLF CLUB OFFER

Operation and Maintenance of the Course to Be Handled by Board of Five Directors

Operation and maintenance of the Charlevoix Golf Club course as a municipal enterprise, a proposal under consideration here for several months, was unofficially approved at an informal meeting of the city council and cooperating citizens Tuesday night.

Acceptance of the proposal, under scrutiny since announcement by the Chicago Club that the course would not be open for play during the 1936 season, gives the city a one-year lease and option for five years.

Under the present plan which, it is understood, will be officially ratified by the council next Monday night, complete charge of the course will be vested in a board of directors of five composed of Harry A. Craig, Robert Bridge, Leo W. Carey, Oakley J. Hammond and Charles Hamlin. This committee, a representative group which will work in conjunction with the council, will outline operation policies, obtain a professional, groundskeeper and workmen, and otherwise take complete charge of the course. They are now working out details for report to the council at its next meeting.

Acceptance of the Chicago Club proposal has been urged for some time by representatives of local civic and business interests on the basis that Charlevoix, as a resort, could not afford to have the course closed.

NAVIGATION OFFICIALLY OPENED HERE MONDAY

Marold II Starts Beaver Island Run; Sumac First Boat Entering Harbor

Navigation opened officially Monday between Charlevoix and Beaver Island with the first trip of the Marold II on the mail and passenger route.

Floating ice fields offered little difficulty in the initial passage, it is understood, and regular service will be maintained from now on.

The Sumac, U. S. lighthouse tender, also entered port, the first outside vessel to make the harbor this season. Although hindered to some extent by moving ice floes, commercial fishing boats have started operations.

Grey's Reef and Manitou Shoals lightships, conditioned for the season, are now awaiting orders to take their stations. The opening of navigation is at least two weeks later than a year ago.

JOHN JOHNSON FETED ON 100TH BIRTHDAY

PROGRAM GIVEN MONDAY P. M. AT GYMNASIUM IN HONOR OF CHALEVOIX'S OLDEST RESIDENT

Citizens Turned Out Enmasse for Appropriate Observance — One Hundred Silver Dollars, Gift of Patriotic, Civic and Religious Organizations, Presented

Charlevoix observed one of the most significant occasions in its recent history Monday — the 100th birthday anniversary of John Johnson, the city's oldest resident.

Business places closed as this city paused in its every day activities to pay respects to a man who has attained a goal few reach—a full century of life. Citizens gathered enmasse at the school gymnasium, where, through the sponsorship of patriotic, civic and religious organizations, a program, appropriate and impressive, was held.

Selections by the school band opened the program. Mayor Arthur Bergeon, presiding at the meeting, introduced the honored veteran after dwelling briefly upon the significance of the occasion. A vocal solo by Harker Kirby, accompanied by Mrs. A. J. Stelter, preceded an address by Dr. F. F. McMillan on John Johnson's life.

JOHN JOHNSON

Attorney Arthur L. Fitch gave an impressive talk, dwelling upon Mr. Johnson's exemplary life. He also presented the centenarian with one hundred silver dollars, the gift of local patriotic, civic and religious groups.

The program closed with the band playing the national anthem. Telegrams of congratulation were read from well-wishers, many from distant points in the United States.

Following the public reception at the school gymnasium, Mr. Johnson's Sunday school class of the Methodist church gave a tea in his honor at the parsonage, with the Baxter Relief Corps as guests.

Pictures were taken of Mr. Johnson at the table, facing his large birthday cake, and others in the living room surrounded by his flowers. Mr. Johnson entered into the spirit of the occasion with the vigor of one not half a hundred, and expressed his desire to get back to Charlevoix immediately "as work is opening up fast and I should have been here a week ago." About 50 were in attendance at the tea.

Mr. Johnson, whose birth at Lawrenceville, Tenn., occurred in the seventh year of Andrew Jackson's term as President of the United States, was accompanied here by his daughter, Mrs. Nannie Lynde, and son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Foley, of Petoskey, with whom he has been living this winter. He resides with the former daughter at their home on Alice street during the summers.

On Sunday, April 19, Mr. Johnson was honored at the First Methodist church of Petoskey, where he attended services the day prior to his birthday. The same day there was a family gathering at Petoskey, attended by two daughters, Mrs. Lynde and Mrs. Foley; a grandson, Andrew Foley, of Petoskey; five granddaughters, Mrs. Marion McDowell, who came 2,000 miles from Bellinghnm, Wash., for the occasion; Mrs. Elizabeth Kingsbury, of Chicago; Mrs. Earl Clark, of East Jordan; Mrs. Henry Block, of Charlevoix, and Miss Leila Nowland, of Traverse City. There were also two great-granddaughters. A great-grent-grandson in Bellingham was unable to make the trip, also a son, Thomas Johnson, of Madison, Wis.

Mr. Johnson will soon return to Charlevoix for the summer to take up his usual duties. He is still active, caring for lawns on the Belvedere Club, an occupation he has followed for many years. While his children have been insistent he give up his work here, Mr. Johnson is equally as insistent he will mow the lawns and care for the shrubbery again this summer.

SUMMER TRAFFIC RULES EFFECTIVE ON MAY 1ST

Speed, Parking, Other Regulations Will Be Rigidly Enforced

Summer traffic regulations will be enforced in Charlevoix on and after Friday, May 1st, according to an announcement by Harry Glossenger, chief of police.

Regulations include one-hour parking in the business district; prohibits U-turns at all Bridge street intersections between River street and Hurlbut avenue; sets the speed limit at 10 miles per hour past schools, 15 miles per hour in the business section and 20 miles per hour in the residential district; prohibits parking cars in alleys of the business district.

"No Speeding" signs will be posted on north and south approaches of US-31, and "Stop" signs at all Bridge street intersections not already so equipped.

Public cooperation is asked in observing the above regulations.

DEMOCRATS HOLD COUNTY MEETINGS

DELEGATES TO STATE CONVENTION ELECTED

William P. Hicken Chosen to Succeed J. M. Foster as Charlevoix County Chairman

Complete harmony characterized the Democratic county convention held last Saturday evening at East Jordan.

Reorganization of the county committee due to the resignation of J. M. Foster, of Charlevoix, county chairman for several years, resulted in the selection of William P. Hicken as his successor. Merle R. Crowell, East Jordan, was chosen vice-chairman, and Miss Ethel Crowell was elected secretary-treasurer, both to act until the regular fall convention.

Mr. Foster, resigning following his appointment as Charlevoix postmaster, was given a rising vote of appreciation for his faithful and untiring efforts in behalf of the party.

The convention chose eight delegates, each with one-quarter vote, to attend the state convention at Grand Rapids on May 20 and 21. They are: J. M. Foster, Charlevoix; Frank Crowell, Merle R. Crowell, East Jordan; Roy Winegarden, Clyde Caldwell, Mrs. Mattie Dean, Boyne City; Frank Pierce and Ardin Hausler, Boyne Falls. Alternates chosen were: William P. Hicken, Dan McCann, Charlevoix; George Caldwell, Fred Mitchell, Boyne City; L. W. Ellis, Richard Muma, Mrs. Gwendolyn E. Crowell, East Jordan; Joseph Topolinski, Boyne Falls.

The delegates will go to the state convention uninstructed and to vote in a unit. The convention endorsed Theodore Fry and Murray D. Van Wagoner for delegates-at-large to the national Democratic convention.

Resolutions adopted heartily endorsed the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the support given the administration by Cong. Prentiss M. Brown. Credit for balancing the state budget for the first time in years was given the administration of former Governor William Comstock through passage of the Sales Tax.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY IS NEXT TUESDAY

EXTENSION CLUBS EXHIBIT AT BOYNE CITY

Two Hundred Women Expected to Take Part in Annual Event—Fine Program Arranged

(By B. C. Mellencamp)

The big event of the year for members of the various home economics groups is the annual Achievement Day to be held in the Methodist church, Boyne City, on Tuesday, May 5. All members who have participated in the extension program last fall and this spring are making their plans to attend.

A big feature of the day will be exhibits displayed by the various groups. There will be exhibits showing upholstery, games and toys that add to the play life of the family, factors entering into the safety of the home and the making of cottage cheese from skim milk. These exhibits will pretty largely tell the story of what the ladies have studied during their project.

Another feature of the day will be the main address given by Ralph Tenny, director of short courses of Michigan State College, who will show pictures taken on the college campus. It is generally understood this campus is second only to Cornell in regard to its beauty and landscaping effects. This will be very attractive. In addition, Mrs. Lydia Ann Lynde, specialist in child care and training, will give an address. Those who have heard Mrs. Lynde will certainly look forward to having her again in the county.

The girls' glee club of the Boyne City High school will favor with several numbers. Community singing likewise will be enjoyed as well as a report of the results of last year's activity by Mrs. Lydia Ann Lynde. As a concluding number, the county agricultural agent will present certificates of achievement and other awards to those having completed the year's project.

The forenoon program will begin promptly at 11 o'clock, followed by the noon luncheon given by the Ladies' Aid Society groups at 35 cents per plate. The entire public is cordially invited and urged to attend this Achievement Day. It is expected that over 200 ladies will attend the big Achievement Day. This year we have the largest number of groups ever to participate in our home economics program. You should mark the date of Tuesday, May 5, on your calendar, invite your neighbors and be present to enjoy the day.

LEASE OF CITY DOCK FREIGHT RIGHT VOTED

Council Entered Year's Contract With Joseph Howard Monday

Numerous business matters of importance were transacted by the city council at its regular session Monday night.

Steps were taken to derive revenue from freight passing over the municipal dock. A lease for 1936 was signed with Joseph Howard, who will pay the city a stipulated monthly sum during the navigation season for the privilege of handling. A large portion of the freight business at the present time is with Beaver Island residents.

Plans for interior improvements at the Board of Commerce information bureau were approved and referred to the committee on parks and water front with power to act. Cupboards for storage of literature and supplies will be constructed, the interior redecorated and floor painted.

The Charlevoix County State Bank and Charlevoix State Savings Bank were named city depositories for the ensuing year, and a renewal of equipment purchase agreement with the General Electric Co. was approved.

CORRESPONDENCE

ELLSWORTH

Ellsworth Hardware Co. is preparing to move.

Gradis Petter is selling cars for Benjamin Brown, helping Andy Essenberg.

Koo Klooster and Henry VanderArk went on a business trip to Grand Rapids.

Tony Shooks now has a large truck on the road, selling groceries from door to door. "Bud" Essenberg is driving it.

Henry Beat, who has been in Grand Rapids the past five weeks, returned home. He is planning to move his family to Grand Rapids in the near future.

George Koster is a very busy man just now. He has built two very nice, modern apartments above Tony Shooks' store which, when completed, will make very attractive rooms.

Leonard Hillman, of Lansing, has bought the Davey property, on the northeast corner of the main intersection of town, and intends to remove the present buildings and put in a super service station, giving complete one stop service.

H. Dawson, whose funeral home occupied the front part of the Davey property, will move to a newer and much more modern place, a half block away, which he is now remodeling. George Koster, of Atwood, is doing the carpenter work.

At about 3:15 last Thursday morning the town was awakened by the fire alarm, warning all that VanderArk & Co.'s store was on fire.

It seems that Gerrit and Pete Drenth were awakened, a block away from the store, where they live, by the roar of flames and small explosions of canned and bottled goods, and seeing the fire hurriedly put on a few clothes and turned in the alarm. At once the entire town was on the scene, but the fire had such a start that nothing could be done to check it. Flames were pouring from both ends and from under the eaves. Henry VanderArk, one of the owners, broke in a side door and also a window, in an attempt to enter. He was painfully cut and burned for his trouble.

Peter Wieland, head of our local fire fighters, put in a call for the East Jordan fire department, which came an hour or so later, but fortunately for the town, there was not a breath of air stirring; sparks arose some 200 feet, but fell not more than 10 feet from the fire; also the metal roof of the burning building held the fire down, and with its falling carried the fire down with it.

What a fire it was—everything in or about the building was destroyed, and for a day after canned goods were popping, making it very dangerous to approach the place. The heat of the fire was so intense that the windows and wood work in the tile front of the Co-Ops, across the street, broke and burned.

Ken Boss and Forrest Dewey had a narrow escape. While playing water from the fire hose on a pole carrying the high tension wires of the power company, they were stopped just before they reached the wires. It was explained that the electricity would have followed the water line upon contact, and probably have killed them.

Thus in a few hours of time was destroyed a landmark and the largest store in town. The contents were insured but not the building.

It is planned to start at once at another place to continue the business which was years in the building. The site chosen is the Ellsworth Hardware Co.'s building, which is to be remodeled at once, and they hope to be doing business again in a week or ten days.

Form Booster Club

At an enthusiastic and well attended meeting Monday evening at Big Fish Inn, 45 persons, of which 37 became charter members, organized a Banks Township Boosters' Club, a civic organization for community betterment and promotion. The Club is to be non-partisan and non-sectarian and embraces the entire township. The idea was conceived at a meeting of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

Dr. VanDellen presided at the meeting, and Henry Ruis acted as secretary. A committee was appointed to formulate a constitution and by-laws, and the meeting was adjourned after deciding to meet Wednesday, May 6, at the Atwood town hall, at which time a supper will be served. John Boss and Rev. Dornbos, of Atwood, are in charge of the refreshment committee.

DEER HUNTERS WILL WEAR TAGS ON BACK

Conservation Department Approves New Identification Scheme

Michigan's army of deer hunters—100,000 strong—will wear license tags on their backs when they go into the woods next fall as a result of action taken by the State Conservation Commission.

The body approved rubberized canvas tags, four by 12 inches in size, with three inch figures to designate each hunter. They will be black on orange and must be worn on the outer garment midway between the shoulders.

It is estimated that the experiment will cost $2,500. Members of the conservation department staff believe the new licenses will prove a valuable means of reducing game law violation because a hunter may be easily identified by recording his number.

The commission refused to remove the revocation of licenses of six commercial fishermen working near Beaver Island. Their licenses were picked up for fishing before the legal season.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Car License Sales Show No Reduction

Although March 1 was the deadline for purchase of 1936 automobile license plates or stickers for cars in uninterrupted operation, registration activities continue at a high level in the Department of State. About 4,000 plates and 4,200 stickers are being sold daily throughout the some 140 branch offices in the state. In the first 21 calendar days of April, 63,864 plates, and 53,740 stickers were recorded on department records as sold.

Titles for new automobiles recorded for March, as compared with March, 1935, showed almost no change, but title transfers, indicating transfer of ownership of used cars, showed a marked gain this March over last.

In March, 1935, a total of 22,471 new titles and 51,491 title transfers were recorded; March, 1936, showed 22,511 new titles and 62,476 title transfers recorded.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

The fifth in a series of articles on improving the home grounds by Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld.

* * *

Interesting Shrubs for Planting

In many ways shrubs are the backbone of our garden development. Trees are large, the leaves and branches tower above us and we see only the trunks. Plants in our flower beds are small and even in small areas have comparatively little bulk. But shrubs are the most noticeable because they are on our eye level and because we use them for such a variety of purposes. They cover up the foundations of our houses and relate them to the lawns. They enclose our yards and screen unattractive views. They include such a wide range of sizes and shapes, and texture that any number of effects is possible.

Michigan is not as fortunate as many other states in this country, because there are relatively few shrubs which will grow here and can be used in our gardens. For every shrub which can be grown here, there are perhaps fifteen in a state five hundred miles south, which can be used. While this simplifies our problem somewhat, at the same time it makes it more difficult. It means that we must use care and judgment to achieve just as interesting effects as possible even though we have only limited materials to work with.

This article and the following one list a few shrubs which can be used in this part of the country. This list does not pretend to be exhaustive. Rather it is a carefully selected list of shrubs which are not very common here. Their use would give our gardens much more variety and interest than many of them now show. One of our difficulties is that we have used too many of the same plants over and over again. We see too many houses with only Spirea in front of them. This same lack of variety is often noticeable in many of the shrub plantings.

In listing the shrubs the scientific and the common name have been given. All shrubs have Latin names and they are usually known by these to horticulturists and nursery men. Some times they are confusing to a person who is unfamiliar with them. They are used, however, because the common names very frequently do not agree. A Bridal-wreath Spirea in this part of the country is much different from a Bridal-wreath Spirea farther south. However, if one asks for Spirea prunifolia he will get the same thing in any part of the country.

The shrubs have been divided into groups according to sizes. This will help in classifying them according to use.

Low Shrubs: Three to Six Feet

Alpine Currant—(Ribes alpinum). This is a shrub from Europe which is closely related to our red currants. It is low, compact, and broad, usually about three or four feet high. It has small leaves, comes into leaf early, and does well in the shade. It makes a splendid hedge, and is fine when used for round accents by doorways, gates, or other features.

Flowering Almond — (Prunus glaodulosa). This and the following shrub are both extremely hardy and never in danger of freezing out. The blossoms of the flowering almond are double, set close to the stem and appear early in Spring. It suckers freely, and appears to thrive under neglect. It is good as a low shrub in front of taller ones in a shrub border.

When You Say "Sinclair-ize My Car" Here's What We Do:

TRANSMISSION AND DIFFERENTIAL—drained, FLUSHED and refilled. Every car manufacturer says it is needed in Spring, for Summer driving. Costs only as much as the quantity of Opaline Gear Lubricant used.

FRONT WHEELS—pulled and repacked—needed for safety every 5,000 miles, car manufacturers say. We repack with tough, Opaline Universal Grease.

CHASSIS LUBRICATED—Ours is Sinclair Indexed Lubrication. Keeps your car "riding" like new.

RADIATOR FLUSHED—We thoroughly rid the cooling system of anti-freeze, rust-scale and sludge—then, no overheating.

CRANK-CASE—drained and flushed; then refilled with the proper grade of either Opaline or Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oil.

SPARK PLUGS—Dirty or worn plugs can waste one gallon of gasoline in ten. Inspection free. Cleaned and adjusted, if needed.

OIL FILTER—Yours is good only for 10,000 miles. We'll check—and if you need a new one, we'll gladly install it for you.

SHOCK ABSORBERS—Riding's a lot more comfortable if they're kept filled. Let us refill your shock absorbers, if needed.

Flowering Plum — (Prunus triloba). This, too, grows low and has double brilliant rose like flowers. It does not sucker like the almond and forms a small tree-like shrub.

Ural False-spirea — (Sorbaria sorbifolia) frequently known as Spiraea sorbifolia. The name of this shrub is very forbidding. If it were better known it would undoubtedly be very popular. It is usually three feet high, comes into leaf early in the Spring, and from June to August produces flowers in long four to twelve inch up-right clusters. These clusters are made up of tiny white flowers which give them a light feathery appearance. The plant's use as a flowering shrub in a border is very apparent.

Other shrubs which deserve mention are the Snowberry and Indian currant. Both do well in shade and need little care. There are also two hydrangeas, the Panicle or Peegee with long pointed flower clusters and the Snowhill with flat clusters. These are showy and very attractive if properly used.

Medium Shrubs: Five to Ten Feet

Japanese Quince — (Cydonia japonica). When in bloom this is one of the most brilliant of all shrubs. It flowers just before the leaves appear. Its flowers are large and flat, looking very much like fruit tree blossoms, and are usually scarlet, although sometimes white, rose, or orange. The flowers hug the stems, and on good plants practically cover the shrub. The leaves when they appear are a very glossy green with tips which are bronze or red. Japanese Quince makes an excellent accent or specimen plant and is good in the shrub border.

Virginal Mockorange — (Philadelphus virginal). This is one of the group of plants which are frequently called syringas but which are properly known as mockoranges because the blossoms look and are small like those of the orange tree. We are all very familiar with the common type of mockorange or syringa. The kind which has been listed here is a relatively new specie and the most outstanding which has been developed. The leaves and habits of the plant are about the same as other mockoranges. The flowers, however, are a beautiful creamy white, slightly double, two to two and one-half inches in diameter, and wonderfully fragrant.

Dogwoods — There are two dogwoods which are interesting because the twigs give color in our gardens in the winter and early spring. The first, the Red Twig Dogwood (Cornus stolonifera) has a loose spreading habit and is about six feet tall. It has bright red branches which stand out beautifully against the winter snow and become even brighter just before the leaves appear. The other one, the Yellow Twig Dogwood (Cornus stolonifera flaviramea) has the same habits but its twigs are greenish-yellow in color. Both of these dogwoods have small clusters of white flowers in the summer and white berry-like fruits in the fall. We appreciate them the most, however, in winter and early spring when their particular characteristics show to the best advantage.

Comic Teams Have Roles In Laugh Hit

Three pairs of screen comedians join forces, appearing in the same picture though in different sequences.

Cast in various scenes of Paramount's romantic, dramatic comedy, "If I Had a Million," which comes Wednesday and Thursday, May 6-7, to the Palace Theatre in a return engagement by popular demand, are Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland, W. C. Fields and Allson Skipworth, and Gary Cooper and Jack Oakie, the latter team having the support also of Roscoe Karns.

In addition to these stars, this exciting, emotional comedy drama also boasts other famous players such as Charles Laughton, Mary Robson, George Raft, Richard Bennett, Lucien Littlefield all appearing in impressive, soul stirring and amusing roles.

"If I Had a Million" centers around the sudden decision of Richard Bennett, a multi-millionaire, to fool his relatives and distribute his fortune to a group of persons picked at random in a city directory. The manner in which these fortunate people receive their sudden wealth forms the riotous, romantic, pathetic and ironic plot of the film. The entire cast is seen in the characteristic portrayals which has made each famous.

STALKS HARBOR BORER SURVIVORS

Clean Plowing Will Save Neighboring Field and Sweet Corn.

A few corn stalks in a field sown with small grain or other crops may lead to infestation of neighboring plantings by the corn borer.

The custom of discing the field before sowing may lead to a fifty-fold increase in the borer. Plowing the field before sowing decreases dangers from the borer but is rendered less effective where refuse or a few corn stalks remain on the surface.

Studies at Michigan State College, East Lansing, by C. B. Dibble, extension specialist in insect control, reveal the importance of clean fields in exterminating the corn borer. Borers buried 18 inches beneath the ground have made their way to the surface and found protection in stray corn stalks and refuse.

"Pieces of refuse harbor and protect the corn borer larvae," Mr. Dibble says. "These borers later develop into moths to fly around and lay eggs in new cornfields. If two borers survive to become moths, they are sufficient to populate a cornfield with 100 borers."

In the experiments, cages were placed on cleanly plowed ground and on fields disced and planted to small grain. No moths were found in the first case. In the second, surface cornstalks furnished shelter and protection to the borers while the growing grain provided shade. Where clean fields were used, borers made their way to the surface but perished from exposure to sun, wind, and rain, or were picked up by birds, shrews, skunks, field mice and other natural enemies.

End of cord in Gum-Dipped Tire showing every fiber insulated with liquid rubber

End of cord from ordinary tire showing unprotected cotton fibers inside cord

The body of the New Firestone High Speed Tire is made from selected long-staple cotton dipped in liquid rubber, absorbing eight pounds of rubber in every hundred pounds of cotton. This patented Gum-Dipping process insulates every fiber in every cotton cord, preventing internal friction which creates the heat so destructive to tire life, and gives to the tire added strength.

This heavy, broad, traction and non-skid tread is held to the cord body of the tire with Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords, a patented construction, making the cord body and tread an inseparable unit.

A leading university in 2350 tire tests has found that these new, scientifically designed Firestone High Speed tread stops a car up to 25% quicker. Its super-traction and non-skid efficiency have also been proved in the famous Pike's Peak Race where for eight consecutive years it has been used on the winning cars.

WAITERS REWARDED BY BETTER POTATO PRICE

Market Reaches $1.35 Per Cwt. for Michigan's Old Stock

Growers who held their potatoes throughout the winter for higher prices are cashing in on their foresight, the price this morning being $1.35 per hundred pounds.

During the past three weeks the price has been gradually working upward from 75 cents per hundred, the price which prevailed most of the winter. Growers who still had potatoes watched the market carefully and most of them are unloading at prevailing prices. The higher price levels developed when it became evident that the old crop of potatoes was fairly well cleaned up.

Local buyers believe that less than 25 per cent of the Charlevoix county crop remains in the hands of the growers. Most of the potatoes left are in local warehouses, some owned by the buyers and some by the growers. The higher price levels are rapidly moving the remaining potatoes from the hands of the growers into the hands of the wholesalers.

ISRAELITE DIRECTOR FREED INDIAN DEATH

Coroner's Jury Found Claude Swafford Acted in Self Defense

Claude Swafford, director of the Israelite farm at High Island, was exonerated of responsibility for the death of William Thomas, Indian, by a coroner's jury at St. James last Friday. The verdict was that he acted in self-defense.

Thomas, 23, died April 19, eight days after he was struck on the head with a small tree branch by Swafford. According to testimony at the inquest, Thomas attacked Swafford with a knife when the latter intervened while Thomas was beating his wife. Thomas, in a drunken craze, followed his wife to Swafford's home when she sought refuge there.

The investigation was conducted by Prosecuting Attorney C. M. Bice, Sheriff Floyd Ikens and Coroner S. B. Stackus, of Boyne City, who went to the island by plane. Fay A. Bradley, deputy county clerk, accompanied the officers.

WARN FARMERS ON SPREAD APPLE SCAB

Three Pre-Blossom Sprays Recommended by Michigan State College

Lower Peninsula farmers are advised to take strong precautions against the spread of apple scab, most prevalent apple disease in this part of the country. Donald Cation, research assistant in plant pathology, Michigan State College, East Lansing, says that late fall rains and heavy winter snows were exceptionally favorable for the overwintering stages of the fungus which has an early start this spring.

"The spores which are found on the old dead leaves on the ground are ripe and will be ready to discharge by the time the apple buds are in the green stage," he says. "Spore discharges occur only during rains and infections can only take place when the foliage is wet."

Three pre-blossom sprays to be made from one week to 10 days apart are recommended. For early sprays, which should be applied now, two and one-half gallons of lime sulphur in 100 gallons of water is effective. The strength can be weakened for after-blossom sprays. Milder sulphur fungicides are often used after bloom. For complete control of the apple scab in severe scab years, five sprays applied thoroughly during the early developing period of foliage and fruit are usually sufficient.

STATE PLANS BUILDING TOURIST ROADS

Twelve Million Dollar Program Is Outlined for This Year

In preparation for what is expected to be one of the greatest tourist demands in history, the state of Michigan has planned a $12,000,000 tourist road program this year.

According to Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, the plans call for the construction of 92 miles of tourist highways and 177 miles of surfacing, in a program of new construction representing an expenditure of some $4,775,000.

About $2,070,000 of the total will be expended on bridges and grade separations along the many tourist routes of the state, Van Wagoner said. In addition approximately $5,000,000 of an $8,000,000 program of dust proofing gravel trunk lines will be spent on tourist roads.

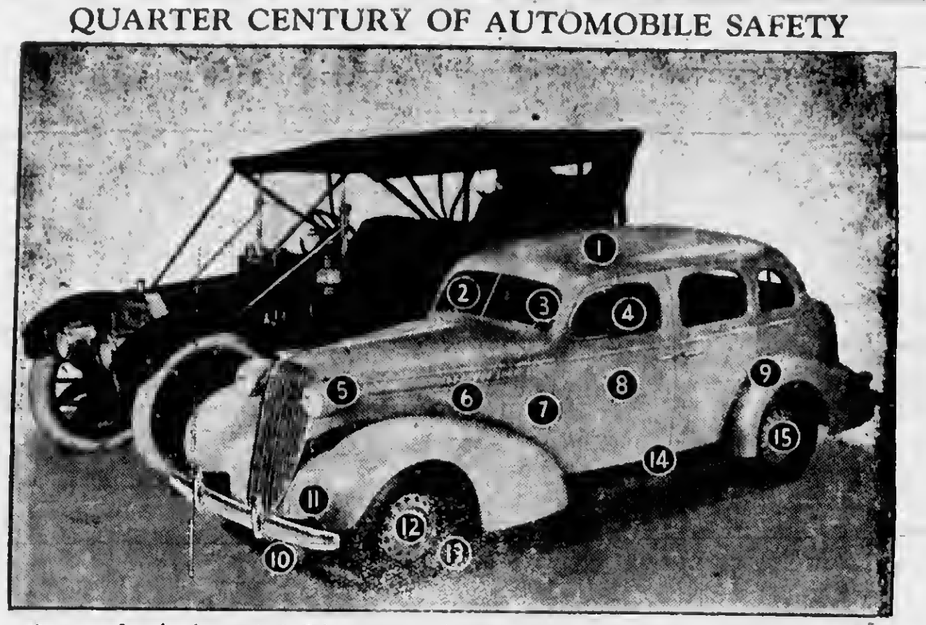
QUARTER CENTURY OF AUTOMOBILE SAFETY



A score of major improvements in motor car design reveal the progress made in safety by automobile manufacturers during the last 25 years, D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile vice president and general sales manager, points out. Fifteen of the more important changes made in the interests of safety are illustrated in the above comparison of 1911 and 1936 model Oldsmobiles. 1—The solid-steel Turret-Top has replaced the fabric top. 2—Windshield wipers, unknown in 1911, now provide clear vision in bad weather. 3—Center-control steering has demonstrated its superiority over the less positive, harder handling type of steering system. 4—Safety Glass all around has replaced ordinary glass. 5—Multi-beam lighting provides maximum illumination for every driving condition, in contrast to the inadequate acetylene gas lamps of 1911. 6—Greater acceleration has given the 1936 Oldsmobile the additional flexibility needed to master modern emergencies. 7—The positive shift starter has replaced the hand crank, eliminating that hazardous task. 8—Closed car bodies of steel, giving protection all around to modern motorists, were undreamed of in 1911. 9—The ride stabilizer has minimized body roll, improved ease of handling and increased safety. 10—The turning radius has been greatly decreased. 11—Knee-Action wheels, with heavy coil springs, have replaced the flat, leaf type, front springs, and have vastly improved comfort and ease of control. 12—Six-teen inch safety-steel wheels provide safety impossible with the early forty two inch wooden ones. 13—Low pressure tires, with safety-tread design, replacing the high pressure type, minimize skidding and blow-out dangers. 14—Lower center of gravity results in greater roadability and riding comfort. 15—Four wheel Super-Hydraulic brakes have supplanted the uncertain two wheel mechanical brakes.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Foundation of Defects Begin in Pre-School Age

Pre-school hygiene is a problem of the correction of defects. Scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough and measles offer a problem in control, but through health department regulations cities have reduced the number of deaths from these diseases. It is defects of the teeth, the tonsils, the adenoids and malnutrition that require more attention.

Defects of the teeth, tonsils and adenoids often are focal infections—infections in which bacteria exist in colonies in certain tissues and from there are sent out into the blood stream. The tonsils, the gum tissue around the teeth, and the nasal sinuses or air cavities which communicate with the nose are the favorite sites of disease germs.

Focal infections play a leading role in the development of chorea, rheumatism and heart disease. Germs enter the blood stream through openings in decayed teeth, through openings around the gums, by way of the tonsils, or by way of the nasal sinuses. It is during the pre-school period that these defects occur, and at this early age that chorea, rheumatism and heart disease have their beginning. Practically all heart disease is quite noticeable before a person is 35 years of age, which means that it had its beginning about the age of five.

By a recent analysis of the current pre-school records of the District Health Unit No. 3, constituting the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego, a survey was made on 750 medical examinations conducted by the Health Department. The following defects were found in these pre-schoolers which indicated that corrections should begin in this early age group:

Throat	276
Teeth	275
Glands	89
Skin and Scalp	87
Nutrition	82
Ears	54
Nasal Passages	45
Nervous Symptoms	38
Posture	25
Thyroid	24
Vision	22
Orthopedic	20
Lungs	19
Heart	16
Speech	11

Statistics show that decayed teeth and tonsils as well as chorea and rheumatism are closely connected with heart disease. Heart disease is also found to be an after effect of scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough and measles in a number of cases.

Little used to be done to discover and correct the defects present in children from one to five years of age. That is the pre-school age and children cannot be dealt with then as conveniently as they can after they begin going to school. Yet it is during this pre-school period that the teeth, tonsils and adenoids as well as malnutrition have their start. Fully two-thirds of the children have developed defects of one kind or another during this period.

Concentration on defects during the pre-school age will save many an individual from untimely death. It is up to the parents to take the initiative to see that routine check-ups are made on these youngsters in order to avoid any serious defect that may cause later and impair the child's future life.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Everlasting Punishment" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, May 3.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Gal. 6:7, 8): "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 405): "Christian Science commands man to master the propensities,—to hold hatred in abeyance with kindness, to conquer lust with chastity, revenge with charity, and to overcome deceit with honesty."

OFFER MORE USES FOR MAPLE SYRUP

Michigan State College Specialists Point Way to Housewives

There's no argument that pancakes and maple syrup make a combination that is practically unbeatable for starting out a day in a sweet frame of mind, but sugar bush operators in Michigan and home economics specialists at Michigan State College believe that the use of maple syrup can be made a year 'round practice in households that like maple flavor.

Confectionery, ice cream, puddings and sauces are natural spots in which to use maple sugar or maple syrup for flavor, with perhaps some nutmeats for variety.

Out in the state some of the oldest sugar bush lots have seen a decreasing usage each spring because farmers realize that unless they sell their syrup and sugar while cold mornings and hot griddle cakes are in fashion they will have little or no market for their maple products until another fall and winter roll around on the calendar.

One dessert recipe that sounds good even on paper is called "Maple Dream." Cut stale bread in slices one-fourth inch thick. Remove the crust, butter half of the slices and add a thin layer of chopped dates, spread evenly over each slice. Butter the remaining slices, and place them on top of those spread with dates, pressing lightly together to form sandwiches. Dip each sandwich in a mixture of one egg slightly beaten with one cup of milk, and brown in a little butter. Serve with maple sauce.

Another simple but palate tickling dessert is a maple flavored rice pudding. Combine two and one-half cups of boiled rice and two and one-half cups of milk. Beat three eggs and one cup of maple syrup together, add them to the rice and milk, and add one-half teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of nutmeg and one cup of raisins. Pour the mixture into a buttered pudding dish, place the dish in a pan of hot water, and bake at about 350 degrees Fahrenheit in the oven; or cook the mixture in the top of a double-boiler.

GAME LAW VIOLATION INCREASED IN MARCH

One hundred thirty-nine arrests were made for violations of state conservation laws during March, according to a compilation made by conservation authorities.

This is an increase of approximately 200 per cent in the number of arrests over the February figure. Severe weather conditions in February are believed to have been responsible for a drop in violations to a figure which was the lowest on record for mid-winter.

SOIL CONSERVATION ORGANIZATION IS FORMED

Leo Sneathen Chosen County Chairman at East Jordan Meeting

The new soil conservation program has started off in the county with a note of enthusiasm which indicates its success, according to H. C. Mellencamp, county agent.

At a recent meeting held in East Jordan, the committeemen representing all townships met with Mr. Longnecker, special representative from Lansing, and received necessary instructions. It is gratifying to those in charge that all township committeemen hove accepted their appointments and are busily engaged in making their farm visits.

The county organization was formed at the East Jordan meeting with a splendid group of officers as follows: Chairman, Lee Sneathen, Charlevoix; vice-chairman, LaVerne McGhan, Charlevoix; secretary-treasurer, G. C. Ferris, East Jordan. Elmer Hott, East Jordan, was named third member of the executive board, with Carl Clark, of Boyne Falls, as alternate.

It is pointed out that the soils conservation program is one of the most important ever attempted in the county and, due to the fact that all interpretations and rulings have not been announced, it is hoped that farmers will be patient and cooperate fully.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

The Use of Lime Highly Recommended In New Soil Conservation Program

The new soil conservation program is developing very rapidly. By the time this paper reaches you the townships will be all practically completed.

Among the practices recommended for securing the maximum soil building poyments is the addition of lime to your soil. In certain areas marl is available and this is by far the cheapest source of lime. We are positive thot three yards of marl per acre will qualify for the $2.50 per acre payment. It seems logical, therefore, in addition to seeding alfalfa and other legumes that the application of lime is to be recommended.

Fortunately in this county there are several marl beds easily accessible. In the Boyne City area marl can be gotten out immediately from Jerome Cole's bed at a very reasonable cost. This is probably the most accessible bed in the county. Other beds neor East Jordan are available as well as in other parts of the county. Why not think about the odvisability of using marl on your acid soils to qualify for this type of payment?

Results of Bangs Disease Testing Justify Its Continuance

In order to obtain reliable information concerning the result of the cooperative Bang's Disease work conducted by the federal government in Michigan, the following report has been compiled which we believe should be of interest to the general public, not only because of the extensive financial losses borne by the owner of a herd infected with this disease, but also because of the extensive belief thot Bang's disease in cattle is responsible for what is known as undulent fever in man.

Our particular interest in gathering this information was to obtain facts relative to the result of the work that has been carried on, therefore we used in this special study only herds that had received four complete blood tests under federal supervision. The infected herds studied are located in all parts of the state and the result of the work as shown is without question as to reliability.

There were 473 infected herds used in this study with following result: The first test revealed 100 per cent herd infection and 26.8 per cent cattle infection, while the fourth test found but 16 per cent herd infection and 1.9 cattle infection. Eighty-four per cent of the infected herds were found clean upon the fourth test.

It is our judgment that the result of the work as carried out demonstrated, without question, that although the average percentage of Bang's disease infection in both herds and cattle in Michigan is high, it can be brought under control in a much shorter period of time than it required to control bovine tuberculosis, provided the plan requiring the slaughter of all reactors is continued, thereby removing the chief source of the spread of infection.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. PUBLIC IS URGED TO SET SUMMER STAGE

OPENING OF RESORT SEASON CLOSE AT HAND

Officials Point Out Michigan Must Provide Throngs of Visitors With the Amusements They Seek Tourists rooms for rent.

Worms for sale here.
Boats for rent.

These and a hundred other signs are being given their annual coat of paint today as Michigan prepares for the opening of the season of its second industry.

Michigan the playground of the middlewest, is putting away its winter sports equipment and tidying up its grounds for the opening of the aummer season.

Snow trains, skii jumps, toboggans and deer hunting camps are forgotten until next year. Smelt runs are almost finished and sportsmen are anticipating the opening of the trout season April 25.

Two more days and tourist-anglers will begin to wade streams with yawning creels slung over their shoulders. That will be the first indication of the beginning of the summer recreational season.

Resorters are looking forward to Memorial Day, which usually opens the cottage and bathing season in southern Michigan. Farther north, cottages will not be generally occupied before June 15 when public school vacations begin.

Learn Your Own

Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner considers "natural scenic beauty Michigan's greatest tourist attraction," and aggrees that citizens should be able to direct visiting motorists to attractive views.

Learn the scenic and historic spots in your own community, is the advise offered by state officials to residents interested in luring and entertaining tourists who annually spend between 300 and 500 million dollars in Michigun.

"Filling station employes and proprietors of tourist homes should become familiar with nearby spots of interest to tourists," Conservation Director P. J. Hoffmaster suggests.

The legislature made a $160,000 a year appropriation to advertise Michigan to out of state motorists.

Hoffmaster points out:

"It does no good to advertise the state unless residents cooperate in aiding tourists after they cross the state line."

One of the most important bits of information desired by summer motorists is "where is good fishing?" Hoffmaster says 85 percent of the inquires received by the Conservation Department contain that question, and suggests that residents likely to contact mortorists learn of nearby lakes and streams opep to sportsmen.

Something Different

Beaver dams, fire towers, virgin forests, and oil and gas fields are all of interest to tourists, Hoffmaster explained. "The new village post office or library do not appeal to out of state motorists—they are looking for something different to do with their vacation time," he adds.

The US-27 Beautification Assn., according to Hoffmaster, is the leading agency in Michigan catering to motorists who are looking for something different. A "strip map" of US-27 which runs the length of the lower peninsula, is being prepared and will show spots of interest, both along the road and a few miles off the highway.

From Dr. C. C. Slemons, head of the state health department, comes the warning that all public sources of drinking water should be approved.

"There is nothing more assuring to a visiting tourist than the sign which shows approval of drinking water," he explains. "Michigan is fortunate in having an abundance of good drinking water, but perhaps the motorist from Alabama doesn't know that, so our free inspection is a boon to the tourists and business men alike."

PICKLE COMPANY IS OFFERING CONTRACTS

Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Co. Contracting for Acreage

The Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Company is now contracting pickle acreage in all of their ten stations including the Charlevoix station.

Many farmers regularly depend on an acre or two of pickles as a quick cash crop that brings in handy money in August and September, before most of their other crops are matured and ready for market. Seed is planted only about June 1, and in eight weeks the vines begin to bear, and in another seven weeks the crop is over. The crop is a very quick one to grow.

Excellent yields have been secured, and the company has regularly fulfilled its contracts each year with all of its growers since they purchased the stations in 1925. Several years they voluntarily increased the prices to growers during the season, above the contract, to benefit the growers. Similarly, their prices each year have been higher here than even Southern Michigan packers were paying. In 1930, when markets broke far below the normal line, the company did not waver, as many did, but paid their growers full contract price through to the last day of the season, which assures the producers a real protection for their contract.

Pickles are weighed in and paid for right at the stations. Growers know in advance what they will receive for every pound of contract pickles they deliver which makes these pickle buying stations highly appreciated in this area.

The company this year is offering ten valuable awards to the ten best growers at each station operated. The firm supplies choice treated seed of the best pickling variety free of charge to its contracted growers. This year the stations are to be kept open evenings to accommodate the farmers.

Full growing directions are also supplied and in various other ways they constantly try to help their growers to establish a most successful year. When rightly planted and thinned, actual records show that an acre of pickles can be handled with less labor-hours than an acre of potatoes.

With no investment for seed, a guaranteed market and price, and prompt cash payment in full at each delivery, farmers benefit greatly by adding an acre or two of pickles to their regular farm plan each year.

ANNUAL CLEAN-UP WEEK IS MAY 11-16

CITIZENS URGED TO JOIN IN SUMMER PREPARATION

Mayor Issues Proclamation Proclaiming Effort—City Street Department Will Assist

Charlevoix's annual house cleaning campaign will start Monday, May 11th, and continue through Saturday, May 16th.

The city council has designated that period for the annual "Clean-Up" week and health and fire officials and eltizens generally are behind the movement to properly dress up the community for the coming season.

The following proclamation has been issued by Mayor Arthur Bergeon:

PROCLAMATION

The City Council has designated the week of May 11-16, inclusive, as Annual Clean-Up Week. We are going to have a good summer this year so let everybody CLEAN UP, PAINT UP, and CHEER UP. The City street department will remove all cans and rubbish placed in convenient places on streets and alleys. We urge everybody to join in this Clean-Up movement so that we can live up to our slogan, "CHARLEVOIX-THE-BEAUTIFUL."

Signed:
ARTHUR BERGEON,
Mayor.

The immediate purpose of the Clean-Up Week is to clear the yards, alleys and vacant property of the city of all refuse and rubbish and garbage piles; it will reduce the fire hazard by removing piles of inflammable materials and it will give the city a cleaner appearance.

Chief Charles Marshall of the local fire department urges people to burn the rubbish which will burn but to do it reasonably and safely. Keep the fires under constant control and away from all buildings or fences which might ignite.

Dr. R. B. Armstrong, city health officer, urges everyone to see that the accumulation of rubbish in the yard or in the home is burned or removed as a measure for preventing the outbreak and spread of any epidemic.

The good citizens urge all other citizens to see that their home grounds are made clean and attractive, not only for the summer visitors but for the enjoyment of home folks.

PETITION FOR STATE PARK SOUTH OF CITY

Seek to Convert State Land on Lake Michigan to Park Site

Sponsored by local civic organizations, petitions requesting the Conservation Department acquire and convert into a state park a block of state-owned land south of this city, are being circulated and given strong support.

The property involved contains approximately 500 acres and is located in Charlevoix and Norwood townships. It is interseeted by the new scenic drive under construction along Lake Michigan between Charlevoix and Norwood, and has about two miles of lake frontage with excellent bathing beach.

It is understood the proposal has previously been considered at Lansing and has an excellent chance of aceeptance.

CHARLEVOIX WINS BASEBALL CONTEST

DEFEATED EAST JORDAN S TO 4 THERE FRIDAY

Remain Undefeated in Western Division of "Little Eight" Baseball Conference

Charlevoix High school remained undefeated in "Little Eight" baseball conference competition by scoring a 5 to 4 victory Friday over East Jordan. The game was called in the fifth inning because of rain.

Charlevoix scored enough runs to win in the first three innings, counting twice in the first and three in the third. Although limited to one hit, the Rayders took advantage of Johnson's wildness and errors by the Jordanites to score. Russell, who relieved Johnson, pitched hitless ball for East Jordan in the last two innings.

Johnson and Russell struck out nine Charlevoix batters ond allowed five bases on balls. Moore caught for the losers.

Gallagher, Charlevoix hurler, was driven from the mound in the fourth inning with the bases loaded, two runs in on balls, and none out. Kulpa, who relieved him, hit the first batter up and walked the next to give Jordan two runs and then struck out the next three men in order.

Sneathen's catch of a line drive to mid-field in the third inning prevented two East Jordan runs and resulted in a double play through his throw to second base.

Gallagher and Kulpa were credited with nine strikeouts, gave five bases on balls and struck two batters. Cellner caught.

The box seore:

Charlevoix 2 0 3 0 0	5	1	1

MANY ATTENDED ENTERTAINMENT

FINE PROGRAM GIVEN BY THE BOARD OF COMMERCE

Activities and Alms of Promotional Body Are Outlined at Public Meeting Thursday

Several hundred people enjoyed the first public entertainment sponsored by the new Charlevoix Board of Commerce, Thursday evening, at the high school gymnasium.

In an appropriate stage setting, showing the living room of a Charlevoix home, "little" Fay Bradley, aged "five," lay on the floor face down, kicking his heels in the air and studying the columns of the Charlevoix Courier—allegedly a humorous sheet, as Fay told his mother that he was reading the "funny paper." As "Father" F. J. Fessenden discussed with "Mother" Freda MeMillan, the formation of the new Board of Commeree and the qualifications of the officers and the members of the board of directors, this precocious nnd somewhat overgrown infant commented upon them in his frank, childish way—much to the amusement of the audience. Among those who came in for a razzing were President "Pete" Hallett, Secretary Fred Tyler, and Director R. F. Sloan.

Mother turned on the radio and achieved a choice assortment of the best forms of static, whereupon Ivan Falconer, the radio doctor, was ealled in. He twirled the knob in his best professional manner and straightway came a growled protest from the instrument itself to "Keep your hands off, you villain—I haven't been right since Ty Kirby left town." One moment later, a broadcast started, in which a brief sketch of Charlevoix from the glacial age to the present cleverly traced its progress as a community. This was the joint work of Robert Miles and Dallas Henry, announeers, and was styled "Time Marches On."

Then followed several reels of motion pictures, donated by Earl Young, Robert Bridge, Robert Miles and Walker Miles. There were scenes from the 1927 Charlevoix winter sports carnival and 1935-36 pictures featuring Charlevoix's winter queen, bits of coasting, skiing and skijoring at Petoskey, Boyne City, East Jordan, Ironton and Charlevoix, and a shot of East Jordan's lady "polar bear," taking her daily dip through the ice in the waters of South Arm.

President Harold Hallett of the Board of Commerce then addressed the meeting and outlined briefly the present set-up, methods and aims of the new organization, including an appeal for the moral support of the audience and their memberships in the Board of Commerce. Mayor Arthur Bergeon appeared in behalf of the city administration, pledging its hearty support to the Board and further urging the whole-hearted cooperation of the community in the work of the Board. He also expressed his personal gratifieation at the energy and enthusiasm the members of the new Board were displnying and the businesslike way in which they were taking hold of their important tasks.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY A GREAT SUCCESS

NEARLY THREE HUNDRED TOOK PART IN PROGRAM

Displays of Handicraft Work Were Commendable — County Champions Named for Year

(By Orville F. Walker)

The Charlevoix county 4-H Achievement Day, which was held at East Jordan with an attendance of over 500, was the largest ever held in this county. Nearly 300 boys and girls displayed exhibits of their projects such as hot luneh, clothing and handicraft. It was very gratifying to see the number of parents and friends who inspected these exhibits. Many comments were given on the splendid work these boys and girls did.

The program started at 9 o'clock in the morning with the wood identification contest. The two boys who scored high and won free trips to the Gaylord eluh camp were Cliffard Gibbard, of East Jordan, and Bernard Matchett, of Charlevoix. Between 100 and 500 were treated to a free moving picture from 10 to 12, which everyone enjoyed. At noon hot cocoa and 10 gallons of ice eream were served to 400 who gathered at the Legion Hall for a cooperative lunch. Promptly at 1:30 the regular 4-H club program was started with Mr. Wade, superintendent of schools of East Jordan, giving the address of welcome, which was responded to hy Elsie Hilton, of Charlevoix.

One of the main features of the program was the dress revue in which 80 clothing club girls wore the dress which they had made as part of their regular 4-H projects. Everyone enjoyed the music furnished by the orchestra and hill hillies from the Hopyard school. Miss Barbara Scott, of the East Jordan High school faculty, led the community singing. After a few remarks by Mr. Palmer, county school commissioner, Mr. Kettunen, state club leader, and Miss Bird, assistant state club leader, gave interesting short talks and announced the honor roll members and county delegates. Mr. Mellencamp then gave out the certificates of achievement and pins to the finishers and leaders. Of the 303 boys and girls to start their projects, 297 finished, which means that only six members dropped during the year, and which gives Charlevoix county an exceptional record of 98 per cent. In handicraft there were 15 elubs with 98 members starting, of which 94 finished. Out of this group the following were the honor roll members, which means that they did exceptionally fine work.

First Year — Buddy Zipp, Bay Shore; Iver Lyon, Edward O'Brien, Harold Beattie, Franklin Mascho and Keith Ager, of Charlevoix; Melvin Hardy, Boyne City; Ray Badgley, Vanderbilt; Dean Dingman and Betty Moreau, Clarion; Franklin Cellner, Charlevoix; Raymond Anthony, Boyne City; Maurice Kraemer and Clifford Gibbard, of East Jordan; Russell Stephens, of Walloon Lake.

Second Year—Peter Walker, Bay Shore; Tony Faculak, Charlevoix; Ray Holborn, Vanderbilt; Eugene Ecker, Clarion; Ned Anthony, Boyne

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Sterilization of Common Drinking Cups

The process to be used in sterilizing common drinking cups or glasses is detailed in some of the laws bearon this subject. Ohio, for example, prescribes the following method—namely, that after each individual service, the glass must first be washed by rinsing in cold water, then thoroughly washed in hot water with soap or saitable cleansing powder, or exposed to live steam, boiling water or hot air, the latter at a temperature of not less than 250 degrees Fahrenheit, for a period of not less than five minutes, then rinsed in clear cold water and drained. Heat, of course, is about the best sterilizer known. Boiling water kills most germs in five minutes, and dead germs are harmless unless they exist in enormous numbers.

There is an obvious disposition on the part of many dispensers of soft drinks to avoid this sterilization process, and it is not uncommon for such glasses to be dipped and redipped until the water in which they are rinsed becomes n veritable cesspool of germs; and each time a glass is rinsed its potentiality for danger increases for the next user.

The difficulty of enforcing adequate sterilization has led some communities, for example, Durham and Goldsboro, North Carolina, to forbid the use of glasses in soft drink places altogether. At many State and county fairs they are also prohibited.

It is not alone in soft drink dispensaries that the dangers of the unclean glass may be encountered. These dangers may exist in restaurants, cafeterias, theaters, and many other places.

The individual manifests the same carelessness every time he uses n common drinking glass at a picnic, on a motoring trip, or in a camping ground or park. In the case of the motorist, the peril is aggravated by the fact that he may carry disease from one State to another.

Every man, woman and child has a responsibility in this matter, a responsibility to himself and to his fellows. It is the duty of any one who drinks at a soda fountain, a restaurant, or any other place, to find out whether the receptacle from which he drinks is safe, and if not, to demand one that is. Insanitary conditions of whatever nature should be immediately reported to the local health authorities.

When traveling by motor, one should be sure that each member of his party is provided with his own individual drinking cup, and everybody concerned should take the utmost pains to avoid becoming infected, and to avoid carrying infection from one place to another. Most of all the greatest vigilance should be observed for the protection of one's own and his neighbor's children. The young do not know enough to discriminate, and should be safeguarded against the ever present dangers of the common drinking cup or glass when such common receptacles are allowed to exist.

SPECIAL MEETINGS AT PHELPS CHURCH

If you enjoy good singing, be sure to hear Robert Conley sing the songs of Zion. He is a native of Tennessee and can sing those "Negro Spirituals" just like "Way Down South." He can truly be called a sweet singer in Israel.

Come! Let us worship the Lord together in the beauty of Holiness.

Arley F. Osborn, Minister.

Mother's Day

"All that I am or hope to be I owe to my Mother."—Abraham Lincoln.

The home is the fountain-head of our civilization. The queen that sits upon the throne is the mother of the family, her sway undisputed, the rules of her household maintained by the common consent of her loving subjects, and if the need arises, as it sometimes does, enforced through tender gentleness. Truly she rules with patient understanding and love.

In this day and age when women are occupying high places in the professions, in the marts of trade, in our legislative halls and countless other spheres, it still remains that as wife and mother a woman is seen in her most sacred and influential character. As such she wields her great influence over the lives and characters of individuals, the condition of families, the future worth-whileness of her flock. Mary attained the superlative as the human means of ushering the Divine Jesus into the world. Lincoln had his mother only a while in his early boyhood days, yet he gave all the credit for what he was to his beloved mother.

How fortunate is the man who may enjoy a mother living. How privileged is he who can still repay in part her many sacrifices made for him without a thought of weariness. The time comes all too soon when mother will be going on before, and then the memories we may cherish are only those we helped to build.

And so may our hearts be filled to overflowing—and on Mother's Day pay a special tribute to the mothers living and the mothers who have gone to the celestial realms above.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Older Cars Noted In State Records

While the outstanding feature of the issuance of titles, licenses and stickers for automobiles by the Department of State is the volume of new cars, clerks note with interest the proof of the endurance of some of the sturdy old ones as shown in applications.

Within recent days, 1936 license plates have been issued for two 1915 automobiles. The Olds Motor Company of Lansing, however, has just secured a Michigan title to a 1911 car purchased by that company at Roxbury, Mass. It weighs 5160 pounds and is equipped with 42 inch wheels, relics of earlier days of the industry.

No application for 1936 license plates has been received as yet. The cost of plates at 35 cents per hundred weight would be $18.20.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday morning service, 10:45.

Meets first Wednesday evening each month at 7:45 p. m.

Reading room open Saturday, 3 to 5 p. m.

Sunday school, 12 o'clock.

We cordially invite the public to our service and reading room.

"Adam and Fallen Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, May 10.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Rom. 12:1): "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 409): "The real man is spiritual and immortal, but the mortal and imperfect so-called 'children of men' are counterfeits from the beginning, to be laid aside for the pure reality."

Self-assurance is located somewhere below the Adam's apple.

Here's Action, Speed, True Leadership!

DOWN AT FIRST the runner has taken a long lead. Mickey watches him . . . signals for a sizzling pitchout. Then, in a flash, he rifles the ball to second . . . and, from the dust, up comes the umpire's arm. "He's out!"

In a tight pinch, when things look darkest, you've seen him come through . . . pulling his team out of a slump . . . up and away to a World's Championship. That's Leadership!

There's another leader, outside the field of sports. It's Mobilgas! It became America's largest selling gasoline because of that same quick action, the same smooth, well-controlled power and fast "getaway." It's easy to buy for you find it wherever you go. So . . .

Head for the Sign of the Flying Red Horse.

PRIZES OFFERED IN MILEAGE TEST BY 300,000 CARS

Three hundred thousand motorists will be enlisted by Standard Oil this summer in "the world's greatest road test" to determine what mileage the average car will obtain under average conditions from a gallon of today's gasoline.

Forgetting for the time being the engine, laboratory tests, road tests by engineers, and other methods customarily used in the proving of gasoline, Standard will aid drivers to settle the mileage question for themselves in a practical way.

From May 1 on, the company will furnish to all interested a handy booklet for keeping a record of their gasoline purchases and their mileage. With it will go a colorful emblem to mark the automobile as a "research test car."

After driving 500 miles or more in the 65-day period prior to September 18th, the motorist may write into the book a 75-word summary of his experience, send it to the company, and become a possible winner of one of the seven hundred cash and merchandise prizes to be awarded participants. The cash prizes range from ten dollars to a thousand dollars each. The awards will be made by a committee of disinterested experts.

With the data obtained in this manner from thousands upon thousands of drivers Standard expects to be able to determine the mileage cars actually deliver from a given gasoline.

To publicize the test itself and to attract drivers to take part, the company has contracted for a large amount of advertising space in nearly 1,600 newspapers, the Charlevoix Courier being prominent among those chosen for this purpose. Later ads in the series are promised to be among the most entertaining the company has ever published.

"It's connected now, Madam"

A TELEPHONE, the moment it is connected, brings definite benefits to a home. Large or small, in city or country, that home is improved by the presence of a telephone.

Of foremost importance is the benefit of protection. A telephone is a form of insurance against fire and theft. It has saved Michigan homes by the speed with which it has brought firemen to the scene. It has routed burglars by its promptness in flashing an alarm to the police. And in times of illness—during those dread hours when there is sickness in the house—a single telephone call can give help of a kind that no one could appraise in terms of dollars and cents.

Another benefit of the telephone shows itself in the work of the housewife. It reduces the drudgery in her daily routine, saves her many steps. Particularly in bad weather does she appreciate the privilege, made possible only by the telephone, of doing her shopping without leaving the house.

In social matters the installation of a telephone can mark a new era in the family life. No longer are the various members of the household out of reach of their friends and relatives. A telephone in the home instantly puts them "in touch." It makes social gatherings and many of the pleasures of friendship available both to adults and children.

The telephone is one of the most worth-while of present-day conveniences. Dependable and economical, the genuine value of its service has made it an accepted feature in the modern Michigan home.

Township Committeemen In New Soil Conservation Program Hold Important Meeting

The township committeemen from all the communities in Charlevoix county met Friday, May 1, in Boyne City to discuss the various features of this new program.

Most of the time was spent in outlining the classification of crops, the type of payments being made and other activities so that the same interpretations could be made by all township field men.

Practically all townships have been entirely covered at the present time and farmers advised as to how the program operates on their own farm. Judging from comments heard at the meeting, farmers are deeply interested in the program and it is expected that at least 85 per cent will participate.

Paul Le Roux, district supervisor of the program, will meet with the township chairmen on Thursday, May 7, to give further instructions on the program. As soon as any new information is available it will be made public so that farmers may receive the maximum benefit from this new form of farm assistance.

State College Finds That Mice Have Injured Trees Both Above and Below Ground

Members of the Horticultural Department, who have been investigating the severe damage caused by mice the past winter, have removed soil from trees showing meadow mice feeding injury and have found that often a third to a sixth of the tree injured above ground have also been girdled below ground, often leaving a circle of uninjured bark between the two injured zones; where poison bait was used last fall one orchard had very little injury above ground, but revealed extensive injury below ground.

This has happened before. One member of the Horticultural Department recently examined a large orchard that was injured by mice several years ago, in which all above ground injuries were bridge grafted at that time. Many of the trees were dying in spite of perfect bridge grafts. After digging deeper, in early April of this year, for a possible cause,—it was found that many of the bridge grafted trees that had not recovered show painful girdling of root and lower crown area, that had not been discovered or repaired at that time.

Fruit growers are urged, in the light of this finding, to examine crown and upper root area for a foot from the trunk so that all of the injured areas may be attended to at one operation. Incidentally, those who go to this degree of thoroughness will be well repaid, for many cases of crown freezing (collar rot) as well as crown-blight-cankers may be discovered, cleaned out and repaired.

It is always a good precaution to carry a small bottle of a solution of corrosive sublimate and dip the grafting knife before cutting each scion and trunk bark for scion insertion, since blight is often active during bridge grafting time.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS
By Ann Page

With rhubarb up even in our more northern states it is easy to believe that spring is really here and that before long our markets will contain much locally grown produce. It is true that spinach and asparagus are already in production as far north as New Jersey which accounts for their abundance in market and reasonable price. Strawberries, too, are coming into bearing in more localities and are expected to be plentiful and cheap. California cherries and melons have begun to arrive.

Butter is cheaper and eggs continue to be reasonable. Beef and veal are again the best meat value this week.

Here are three menus planned for different budget levels.

MICHIGAN RANKS HIGH FOR CROPS

Alfalfa Acreage, Field Beans, Cherries Place State First In Production

Michigan's agriculture faces a more profitable season in 1936 because farmers have sufficient variety in crops and enterprise to place the state's agricultural industry high in crop and livestock rankings among the states of the nation, according to a census and crop estimate survey by economists at Michigan State College and by federal-state crop statisticians in the capitol at Lansing.

As in athletic contests, ranks are interesting because they keep changing. In 1935, according to the census, Michigan farmers took on some new firsts in the nation. More acres are planted to alfalfa and more farmers grow alfalfa than in any other state, yet the previous census could only give Michigan a rank of second in alfalfa.

Take beans. Michigan ranks first in both acreage and production. Cherries and cucumbers for pickles give the state two more firsts in crop production. Cherries harvested in 1935 were worth more than $1,000,000.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

MORE SHRUBS FOR PLANTING

High Shrubs: Ten Feet and Over

High shrubs are invaluable in planting no matter how small the area. A change in height is perhaps the easiest way to add interest to planting. People all too frequently use only shrubs of medium height which creates a monotonous effect.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 85c.

This applies not only to plantings in shrub borders but equally as well to foundation planting. Below are listed just a few of the rather high shrubs which are not used sufficiently and which could improve and add interest to our plantings by further use.

Hybrid Lilacs—(Syringa hybrida) We are all familiar with the common garden lilac and it is perhaps the favorite shrub of many people. During the last century a great deal of work has been done in improving lilacs and now an enormous number of Hybrid Lilacs have been developed. They are often called French Lilacs since Frenchmen first started hybridizing them. These lilacs have many advantages over the common garden type and it is rather strange having been developed for so many years that they are not more common. The flowers are invariably large. Some types have heads of bloom twelve or more inches long. In many varieties the individual flowers are very large; in some cases over an inch across. Some kinds are single, others double and besides the usual color of lilac or white, they are obtainable in reds, purples, blues, whites, violets, and all the in-between shades. They have been obtained by hybridizing and selection. One other advantage of Hybrid Lilacs over the common lilacs is that they do not sucker, but instead have a tree like growth with well defined trunks.

Special kinds of lilacs, like special kinds of roses, are called varieties, and are given special names to tell one from the other. Frequently these are names of famous people.

The following list mentions only a few Hybrid Lilacs which it is possible to obtain. It indicates the range in colors, which may be procured. Charles Joly has dark purple-wine blossoms with silvery reverse. Ludwig Spaeth is a single variety with dark purple flowers. General Pershing is a semi-double type with blossoms tinged a very delicate light blue lilac. President Carnot is double with silvery lavender flowers. Mme. Lemoine is a double white variety. Marie LeGraye is single and white. Charles X is single with reddish-mauve blossoms. Negro has very deep purple flowers and is single. President Lincoln is perhaps the bluest single flowering lilac grown. It has large clusters of wedgewood blue flowers.

Russian-Olive—(Elengnus angustifolia) This is another fine shrub used all too little in our plantings. It grows from ten to twenty feet high, is particularly hardy, and often attains a small tree like shape. Its chief beauty is its leaves which are small and narrow and about two inches long, a soft light green above and silver beneath. The young branches are also silver and it makes a splendid foliage contrast with almost anything else in the garden. The flowers are inconspicuous and it produces a fruit which some one evidently thought resembled an olive.

Buffaloberry — (Shepherdia argentea) Buffaloberry is a native shrub which is somewhat similar to the Russian-Olive. It is very hardy and grows about twelve feet tall. It, too, has silvery leaves and spiny silver branches. It blossoms in May, but the yellow flowers are small and inconspicuous; its fruits, however, are attractive. These are small, round berries which come in clusters close to the stem, are scarlet in color and very showy. These appear during August. The Buffaloberry is not a compact plant which one would use for heavy formal effects. It is, however, very useful in informal plantings and does well in the shade.

Sumac—(Rhus glabra) Everyone is familiar with the Sumac which we see growing in the country. Yet few of us think of using it in our yards. The Sumac can, however, produce an effect of almost tropical richness when in full leaf and its fall color is hardly equalled by any other shrub. It is one which should be used chiefly in quite informal plantings, where it will well repay our efforts to make use of it. Other varieties are obtainable from nurseries. One in particular, a cut leaf variety, is interesting in plantings and gives a very lacy effect.

Prickly Ash or Toothache Tree — (Zanthoxlyum americanum) The Prickly Ash is a native plant which is practically never used. It is, as a matter of fact, difficult to buy because most nursery men do not even carry it. It has a leaf very similar to an ash and small thorns on the branches and the trunks. These two factors account for its being called Prickly Ash. It is rather up-right in habit with several well defined trunks and frequently becomes twenty feet high, although it is usually only ten. Both flowers and fruit are inconspicuous. The chief reason for mentioning it is its fall color which is distinctive. It is a stunning red-purple, which is exceedingly effective in the fall. It is useful as a tall background plant and in rather wild plantings.

Compliments Exchanged As Film Stars Reunite

Although five years have passed since Marlene Dietrich and Gary Cooper appeared together in "Morocco," each is positive that the other has not changed in essentials. On meeting at the Paramount studio, for work in their new co-starring romantic comedy "Desire," they seized the chance to tell impressions of each other.

Cooper sees Miss Dietrich as a constant quality.

"Marlene Dietrich is as friendly, as human as ever," he says. "She preserves that inscrutable something which is her charm."

To Miss Dietrich, Gary Cooper is the same easy-going person.

"He takes everything in his stride," she declares. "How he enjoys himself in whatever he does! I hope he never changes his character."

Director Frank Borzage pinces Marlene Dietrich and Cooper first in a list of the most famous screen lovers of all time. They are provided with a tempestuous romance in "Desire," which comes Saturday and Sunday, to the Palace Theatre.

Eat up distance, but not your bearings

Get alloyed oil . . . and you'll get the difference

Ask your wife. The least little heat makes smoke out of some of the oily substances she puts in her frying pan. They vanish double quick, while others stay put.

That's the sort of difference your hilliest hot-weather drive will show you in Germ Processed, the alloyed oil. Patented.

It not only stays up around "Full," but stays right up in every working surface of your engine. Yes, the pistons, cylinders, valve gear, and any types of bearings ever used, can really take in this alloyed oil. You might say they become lastingly, smoothly "oil-glazed."

And you can see that this added sleek oil-surfacing, together with the high-durability Germ Processed oil-film, easily doubles your guard against summer grief. Now when you want to go farthest fastest, get Conoco Germ Processed oil—the alloyed oil. Continental Oil Company.

DOGS PROBLEM OF CONSERVATION AUTHORITIES

Urge Owners Leash Animals to Protect Birds, Small Game

The wundering dog problem has hobbed up again to worry conservation authorities of Michigan.

Each spring when rabbits begin to rear their young and pheasants, partridge and quuil begin to nest, conservation officiuls issue a reminder to all dog owners, requesting them to keep their dogs from running game afield. The young of small game animals and birds are particularly easy to attack and kill and now is the time when dogs can he particularly hothersome afield.

During the past two months conservation authorities have received more reports of dogs running and killing deer in Northern Michigan than in any other previous year. They recognize that dog owners do not find it desirable to keep their pets tied up all of the time, but when a dog remains nwuy from home all or most of the day or night it's a pretty suro sign that he may be having illegal hobbies and that the owner should restrain him u little if he is interested in maintaining and increasing small-game supplies.

DETROITERS HERE ON ANNUAL CRUISE

GUESTS OF CITY FIVE HOURS ON JUNE 12TH

Board of Commerce Making Plans for Entertainment of Detroit Athletic Club Members

(By F. V. Tyler)

Following an exchange of correspondence that had its beginning about the middle of last month, F. V. Tyler, secretary of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce, announces that the steamship, "South American," of the Chicago, Duluth & Georgian Bay Transit Company's line, will arrive in Charlevoix harbor on Friday, June 12th.

This de luxe liner of the lakes will carry the members of the Detroit Athletic Club and their families on the Club's annual cruise. The steamer will arrive at about 1:30 p. m. and will not resume her trip until 7 p. m. This stay will give her passengers approximately five hours to spend in Charlevoix and it is the intention of the Board of Commerce reception committee that their visit shall not be in vain.

An ambitious program of golf and tennis tournaments, fishing trips and sight-seeing tours, with bridge parties for the ladies has been arranged by the committee. Handsome prizes will be offered for the winners in the several sports contests and card games and a real effort will be made to give the visitors the time of their lives.

Meanwhile, preparations are merrily under way at the other end of the line. The secretary received a telegram, Tuesday, requesting that suitable photographs of our golf courses be rushed to the Detroit office of the steamship line for use in their special advertising for the cruise. Over the week-end, Captain Anderson of the "South American" paid a flying visit to Charlevoix and went over the channel depth figures with Captain Straubel of the U. S. Coast Guard station and Joseph Howard, dock manager for the city. He pronounced conditions O. K. and, as the matter of depth of water was the last point that needed verification to satisfy the management of the line, the visit of the big new liner and her prominent passengers became practically an assured thing. As this is written, definite confirmation of the visit from Emery B. Hatch, secretary and treasurer of the steamship line, is awaited by the committee before proceeding with its plans.

The officers of the steamship company, who opened negotiations with the local Board of Commerce with regard to the cruise and its visit here, have expressed themselves as very much pleased with the fine cooperation they have received at our hands and Charles Hughes, secretary of the Detroit Athletic Club, has asked the line's secretary, Mr. Hatch, to extend his personal thanks and those of the Athletic Club members to the Charlevoix Board for its proposed efforts in their behalf.

This will be strictly a business meeting and is called for the purpose of giving the members at large an opportunity to present to the officers and board of directors any matters that the board should consider, looking toward the development of Charlevoix as a resort and to its betterment as a community. It will also give the directors an opportunity to explain more fully what it has planned to do during 1936 and to answer any questions that the members may care to ask regarding its plans. A good attendance is desired.

FIND FISH FEED EXTENSIVELY ON SMELT

Importance As Food Fish Assuming Greater Possibilities

With the information that various Great Lakes fishes seem to be feeding extensively on smelt, fisheries authorities are beginning to wonder if the smelt may not assume greater scientific importance as a food fish for commercial varieties.

It has been known for some time that the wall-eyed pike as well as lake trout will gorge on smelt, but new reports indicate that the smelt are eaten by other species as well.

A worker employed by Booth Fisheries at Cheboygan recently opened a seven-pound lawyer or burbot and found inside 19 smelt and five other kinds of small fishes. The same man examined the stomachs of three lake trout weighing about four pounds each and found a half-dozen or more smelt inside.

While it is very likely that the smelt may constitute a valuable forage for commercial fish, it is still not definitely known whether the smelt will tend to reduce or limit commercial varieties by eating their eggs and young.

SUMMER 4-H CLUB PROGRAM STARTED

MANY GROUPS PLANNING TO PARTICIPATE

Charlevoix Kiwanis Club Is Again Sponsoring Club Organization With Thirty-One Members

The prospects for summer 4-H club work in Charlevoix county looks very promising. After completing a very fine program of winter work, the boys and girls are already planning on joining some one of the summer projects.

The Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix is again sponsoring club work, and has organized a club of 31 boys with Adolph Ecklund as president. These boys are from the nearby country around Charlevoix so it was thought advisable to have them go back to their respective communities and organize sub-groups so that other boys and girls can join the community club. In this way each club can have its meeting more often to discuss their problems. The sub-groups are located at Burgess, Marion Center, and Barnard, and that includes the Clarke and Phelps together with the US-31 group composed of Hilton and McGeagh. At the last meeting of the 4-H Kiwanis, Bob Straw gave a very interesting account of his trip with Mr. Sloan to Michigan State College campus, where they spent a day looking over the livestock.

All boys and girls of the winter and summer clubs should be preparing to enter some of the activities at the 4-H club picnic, which will be held some time this summer. At this time the elimination for demonstration teams and health contests will be held. There will also be judging for both boys and girls. Those wishing to enter the achievement contest for fall trip to Washington should get in touch with Mr. Mellencamp. The winners of these contests will compete at the Gaylord Club Camp for trips to the State Fair at Detroit, where they will again compete for free trips to Chicago and Washington.

The Girls' League of Charlevoix High school is sponsoring the presentation of George Arlis in the "Iron Duke," at the school gymnasium at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, May 19.

The "Iron Duke" portrays Arlis in one of his most famous roles in the great historical drama of Napoleon's last encounter with Wellington.

Other features of the evening's entertainment will include "Hill-Billy," Oswald the Rabbit cartoon, and "Land of Burns," travel in Scotland.

Other members of the commission are W. L. Martin, Boyne City, and A. W. Frieberg, East Jordan.

MUNICIPAL PLAY-GROUNDS STARTED

WILL DEVELOP PROPERTY ON ROUND LAKE HARBOR

Plan Construction Concrete Tennis and Shuffle Board Courts, Installation Playground Equipment

Work on a revised plan for developing property acquired by the city for parking purposes on the east side of Bridge street between Clinton and Mason streets was started Tuesday morning as a WPA project.

The plan, backed by the Board of Commerce and approved by the city council, calls for the establishment of a municipal playground equipped with various recreational facilities, centrally located in the business district on Round Lake.

Following completion of grading operations, two regulation concrete tennis courts will be constructed on the second terrace below the street level. At least four and perhaps additional shuffle board courts will be built. The courts will be lighted for night play.

Other facilities will include sand boxes and playground equipment for the children and other equipment deemed advisable.

The upper terrace will be sodded and the entire frontage will be landscaped and planted to shrubbery. Cement stairways will lead from the street down into the park and gravel walks will be constructed throughout the grounds.

Strenuous effort is planned to bring about approval of a WPA project providing for driving of steel sheet piling along the water front. Plans of this project include straightening out the water front line, providing a fill behind the sheet piling to extend the south property line into Round Lake about 20 feet.

If approval is given and when the work is completed, the city will build yacht slips along the lake front.

Action by the council in establishing a playground on Round Lake is considered by many as one of the most progressive moves taken here in many years.

RALPH WASHBURN VICTIM ACCIDENTAL SHOT

Struck in Leg by Bullet from Revolver "Not Loaded"

Ralph Washburn is recovering at Charlevoix Hospital from a bullet wound in his leg, caused by the accidental discharge of a revolver Saturday night at the John Knight cottage on Belvedere avenue.

The mishap occurred when Knight, believing a revolver he was showing to a group of friends to be empty, pulled the trigger on a loaded chamber. Washburn, in line with the gun, was hit in the groin.

Although suffering from loss of blood, Washburn's condition is reported to be satisfactory.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY LARGELY ATTENDED

ANNUAL CLUB WORK REVIEW AT BOYNE CITY

Mrs. Fred Willis Named County Secretary Extension Groups for the Ensuing Year

(By B. C. Mellencamp)

The annual Achievement Day for the ladies throughout the county who have participated in the home economics extension projects was held in the Methodist church in Boyne City on Tuesday, May 5. The committees in charge had arranged all details perfectly, including the arrangements for a perfect day.

Fully 175 ladies were in attendance at the afternoon program. The Ladies' Aid groups served a delicious luncheon at noon to 120 folks. A big feature of the day was the exhibits prepared by the various groups which showed the type of activity studied. Numbered among these exhibits were games and homemade toys, remodeled clothing, safety in the home, the correct luncheon and the uses of butter and milk in the diet.

The afternoon program opened with Mrs. Counlis Muscho, of Charlevoix, chairman, leading community singing. Rev. Eley gave the address of welcome, with Mrs. Mascho responding on behalf of the guests. Next the high school girls' Glee Club favored with two selections very ably rendered. Other entertainment features were readings by Delores Gould and Glyndora Gould, and piano selections by Jackie Schneider. The main addresses of the afternoon were given by Miss Margaret Harris, home economics specialist from the Michigan State College, who stressed the value of nutrition, which is to be studied this fall. Ralph Tenny, director of short courses, also appeared on the program. Few people realize the opportunities that young folks have in taking the various short courses available.

The election of officers for the new year was an important item and resulted in the selection of Mrs. Helen Cohn, of East Jordan, as county chairman, Mrs. Fred Willis, of Charlevoix, as county secretary, and Mrs. John Koteskey, Boyne City, as recreational chairman. These ladies will do all in their power toward making a great success of the new program. It was voted to send the incoming president to Farm Women's Week, which will be held during the month of July at the Michigan State College. Achievement certificates were awarded to all ladies who had completed the requirements of the project. The various leaders throughout the county who have so freely donated their time and attention were introduced by the county agent. Plans are already being made by the various organizations in the county to carry on the new program.

MUNICIPAL GOLF RATES POPULAR

COMMITTEE SETS UP ATTRACTIVE SCHEDULE

Course Now Ready for Play Will Officially Open for the 1936 Season on June 1st

A schedule of popular rates for greens privileges will be available to golfing enthusiasts when the Charlevoix Municipal Golf course opens officially for the 1936 season on June 1st.

With the aim of making the course self-sustaining only and passing the benefits of a non-profit plan on to patrons, the committee named by the city to operate the course, recently taken over from the Charlevoix Golf Association, have set up an attractive schedule of rates.

Season tickets for family heads will be $25, the rate for additional members $15. A 15-play ticket for family heads is offered at $10, with the rate $5 for additional members. A 7-play ticket comes at $5, daily tickets at $1 and an afternoon rate of 50 cents is offered after 3 o'clock.

The committee has employed Jeff Novotny, who has been engaged in a similar capacity for several years, as groundskeeper. He operates on a budget and has complete charge of maintenance on the course. The committee plans to spare no necessary expense to keep the greens and fairways in the best of condition.

The clubhouse will be placed under a competent professional yet to be chosen. The usual facilities, such as club repairing, lessons and golf accessories will be available to patrons.

While play has already started on the course, the official opening has been set for June 1st. The committee plans to put on a campaign for memberships among both local and summer residents and are trusting they will be given deserved support in this community enterprise.

SHERIFFS IN NORTH KEEP GYPSIES MOVING

Sheriffs of Northern Michigan are giving gypsies the runaround. A caravan composed of four cars and 35 people, was escorted through Grand Traverse county Thursday by Sheriff David Core.

The sheriff had previously telephoned Sheriff Rushton of Antrim county to meet him at the county line and Sheriff Rushton called Sheriff Ikens of Charlevoix county, next to the north. In this manner the gypsy band will be hustled across the Straits and south into Wisconsin.

DEER LAW TO REMAIN UNCHANGED

COMMISSION WILL NOT REMOVE ONE BUCK LAW

Charlevoix Petition for State Park Will Be Investigated for Report at Next Meeting

The State Conservation Commission adopted a resolution Friday repudiating what it termed "a common belief" that it is propagandizing for the abolition of the one-buck deer law.

In a formal statement the commission declared "this commission does not and has not favored the abolition of the one-buck law."

The commission recently instructed its field officers to determine the degree of starvation among its deer herds during the past winter. The information gathered was to be disseminated through the commission office and through sportsmen's organizations.

Harry H. Whiteley, commissioner from Dowagic, asserted the commission has no intention of recommending the shooting of does to reduce the deer population in proportion to forage available.

Legislative action would be necessary to revise the present one-buck law and Whiteley said any such legislation would have to arise in the Legislature itself.

87 Are "Browsed Out"

Harry D. Ruhl, chief of the game division, told the commission that his department found 87 browsed-out deer yards last winter. He blamed the condition of an over-concentration of deer in the affected areas and added that in adjacent districts good browse was available to hungry herds.

The commission took under advisement a petition from the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce asking that 500 acres of land abutting Lake Michigan at Charlevoix be set aside as a state park. It directed a further investigation of the proposal, which is to result in a report to its next meeting.

Attorney Floyd A. Sapp, who took Charlevoix's petitions to Lansing and attended the meeting of the Conservation Commission, stated a representative of the Commission will come to Charlevoix early next week, it is understood, to investigate the proposal of converting 500 acres on the Lake Michigan scenic drive into a state park. Action in the very near future is anticipated.

Permits for Posts

On the recommendation of H. R. Sayre, chief of the law enforcement division, the commission adopted regulations governing the issuance of permits for shooting of game that destroys property. The regulations provide that depredations by birds and animals be reported to the Conservation Department, and a conservation officer determine the necessity of reducing the population of wild life to protect property. It ordered that all game taken under out-of-season permits be turned over to the department.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Additional Soil Building Practices Announced In Soil Conservation Program

The chairmen of the various township committees in the county met on Thursday, May 7, to summarize and harmonize the program. Paul Rood, from the Michigan State College, was present and carefully analyzed the program. We are highly gratified to announce that the committeemen have analyzed the program very accurately and the correct picture presented to the farmer. The most recent announcement carries the good news that farmers may earn soil building payments by additional practices. Thus far the only way possible was by new seedings, the use of lime and the setting out of forestry trees. The following new methods are available.

1. In addition to sweet clover, vetch, crimson clover, and annual sweet clover have been added at $1 an acre.

2. New seedings of perennial grasses on crop land or non-crop pasture land at rates varying from 75 cents to $2.

3. Truck crop farmers and fruit growers may receive at the rate of $1 an acre for planting specified green manure crops following truck crops or by using certain nurse crops or cover crops, which included rye, oats, barley, annual grasses or mixtures of these crops with legumes. However, as green manure crops they must be at least a two months growth before being plowed down and no winter cover crops they must not be harvested or pastured.

4. Phosphates and potash have been added to ground lime stone as mineral supplements provided they are used according to recommendations, and must be applied between January 1, 1936, and September 30, 1936, on crop land used for the growing of legumes or grasses and from which crop land no soil depletion crops are harvested. Two hundred pounds of 16 per cent phosphates earns $1.50 per acre, 300 pounds $2.25, and 500 pounds of phosphate $2.25.

5. Potash under same conditions as phosphate with 100 pounds of 50 per cent muriate of potash earning $1.

These new practice will afford new ways for farmers to earn the maximum allowances for soil building payments. Generally speaking the allowance pays from 60 to 75 per cent of the cost of seed.

George C. Ferris, of East Jordan, has been engaged to assist the program. He will check over all work sheets as they are turned in to the office, will add the data on the listing sheets and will be glad to answer all questions that will be presented in this new soil conservation program. His office will be in connection with the county agent's office in the Boyne City federal building and all mail addressed to him should be Boyne City Federal Building.

Farm Accounts Put 1935 at Top

Michigan farmers made more money in 1935 than in any year since 1929, according to farm accounting surveys made by the Michigan State College farm management department.

Preliminary analysis of the accounts of more than 1500 farmers in 66 counties of the state indicate general improvement over 1934, as well as over conditions of the last six years, H. A. Berg, extension specialist, announces. Complete reports with statistics and data for the entire state will not be ready until October.

Mr. Berg also reports an increase of about 500 farmers in 1935 cooperating with the county agents and with the extension department of the college in keeping accounts of their costs.

"Michigan farmers are beginning to realize the importance of keeping accounts as the only way of knowing whether they are making or losing money or what adjustments must be made to improve their individual positions," he says.

Charlevoix county leads the state with 50 farmers who keep accurate account books, according to the records of B. C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent. Counties with 30 or more record keepers are Berrien, Branch, Eaton, Emmet, Kalamazoo, Kent and Newaygo.

Six counties have been added to the number of those with account keepers, bringing the total up to 66, he said. The department aims to have an average of 25 to 30 cooperators in each county.

McHugh Slaps Glenda Farrell Down 14 Times

Grunting for all he was worth, and making faces which would put a professional wrestler to shame, Frank McHugh picked up Glenda Farrell for the fourteenth consecutive time—gave her what is known among the mat grunters and groaners as an "airplane spin"—and deposited her neatly on the top landing of a flight of steps.

This startling bit of horse-play was for a scene in First National's production, "Snowed Under," which comes to the Palace Theatre on Saturday, Sunday. It was lucky that the fourteenth "take" was a good one. For McHugh was all in. And so, for that matter, was Glenda.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Psalms 90: 1, 2): "Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting thou art God."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 63): "In science man is the offspring of Spirit. DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Granddaddy of 'Em All Gets '36 License

Antiquated automobiles which can still be induced to chug along, are apparently taking on a distinct value in Michigan, for commercial advertising purposes.

Applications for licenses for cars of another day have been noted recently in the Department of State. In most instances, the cars were purchased by business firms for use in connection with an advertising feature.

Last week, however, brought a request for a title and license for the oldest car in Department of State records, so far as veteran clerks can recall. A Detroit firm applied for a certificate of title and 1936 plates for a 1903 touring car that had been purchased from a Detroit citizen. It had not been licensed for the past 20 years, and no certificate of title had ever been issued for the car. The state's title law went into effect in 1921.

More arrests and convictions were obtained by Conservation officers in Michigan during 1935 than in any year since 1930, according to a report recently completed by Conservation authorities in Lansing.

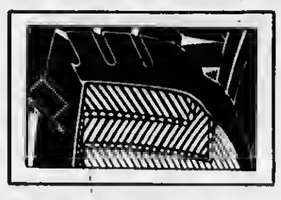
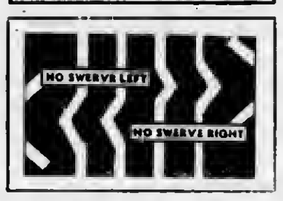
Gum-Dipping not only strengthens the cords but prevents heat inside the cords, where it insulates the tiny fibers against friction and protects Firestone High Speed Tires from blowouts.



This heavy, broad, traction and non-skid tread is held to the cord body of the tire with Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cords, a patented construction, making the cord body and tread an inseparable unit.



The angles in the scientifically designed Firestone High Speed tread are so placed as to stop a car quicker and without sideswerve. Its super-traction and non-skid efficiency have also been proved in the famous Pike's Peak Race where for eight consecutive years it has been used on the winning cars.

TAX ALLOCATION COMMITTEE MET MONDAY

Organize, Make Allocation, and Adjourned Until June 26th

Following organization and tentative allocation of the 15 mill tax to governmental units of the county, the Charlevoix County Tax Allocation Board has adjourned until June 26 for hearings and final allocation.

Howard Stephens, chairman of the finance committee of the board of supervisors, was chosen chairmun for the ensuing year.

The tentative allocation was made on the same basis as a year ago, allowing nine mills to the county and an average of four mills to schools and twn mills to townships.

While the budgets presented by some school districts revealed funds were not needed, the board allocated the maximum of four milla as required and, at the same time, pointed out, that school districts must accept a minimum of two and one-half mills in order to participate in state school aid. Budgets of most school districts showed they were in excellent financial condition.

Norwood and Hayes townships did not ask any funds for township purposes, indicating an excellent financial status and, in cases of thia kind, schools of these townships may be given the entire six milla if needed.

The board's next meeting on June 26 will follow the spring meeting of the board of supervisors on June 22, and the meetings of all boards of review in the county.

Conoco Chemist Wins Renown For Oil Researches

ONE of the most far-reaching of recent scientific discoveries—the "alloying" of oil to extend the life of automobile engines—is credited in large part by engineers to L. L. Davis, unassuming young chemist in the laboratories of the Continental Oil Company at Ponca City, Oklahoma.

With Bert H. Lincoln, the company's chief chemist, Davis patiently tested a thousand obscure chemical compounds to find one that, mixed with oil at the refinery, would establish an independent and permanent protective film on motor metal and thus permit the oil to do its work satisfactorily, even under the higher stress of modern lubricating conditions.

No such chemical substance existed, so Lincoln and Davis synthesized a quasi-magnetic chlorinated ester which they called methyldichlorostearate. X-ray diffraction tests conducted by Professor G. L. Clark of the University of Illinois showed its behavior.

Lincoln and Davis put together this compound with a bow to Sir William Bragg, an English physicist who ten years earlier, while blowing soap bubbles, made observations indicating that the presence of an ester might bring about a desirable regimentation of oil particles.

First revealed to the scientific world at the last meeting of the American Petroleum Institute, the Davis-Lincoln process was a featured topic of discussion before the American Chemical Society membership in its annual meeting at Kansas City last week.

EDITORIAL

ROADSIDE SITTERS

Remember the tree-sitting craze which swept over the nation a few years ago? How, without provocation, some publicity-hungry nut in a community would take to the topmost branches of some friendly tree in the neighborhood, refusing to be dislodged until he has established some sort of a record for endurance, or something. The stunt became so popular at one time there was an actual housing shortage in the squirrel family. Gradually the craze died away and the nation managed to survive.

Now a new class of "sitters" is about to be introduced to the good folks of the Commonwealth — four thousand of them. Supplied direct from Washington with nearly a million dollars of the taxpayers' money the State Highway Department is going to send this vast army out into the hustings to find out how many people are abroad in the land these days. Seated at almost every crossroad they are going to take a traffic survey which, before it can be translated into an understandable report, will be as obsolete as a last month's newspaper.

However, it will furnish jobs for four thousand of the faithful during a campaign year, which is no mean thing when it comes to garnering votes. With state, municipal and county officials at their wits' end to find sufficient funds to care for actual and acute relief needs we are going to be treated to the most gigantic spectacle of vote-buying with public funds ever attempted in the history of the Republic. It is of but little wonder that clear-thinking citizens are becoming alarmed over the situation. They have no objection to "sitters" as long as they keep out of the way of those doing the world's work, and don't look to them for support. But they do object to saddling debts upon the nation that will not be paid for generations to come, and we have an idea they will register their disapproval in no uncertain manner at the ballot box in November.

Obey traffic laws. Cooperate with traffic officers. Traffic regulations often seem burdensome, but remember, the main purpose of them is to save lives and prevent accidents.

TOO MUCH RESPONSIBILITY

America is a land in which:

1. Persons are not allowed to vote until they have reached the age of 21, because it is assumed that before that age they lack the mature judgment desirable for marking a paper ballot.

2. Minors are not permitted by law to deed away their own property or enter into binding contracts, because it is taken for granted that they may not understand the seriousness of what they are doing.

3. Persons under age, when convicted of crimes, are sent not to penitentiary but to reform schools, because it is assumed that they are not responsible for their acts to the extent as the mature.

4. Youngsters of 16 and 17 who would not be trusted to mark a ballot in an election, who are not assumed to have judgment enough to be trusted with the management of their own property, who would not be considered fully responsible in criminal acts, are put in charge of the most deadly machines in common use and sent out upon the highways, a menace to every other member of society.

In one minute after leaving home they are out of sight of their parents, and beyond all mature guidance or control. In ten minutes they are miles away in what dangerous or seductive place and company nobody knows. And at any second there is likely to depend upon their childish judgment a question of life or death for some innocent person on the highway. It is too much responsibility to trust to childish immaturity.—Decatur (Ill.) Herald.

WARDEN JACKSON KNOWS

Warden Harry H. Jackson, of Jackson Prison, is a practical, hard-headed executive who knows what he is doing. No theorist, he has served the people of Michigan long and with distinction, in high-active capacities, as member of the Detroit police force, as warden at Ionia, and as warden at Jackson. Thus, when he says he is mighty relieved at the permission Governor Fitzgerald has given him to rescue his prison from spoils politicians and place it on a sound merit basis, the residents of the state can rest assured that civil service really was needed there. And when Warden Jackson promises that the new methods he and the Civil Service Study Commission are in the act of preparing for selection of the prison staff at Jackson will guarantee non-partisan rather than patronage standards, everyone in the state can breathe a sigh of relief that a healthy move is being taken in a direction where it was acutely necessary.

Governor Fitzgerald is to be complimented for the speed with which he acted as soon as he discovered dangerous incompetence at Jackson. And friends of civil service can be happy for at least two reasons. They can point to the Jackson experience as proof of the necessity of civil service. And they realize that something definite is being done about it.

THE LIFE BEYOND

Nearing the end of a long and beautiful life, which had been enriched by experience and observation, Ralph Waldo Emerson said:

"Of what import this vacant sky, these puffing elements, these insignificant lives, full of selfish loves and quarrels and ennui?" Then he answered his own question: "Everything is prospective, and man is to live hereafter. That the world is for his education is the only sane solution of the enigma. All I have seen teaches me to trust the Creator for all I have not seen. Whatever it be which the great Providence prepares for us, it must be something large and generous, and in the great style of his works."

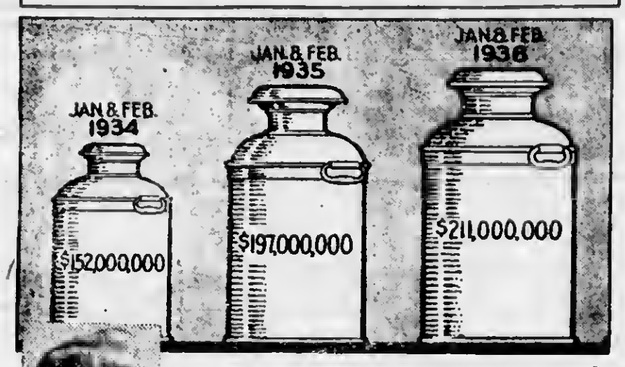
Milk Best Source of Farm Cash—Survey Indicates Steady Increase



MILK as the largest single source of farm income put around $211,000,000 in farmers' pocketbooks during January and February despite the severe storms, according to H. C. Hansen, Lansing dairy leader, who said that preliminary government figures show dairy return to be the highest since the low of 1932.

"While the storms and floods this year have cost farmers and distributors thousands of dollars in heavy extra expenses to get milk to consumers," said Mr. Hansen, "the farmers increased total milk income is gratifying despite the heavy losses.

"Ten years ago milk was less than 15 per cent of total farm income in this country," he said, "while the 1935 figures indicate milk to be about one-fifth of the total. The increase means that farmers are getting about $210,000,000 more out of milk than they received in 1932. Milk is also the best source of farm cash in most cases as it is paid for monthly. With most crops payment is not made until the end of the season.

"Within the last quarter of a century the number of cows has grown to 25,000,000 while the yearly production of milk has increased to around 100,000,000,000 pounds a year, or, approximately 46,500,000,000 quarts.

"The increase in cows and milk production to a great extent is the result of advances in scientific knowledge and perfection of our system of daily distribution of milk. The efficiency of this system of putting a bottle of milk on the consumer's doorstep every day at a reasonable price—milk that is pure and wholesome—shows how a good product aids health while increasing farm income.

"Our milk supply has no equal anywhere else in the world and the speed and economy with which milk is delivered to homes every day results from long practical experience and American ingenuity. Cooperation of dairy farmers and milk distributors has produced the highest quality milk through maintenance of exacting standards relating to sanitation and health plus the upbuilding of a steady dependable supply."

Mr. Hansen also said that all signs pointed to further improvement in the farm cash return from milk during 1936.

Watering System Is Simple Matter

Possibilities of Irrigation Are Favored by Farmers in Drought Sections.

By L. A. Somers, Garden Extension Specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.—WNU Service

Ten years ago the idea of irrigating their gardens would have been scoffed at by Illinois farmers, but the unusually dry weather of this season has brought home the possibilities of irrigation in a convincing way. Not all farms, but a very large number of them might have irrigated gardens at small expense.

During drought seasons a simple, homemade watering system may mean the difference between a productive garden and a total loss. Likewise, having sufficient water at the proper time is particularly important to late-planted vegetables.

In a majority of cases the farmstead is built in a slight elevation with the garden laid out on a gentle slope a short distance from the source of water. Generally, too, there is a pump powered by a windmill or gasoline engine that is capable of supplying far more water than is needed for household and live stock consumption.

All that is necessary on these farms is a line of pipe running from the live stock or storage tank to the upper edge of the garden, and a piece of hose that can be moved from row to row as needed. If the storage tank is below the upper level of the garden, the pipe may be attached directly to the pump and the water forced up to the higher level of the garden.

By using either a cultivator or hand hoe, rough furrows can then be placed at the upper end of a furrow and the water allowed to make its way slowly to the lower end. As the furrow becomes soaked, the hose is moved from row to row across the garden. It will be necessary, of course, to keep the windmill or gasoline engine running to maintain the water supply, but in most cases the method is inexpensive and does not require constant attention.

Different farms will, naturally, require different adaptations of any type of watering system, for the problem is more or less an individual one. However, if farmers will look over their own situations, a great many will find it entirely possible and practical to irrigate the garden with but little expense and labor.

Valuable Bud Sports May Be Lost by Not Labeling

Fruit growers should always be on the watch for limbs of their trees that bear unusually desirable fruit or that bear at unusual times, say fruit specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. It is probable that many desirable variations in some of our fruit crops have been lost through the pruning knife merely because they were not marked for preservation. These bud sports or variants are of scientific interest and may prove of commercial value if preserved.

It is probable, scientists think, that the Washington navel orange was a variant on a Brazilian tree. The marsh seedless grapefruit variety may have originated as a sport. Some of the deciduous fruits have also produced variants of value. Recently members of the department on the Pacific coast inspected a variant of a standard plum which ripens a superior fruit about six weeks later than the main crop. In this case the owner of the orchard had realized that a fruit ripening after the main crop had been sold might have special market value, and had propagated from the limb variant so that the variety may be preserved.

Grain Fed to Weaning Calf

The amount of grain fed to a weaning calf will depend upon the condition of the individual. Each animal should be kept in medium flesh and a good growing condition. The amount fed before weaning should be increased to take the place of nutrients formerly supplied by milk. As a general rule three pounds of grain is fed before weaning and this can be increased to four or five pounds during the weaning period and immediately after the animal is weaned. Little or no grain is required, however, when the calves are on good pasture.

NEED ENTERTAIN-MENT IN SUMMER

MUST PROVIDE AMUSEMENT TO HOLD RESORTERS

Hotel Managers and Resort Owners Advised at Meeting Held Thursday at Traverse City

Dramatic, colorful, interesting entertainment, with an atmosphere of activity which will hold and amuse the patrons, is needed in the Michigan resorts, W. S. Woodfill, manager of the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, told the joint meeting of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association and the Michigan Hotel Association at Traverse City Thursday afternoon.

"People are restless today," Mr. Woodfill pointed out. "Life moves rapidly in the modern tempo of this present age. We must not stop nt merely providing comfortable, clean places where people may rest but we must develop dramatic, colorful, interesting entertainment with an atmosphere of activity which will hold and amuse our resort patrons after they are rested.

"We must not forget that after all the greatest rest and holiday benefits come from getting a complete change of environment, something different, something new and something beautiful such as the great array and variety of beauty treasures in Michigan affords."

Mr. Woodfill pointed out some of the activities that are taking an important part in the resort program. "We have seen golf develop from a dude's cow pasture pastime until it is one of the essential features of resort life," he said. "Today we find new games and revival of old games—badminton, archery, ping pong, croquet, quoits and many others which were not a part of general resort activities a few years ago."

"Michigan offers more today than any of the summer resort areas but we must not stand still. We cannot afford to stand still if tourist interest in our resorts is to be maintained and increased," he continued.

"At the desert resorts in the Southwest, breakfast rides, campfire suppers and exploring journeys through wild territories are appealing to the tourists. The beautiful resorts and primeval forests of Michigan offer every opportunity for comparable entertainment.

"At the Islands in the Caribbean, hiking, picnics, cycling and outdoor dining are much in vogue at the moment. Here and there throughout the country fishing fans are finding new deluxe service and accommodations, new types of boats and new ideas which have only recently been developed in the sport. Bathers have become accustomed to cabanas and comfortable beach equipment.

"Michigan offers all of these things but we must continue to improve and enlarge its play and sporting facilities."

Chnrlevoix was represented at the meeting by Harold Hallett, president of the Board of Commerce, and Kenneth Usher.

URGE OWNERS KEEP DOGS OUT OF WOODS IN SPRING

With pheasants, partridge and quail now nesting in Michigan, dog owners are reminded by the Game Division, Department of Conservation, that they should not let their dogs run loose in the woods.

Nesting gamebirds are easily disturbed by dogs running wild. Hunting dogs, as well as dogs of other varieties, have been known to kill young rabbits, nesting pheasants and young pheasants discovered in the fields.

CLOSE BASEBALL SCHED THURSDAY

MEET EAST JORDAN IN CONFERENCE FINAL

Victory Friday at Harbor Springs Entrenched Charlevoix in Second Place—Boyno Leads League

Charlevoix High school will complete its schedule in the western division of the "Little Eight" Class C baseball conference when they meet East Jordan here Thursday afternoon.

They go into the final game securely entrenched in second position in the league standing and, unless Boyne City is given an unexpected trimming in their final contest, will end the season thus. Boyne is undefeated this season, winning four straight games, including Charlevoix's lone defeat in four starts.

Charlevoix's last victory was scored over Harbor Springs last Friday by a 6 to 5 count. Although out-hit by the Harborites, the locals bunched their blows more timely and were aided by the excellent pitching of Kulpa in the last four innings.

Harbor scored a pair of runs in the first inning and added another in the second. They held this lead until Charlevoix tied the count in the fifth inning and then stepped out to score three runs and put the game on ice in the sixth. Harbor counted one in the sixth and another in the seventh frame.

The box score:

	R	H	E
Charlevoix ...0 0 0 1 2 3 0	6	6	1
Harbor 2 1 0 0 0 1 1	5	9	2

Kulpa and Cellner formed the local battery, the former allowing four bases on balls and striking out 14 batters, 10 in the last four innings. The Harbor battery was King, DeLaVergne and Hill.

Charlevoix's contest Thursday with East Jordan will start at 4:45 p. m. at the south side athletic field. The play-off between the winners of the western and eastern conference districts will be held at the conference track meet to be held at East Jordan.

BLESS BLOSSOMS AT TRAVERSE ON SUNDAY

Anaual Ceremony Will Be Conducted Near Old Mission

Due to the exceptionally warm weather that descended upon Traverse City and the surrounding region last week, hastening the development of the fruit blossoms, the committee in charge of arrangements for the annual ceremony, The Blessing of the Blossoms, has decided to advance the date of the ceremony one week.

The ceremony will therefore be held on Sunday, May 24, at 3 p. m., and the location chosen for the event is at Bowers Harbor, 11 miles north of Traverse City on the Old Mission Peninsula. The site is an excellent one, consisting of a large open field bounded on three sides by cherry orchards and providing ample space for the parking of the large number of cars which is expected.

CHANGES OFFERED TO CONSTITUTION

PETITIONS ARE OUT FOR SIX PROPOSALS

Would Exempt Staple Foods from Sales Tax; Another Would Legalize Horse Race Betting

With the deadline for submission of initiative petitions proposing amendments to the state constitution still a month and a half away, six proposals have thus far been approved as to form of petition in the office of the secretary of state.

No petitions have been filed as yet; the signatures of 125,893 voters, or one-tenth the total number voting for all candidates for governor in 1934, will be required in order that any initiatory proposal be placed before voters at the general election next November 3. The deadline for submission of signed petitions is set by the state constitution in Article 17, Section 2, providing that such petitions be submitted at least four months prior to the election.

In addition to any proposals which may be placed on the ballot by initiatory petition, two originating in the 1935 Legislature will be offered to the voters. Those would provide that: one, police might offer as evidence any weapon seized near a residence, without a search warrant; and two, home-rule and tax limitations for counties.

Most recently approved as to form of initiatory petitions is one which would eliminate the ad valorem tax on real and personal property; and provide for a tax on the income of property.

The other five would, in brief, provide:

1. For a single body legislature and civil service in state and county governments, and other changes.
2. Exemption from the state's retail sales tax of the sale of many staple foods.
3. That owners of other than residential property assessed at $50,000 or less, would be compelled to furnish a stipulated amount of employment.
4. For the legalizing of horse race betting in private clubs.
5. For a one-man state liquor control commission for the collection of state taxes, placing liquor sales in private hands.

Veterans who have sons and daughters of ages of 12 to 16 are urged to have them participate in the canvass. The young folks should meet at Mr. Supp's office as early as possible Saturday morning to receive poppies and instructions.

Members of the Legion and other veteran bodies, unattached ex-service men and women's organizations will assemble at the Legion quarters on Garfield avenue at 10 o'clock preliminary to the march to the church.

Those responsible for the program on Memorial Day have announced the details, which will conform closely to the ceremonies of previous years. The parade, as usual, will form on Park avenue at 9:30 a. m., preparatory to the march to the city memorial park and the cemetery. Order of parade will be as follows: Colors, Legion junior bugle and drum corps, band, veterans, auxiliary and Woman's Relief Corps, fraternal organizations, school children on trucks, cars. Floyd Black will be marshal of the day, mounted.

The ceremonial of casting a wreath on the water for the sailor dead will take place in the memorial park and will be conducted by ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps and Legion Auxiliary. Taps will be played and then the march will be resumed to the cemetery.

The program at the cemetery will include: "Star Spangled Banner" by school band; invocation by Rev. C. A. Stewart; exercises by W. R. C.; "Gettysburg Address" by Maurice Foster; selection by Legion male quartette; floral tribute; address, Floyd A. Supp; salute, taps; "America" by school band; benediction.

At the request of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce, business places will be closed between the hours of 10 and 12 a. m.

SOFT BALL LEAGUE FOR CHILDREN IS ORGANIZED

Supervised Play Each Afternoon With Exception of Fridays

According to Dean Davenport, county director, the WPA recreational program in Charlevoix now includes a soft ball league for boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 15 years, with Herb McRoberts as supervisor.

The city has been divided into four districts—the north, west, valley and south side—and up to the present time 64 boys and girls are enrolled. League games are played each afternoon following school except Friday.

Plans are also under way to organize teams for girls over 16 years of age.

The program of supervised instructions for the children has been met with enthusiastic approval by the public.

SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION PROPOSAL IS DEFEATED

Banks Township Voted Against the Merger by Margin 40 Votes

The special election held in Banks township Tuesday to vote upon the consolidated school question proved to be a "hot contest." According to the result of the returns, the proposition lost by 40 votes. Four hundred fourteen ballots were cast; 187 voting "yes" and 227 voting "no." It was the largest vote ever polled in a similar election held in that township.

This ends one of the hottest contests in the history of Banks township. For four months taxpayers and citizens vigorously debated the proposal, causing much local interest, and creating some ill feeling which we hope will be forgotten soon. — Central Lake Torch.

She had lain for some time in the road where she had gone to get the mail, and ants were all over her face. She could not rise or brush the ants away. Her husband, a short time before, had been knocked from a gravel loader and had leg and arms broken. After he had been at the hospital two weeks, it was found that his ribs had been broken, overlapped and grown together.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Soil Conservation Program News

Under the direction of G. C. Ferris, the work of checking the work sheets from the various townships is progressing nicely. This program will require considerable time and effort, and at the best, moves along slowly.

A recent ruling permits a farmer to summer fallow to control thistle, quack grass and bind weed or wild morning glory. This practice will make it possible for the farmer to qualify for half of the conversion acres. This will be good news to many, and is another step made to suit the program better for our needs. For example, if a man had 10 acres to convert, this means that he can summer fallow five acres and receive credit for conservation on the five acres. Remember, do not summer fallow more than the 50 per cent of your acreage to be converted, as then it is called soil depleting acreage, which does not help any.

Last Monday, May 12, the county committee met in an all day conference at Gaylord with committees from other sections. Lee Sneathen, Lavern McGahn, Elmer Hott and G. C. Ferris were in attendance.

4-H Forestry Club Organized

Last week Wednesday, O. F. Walker, district club agent and the local county agent met with the Boyne Falls boys and officially organized the group to carry on their forestry program.

Approximately 20 boys are interested in the project and will carry on considerable activity in the 160 acre woodlot recently purchased by the Boyne Falls Consolidated School. On Monday, the 18th, the first work will be started, when the boys, with the help of Mr. Aldrich, conservation officer from Boyne City, Mr. Findlay, of Wolverine, and the local extension leaders, will cut down the trees to be thinned out from a small area. Present plans call for the setting out of several thousand seedlings this fall, probably white pine and Norway pine.

This is the first forestry club to be organized in the county, and its progress will be carefully watched by many interested in the development of our woodlots in the county.

You'll finish your trip (but not your engine) with alloyed oil...Lots different!

Maybe you've streaked four or five hundred miles since sun-up. In safe places perhaps your speedometer hit "tops." And it was hot enough for you all day. But you're not one of those drivers who lie awake wondering what happened in the engine. It didn't happen if you started out with Germ Processed, the alloyed oil, and there are positive reasons why.

The big reason is that alloyed oil goes far beyond plain oil-film protection. It's true that the patented Conoco Germ Process of alloying oil—unlike other "latest methods"—actually steps up film strength tremendously. But alloying does something even greater. It enables oil and metal to UNITE.

All surfaces—even the most sensitive bearing surfaces in any engine become completely PLATED with this alloyed oil. It's IN all working surfaces, and then the extra-strong Germ Processed oil-film slides between!

Here's a combination only alloyed oil can give you. All you've got to do is to swing in at the sign of the Red Triangle. Continental Oil Company.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

The seventh in a series of articles on improving the home grounds by Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld.

GOOD TREES TO PLANT

The importance of trees in our landscaping arrangements can hardly be overestimated. Think of what our city streets would be like without trees, or even better, compare streets with trees to some without. Besides adding to the appearance of our surroundings their cooling shade helps make our hot days endurable.

Trees vary as to any other group of plants in their size, shape, colors, and texture. Shape and branching are particularly important in trees, for these two factors determine more than any other what effect the tree will give. To mention two extremes in the range of possibilities, contrast the Lombardy Poplar with an apple or hawthorn. The first is up-right and dramatic. It has been called an exclamation mark in foliage, and calls attention to itself by its unusual shape. Hawthorns and apples on the other hand are low and horizontal and are apt to blend in with the horizon line or horizontal lines which are set up around it. They both give an easy restful horizontal effect.

As was the case with shrubs, this part of the country is limited in the possibilities of trees which can be grown here. It is the purpose of this article to mention only a few of those trees which are not planted sufficiently here and whose use would add interest and variety to our towns and gardens.

Hackberry or Nettle Tree—Celtis occidentalis. The Hackberry is related to the Elm and the leaves of the two are very similar. As a city tree it is less bothered from pests than the elm and does well under trying city conditions. It is large, becoming at times 100 feet high, is rather open like the elm and does not cast a dense shade. Practically all Hackberries are affected with the disease called Witches' Broom, which causes clusters of little twigs to occur all over the tree. The disease does not harm the tree, however. The fruit is smaller than a pea and ranges from orange to dark purple in color. They are edible and taste remotely like dates, but the flesh over the pits is so scarce that it is hardly worth one's while to pick them.

White Ash—Fraxinus americana. The White Ash is a native tree and is entirely hardy under all conditions in this part of the country. It has a straight, tall trunk and attains the height of 100 feet. It grows rapidly and is free from most pests. The White Ash is particularly notable for its fall color which is very characteristic. The leaves turn yellow and purple. The purple or lavender is particularly unusual as no other tree or plant displays this color. It makes a splendid street tree.

Lomberdy Poplar—Populus nigra italica, and Bollea Poplar—Populus bolleana. Both these poplars are tall, narrow, and needle-like, and are invaluable to use in getting interesting combinations of tree shapes. The Lombardy Poplar, the commoner of the two, is not long lived, is subject to blight and at times produces innumerable suckers. The Bolles Poplar is a relatively recent introduction. It is not so narrow and pointed as the Lombardy, its leaves are a dark glossy green on top, and silvery and fuzzy on the under side. The bark is light whitish-gray. The Bolles Poplar is subject to borers. In spite of the drawbacks which both trees seem to possess they possess so many advantages and grow so rapidly that we should not refrain from planting them.

Chinese Elm — Ulmus parvifiora. The Chinese Elm comes from northern and central China, Korea, and Japan. It is a medium sized tree with a broad round head. The leaves are small, being only one or two inches long and similar in shape to other Elm leaves. It grows rapidly is very hardy and its range of usefulness is greater than any of the other elms. It has in many cases supplanted the American Elm which is not such a rapid grower.

Horse Chestnut — Aesculus hippocastanum. The Horse Chestnut comes originally from the Balkan Peninsula. It grows 70 feet tall, has large coarse seven pointed leaves, which give an almost tropical look on a healthy tree. It is used extensively in Europe as a street tree, Paris being particularly known for its Horse Chestnut avenues. It is one of our choicest trees in bloom, the flowers being produced in pointed clusters from six to 12 inches long. The flowers are white tinged with red. It is possible to get varieties with red flowers and there is also a double flowering kind. The latter does not produce any fruit which is somewhat of an advantage because the fruit producing varieties are apt to be dirty and messy at certain times of the year.

Following are several small trees which grow from 15 to 30 feet high. Their greatest use is in mixed shrubbery plantings to add interest and height; as trees in small garden areas; or as specimens in large lawns where their own small size emphasizes the bigness of the large trees.

American Mt.-ash — Sorbus americana. This tree is definitely oval in shape with leaves resembling an ash and smooth cherrylike bark. The blossoms come in flat white clusters and appear in early spring. Fruits appear in the fall and are a brilliant red-orange and very showy. They are about the size of a pea and come in flat clusters. As a tree it is short lived and subject to scale and borers, but still deserves a place in our plantings.

Hawthorns—Crataegus. This group of plants is large and very complicated. Many species of it are native and they vary in different parts of the country. It produces the haws with which we are all familiar and which we have all eaten in the fall. Hawthorns differ in the size they attain and in their shapes. They are generally 10 to 20 feet high, and the most interesting varieties are definitely horizontal in shape. The flowers are generally white and appear early in the spring.

Japanese Lilacs — Syringa japonica. This plant is closely related to our Common Garden Lilac, but has a much different range of usefulness. It grows from 20 to 30 feet high and has one or more well defined trunks. Its blossoms appear in June and July. The flower heads are yellowish in color, look like the Common Lilac but are much coarser, and 12 to 18 inches long. Although they are showy, they have a rather disagreeable odor. Japanese Lilacs are interesting in that they come into bloom when very little else is out.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Pego

Beef, butter and broilers are three foods worthy of attention this week. All other meats are relatively high compared to beef. Butter prices are really very attractive. The new broiler season is just beginning but prices are reasonable. Many varieties of fish are plentiful and cheap. Greens both for cooking and salad are cheap. Other cheap vegetables are green beans, peas, spinach, cabbage and onions. The first peaches and huckleberries of the season have been shipped but it will be several weeks before they are plentiful. Our fruit choice lies chiefly between strawberries, pineapple, oranges and bananas. Rhubarb should not be forgotten at this season.

Here are three menus planned for different budget levels.

There are two types of tuberculosis which take their toll among humanity — the childhood type and adult type. Formerly tuberculosis was considered a disease that attacked only adults. However, this conception has changed in recent years and it is now properly recognized as one of the diseases of childhood. The childhood type is largely glandular with minimum involvement of the lungs. This type should not cause alarm and should tend to heal if proper care, diet and rest are followed. The adult type of tuberculosis is due to reinfection. This may come from the person's own primary lesion or from exposure to another diseased person. It is restricted to the lungs, is a more serious condition and tends to become progressive.

More children and adolescents die from tuberculosis than from any one of the common diseases of childhood. This is because the disease in the primary form produces no characteristic symptoms by which it can be recognized or even suspected, and the changes in the lungs are so slight that a physician cannot detect the disease by the usual methods of physical examination. This is the reason that the childhood type of tuberculosis has been permitted to smolder away unsuspected until such symptoms of illness as weakness, cough, fever or loss of weight become evident. Thus, it is only through the aid of the tuberculin test and X-ray that we can discover the various stages of tuberculosis.

The District Health Department has been fortunate in securing the X-ray services of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, financed by the Christmas Seal Sale, and thereby discovering new sources of infection. During May, 1935, 520 X-rays were taken throughout Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. Among this number 18 active cases were discovered in the adult stage of tuberculosis. Of this adult group found, 11 were newly discovered cases. In the teen age group, there were seven active childhood type cases found, all being under 16 years of age. Particular attention should be focused in this group for it is during adolescence that tuberculosis thrives unless precautions are taken to arrest any further development. Also in this under 16 age group, 56 boys and girls were discovered to have a childhood type, unrestricted, which means that at sometime tubercle bacillus germs were present but the child possessed enough bodily resistance to overcome any further progress of the disease. However, this unrestricted class should not remain neglected but proper care, a well-rounded diet, fresh air and adequate rest should be exercised to enjoy a healthy, happy life free from that "wasting" disease as it was formerly called, now known as tuberculosis.

MAPLE SYRUP RETURNS SHOWED BIG INCREASE

Michigan Ranked Fifth Among the States for Production in 1936

Cash returns to Michigan maple syrup producers this season hit a three-year high, according to a report announced by Agricultural Commissioner James F. Thomson, at Lansing.

Records of the cooperative crop reporting service maintained jointly by the state and federal departments of agriculture indicated that the 1936 value of maple production is $193,000, compared with $187,000 for 1935 and $126,040 for 1934.

Michigan ranked fifth among the states in the production of maple syrup this year. The quality of the 1936 yield was also better than in recent years.

ANNUAL MEETING OF CHILD HEALTH LEAGUE WAS A FINE SUCCESS

The annual dinner-meeting of the Charlevoix County Child Health League was held at the Boyne City school, Wednesday evening, May 6. Following an excellent dinner, which was served by the ladies of the Presbyterian church, the Clyde and Soule children from Bellaire entertained the group with a variety of instrumental numbers.

Mrs. Russell Barden, chairman, spoke a few appropriate words in behalf of the physical condition of the children in Charlevoix county and the aims of the League. Dr. Carleton Dean made a few remarks regarding the District Health Unit and its appreciation of the work of the Charlevoix county women. Miss Deane Rinck, county nurse, gave a brief sketch of the League from its origin in 1931. Because the meeting was held midway between May Day or Children's Day and Mother's Day, she gave a few salient points regarding the ever increasing need of educating people to seek their doctor's advice early in pregnancy.

Miss Nancy Price, Margery Edwards and Robert Wexstaff gave two artistic tap dances following which the various unit chairmen and the new Antrim-Charlevoix county nurse, Mrs. E. M. Guggisberg, were introduced to the audience. Mrs. Guggisberg spoke a few words in behalf of her new work, and Mrs. E. E. Edwards, chairman of the Charlevoix unit, read the appropriate introduction to the Child's Bill of Rights as expressed by ex-President Hoover.

The guest speaker, Lloyd Starr, was introduced by Mrs. William Tindall. He pleased the audience beyond all expectations. His human understanding and vast experience with child behavior problems, his love for children and his keen sense of humor were very evident throughout his address. He very strikingly correlated the health conditions of delinquent boys with their various delinquent tendencies. He made it very plain that "No delinquent child is a healthy child." It would be a privilege for a delinquent boy to enter the Starr Commonwealth School for Boys.

The officers for 1935 were re-elected to serve in 1936 with Mrs. Russell Burden, of Boyne City, as chairman, and Mrs. Ralph Price, of Ironton, as secretary-treasurer.

TASTY RHUBARB NEEDS GOOD COOK

Michigan State College Expert Explains Right Method

To secure maximum flavor in preparing tasty rhubarb, use as little water as possible and do not overcook.

This is the advice of Sylvia L. Medsker, assistant professor in foods in the home economics department, Michigan State College, East Lansing, who has made a scientific study of foods and diets.

"The low carbohydrate content, high moisture content and rather high acid content are responsible for many of the characteristics of rhubarb as a food product and explain much of its behavior in cooking," she says. "Consistency and flavor suffer with overcooking and tart juicyness is affected when too much water is used."

Fifty day old rhubarb from the early crop is recommended for food and canning purposes, although plain tin cans should not be used in canning because of corrosive action of the acid on the metal.

Miss Medsker suggests that rhubarb meringue pie, rhubarb and strawberry juice for use with ice cream, and rhubarb juice for beverages and sauces are very timely.

Her favorite recipe for the pie includes two cups rhubarb, two eggs, six tablespoonfuls honey, one cup sugar, two tablespoonfuls flour, one-fourth teaspoonful salt.

Mix the sugar, flour, and salt, add rhubarb, and cook for 20 minutes. Add to the beaten egg yolks and cook until the yolk thickens, stirring constantly. Cool and place in a baked pie shell and cover with honey meringue made from beating a mixture of honey with white of egg. Then bake in a slow oven until meringue is set. This should take about 15 minutes.

BROWN WILL SEEK RETURN TO HOUSE

Boomed for Other Positions, Representative Prefers Present Role

Representative Prentiss M. Brown, Democrat of St. Ignace, discussed as possible candidate for various high positions in state and national Democratic politics, has decided definitely to seek to remain a member of the House.

His decision, he explained, was brought about by his appointment Wednesday as a member of the special House committee which will study ways of reducing the cost of government by eliminating duplicating and over-lapping functions.

Brown has been mentioned frequently as a possible choice for Democratic national committeeman for Michigan. Even before the death of Horatio J. Abbott, Brown was suggested as a possible compromise candidate.

Congressman Brown has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor and even for U. S. senator.

The representative has come into prominence and good standing with administration leaders, however, because he always has been an able and willing worker on behalf of administration legislation in the banking committee.

Congressman Brown has remained one of the strongest proponents of the Mackinac Bridge. — Northern Michigan Shopping Guide.

RAILROADS REDUCE RATES ON JUNE 1ST

Two-Cent Fare Takes Effect Then on Pere Marquette

A two-cent railroad fare will become effective on the Pere Marquette railway on June 2, according to B. Nickerson, agent.

The new passenger tariff provides for a straight two-cent per mile rate in coaches and straight three-cent rate in Pullmans. The surcharge on Pullmans will be eliminated on May 25.

This rate becomes effective on all railroads of the Central Passenger Association, which includes all roads in the eastern half of the northern states, from Minneapolis to the New England coast, and is designed to sharply increase passenger traffic through the lower rates.

MUSIC AND HAPPINESS

At the second annual May Festival of the Ingham county schools, held at Michigan State College on Friday, May 1, Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald pointed out the important part music plays in creating happiness in our individual lives. While the movement to provide a program of rural music through the extension department of the college is of comparatively recent origin it has already spread into 13 counties in the state, with prospects of rapid growth as soon as funds for additional workers become available.

From the Governor's address we learn that this music extension service now reaches 25,000 rural pupils during the year and embraces singing, rhythmic and folk dancing, and music appreciation. Pupils who are unable to sing and dance are urged to enter the music appreciation work, a course popular with those who sing and dance. This extension has grown to be a real part in community life. Choirs in churches have been organized as its direct outgrowth. Music speaks in an universal language. It is being carried into homes which have a special need for it, for many of them are far removed from the populous centers where commercial entertainment is more readily obtainable.

MODERN FARM LIFE

We are of the firm conviction that the greatest farm relief is going to come from within the farming industry itself. Political farm relief has been neither beneficial nor lasting, no matter by which political party it has been administered. Modern farm life now holds a lure unknown in pioneer days. Improved farm machinery has brought about this change for the better. Improved machines and improved methods facilitate farm work and stimulate boys' and girls' interest in farm activities. Doing with machines work that used to be done with the hands changed drudgery into ease, and gives more time for leisure and recreation. Until farm conditions become still better improved it will remain a question with many whether to make judicious repairs of old implements with which to handle this year's crops, or to purchase new. While the purchase of new machines may be deferred, farmers recognize the value of up-to-date implements and will become liberal buyers as quickly as economic conditions permit. With such a situation existing we will find a fewer number of the young people seeking city jobs in preference to life on the farm. That augurs well for the future of the farming industry.

LEGION ACTIVITIES
By F. V. Tyler

Preparations for Poppy Day, which is Saturday, May 23, are under way. These poppies that will be on sale are made by disabled veterans of the World War, who—in most instances—derive their only income from them.

Sunday, May 24, will be observed as Memorial Sunday. On this day, the Legion and Auxiliary members will assemble as in previous years and march to the M. E. church.

The program for Memorial Day, May 30, is being lined up by the proper committees and will be announced in detail at a later date.

Now comes the big date—June 6—the post's annual "soiree" at the Charlevoix Beach Hotel, through the kindness of Comrade Arthur von Dolcke. Any Legionnaire or Auxiliaire who misses this party—well, just hasn't ever attended one like it before.

Sunday, June 21, has been set as the date for the first district convention of the season in the Lower Eleventh. It will be held at The Argonne, with a parade, banquet, business meeting and dance as features of the program. The dance will be held in the evening and the public invited.

TROUT ANGLERS FROWN ON EARLY OPENING DATE

General Opinion Appears to Be Against New Departure

While maintaining a neutral stand on the opening date of trout-fishing season, Conservation authorities are surprised at the increasing disfavor with which the new and early opening date is being regarded by Michigan fishermen.

"So long as the best interests of the sportsmen and Conservation are served, we don't care particularly when the trout-fishing season opens in Michigan," said Fred A. Westerman, chief of fisheries operations, "but we think it noteworthy that the reaction of the great majority of fishermen from whom we have had correspondence is against the earlier opening."

PREPARE STATE PARKS FOR SUMMER SEASON

Expect Visitors to Exceed Eight Million Total Last Year

Anticipating a heavy tourist season, caretakers in the administered state parks of Michigan have gone on duty to get all tourist facilities in readiness for the official opening of Michigan's free state-park system.

Last year, in spite of an early closing of the parks due to insufficient funds for operation, and in spite of general unfavorable weather conditions early in the tourist season, approximately 8,000,000 persons visited the 53 open parks of the state. Parks authorities believe it probable that this figure will be equalled or exceeded this year.

CULL FOR MILK, SURVEY INDICATES

State College Extension Man Issues Findings on U. S. D. A. Project

Pedigree names in sires are not a guarantee of high dairy production records, according to A. C. Baltzer, extension dairy specialist at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

A survey of Michigan herds conducted last fall by the United States Department of Agriculture, the results of which previously have not been made public, reveals that high herd production records are gained and maintained by culling rather than breeding alone.

"We have long suspected that breeding blood is not copyrighted or patented in any particular family or strain of cattle," Mr. Baltzer says. "It exists freely everywhere and will be uncovered by employing the monthly herd testing program."

The importance of the survey lies in the fact that it goes contrary to the popular idea that the bull is the most important single factor in securing high milk production records.

"The bull is an accessory and not the most important factor in improving records," he says. "High producing daughters are very important. We have tested this idea with the college herd and have raised the herd's annual milk production individual average from 268 pounds in 1928 to 400 pounds mainly by placing emphasis on culling rather than breeding."

Mr. Baltzer stresses the importance of keeping yearly production records and culling out inferior producers. He also believes that farmers should swap bulls and keep records of their daughters.

LET CHILD LEARN TO ENJOY EATING

If Youngster Under Two Wants to Use His Fingers, Let Him

"If children under two years of age want to eat with their fingers, let them do it."

That is the advice of Mary Lewis, instructor in home management at Michigan State College, East Lansing, who believes that most parents apply the wrong psychology in bringing up their children.

"Learning to handle a spoon is a more complex process than when fingers are used," she says. "The child likes to do things as older children in the family do, so you need not fear his use of his hands in the early stages of feeding himself."

The sensations of satisfaction and expectancy can be harnessed to good advantage in developing good eating habits for children under two, she says. Satisfaction in pouring milk from a pitcher into his cup or placing additional helpings of food on his own plate aids eating habits when small portions are given at the start.

Avoid issues before, during and after the meal. But hand out praise for little things at the dinner table, to create a feeling of expectancy for mealtime which is most desirable, she says.

Miss Lewis believes that any normal two year old who has been properly trained should be able to feed himself any meal in 30 to 45 minutes. She says parents can judge when to begin teaching good habits by the first appearance of bad habits.

COUNTIES GET M'NITT ROAD PAYMENT EARLY

State Highway Commissioner Announces Fund Release

Payment in advance of the actual due date of half of the money due the counties under the McNitt township road act is announced by State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner. He said the advance payment of $2,000,000 is being made to accommodate a number of counties which are hard pressed financially.

Responsiblity for the maintenance of township roads passed fully to the counties last April 1, but the state contributes to the cost. Full payment of this financial aid need not be made before July 1.

Charlevoix county will receive $18,689.24 from the first payment.

KROGER GROCERY AND BAKING COMPANY STAGING CONTEST

A most unusual and interesting contest is being staged by the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company throughout the Middle West.

The contest offers among 2,520 prizes, three prizes of free food for a family of four for 10 years, five years and one year, respectively. The amount of food will be based upon statistics compiled by various departments of the United States government.

Entrants are required to submit in a simple little 50 word letter their reasons "Why Kroger Hot-Dated Coffee Is Fresher." Complete details and suggestions and assistance as to how to prepare this letter can be secured at any Kroger store.

The contest is unique in that it offers to the winners relief from the usual weekly expense and budget balancing of food for a long period of time. A convenient method of getting the food from Kroger stores as needed by the winners will be offered.

SEE BIG INCREASE SALES TAX RETURNS

Income of $45,000,000 for the Year Is Being Anticipated

Joseph S. Fenelev, director of the state board of tax administration, prophesied Thursday the state will collect $45,000,000 from the three-cent sales tax this fiscal year.

Fenelev based his prophecy on returns through April. He said April collections totaled $3,803,977 as compared to $3,603,110 during the same month last year.

April sales were below expectations, Fenelev said, because of inclement weather. He predicted the state will collect more than $1,000,000 a month from sales during May and June. Total collections for the present fiscal year to date are $35,964,007.

Telephone Report Reflects Better Business Conditions

A. T. & T. Head, at Annual Meeting, Comments on Telephone Gains and Praises Spirit of Employees in Flood Emergency

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, at the annual meeting of the stockholders held in New York, Wednesday, April 15, reported that telephone gains during the first quarter of this year had followed closely the general improvement in business. Mr. Gifford's statement follows:

As shown in the statement accompanying the quarterly dividend check which the stockholders received this morning, there was a net gain of 201,000 telephones for the first quarter of this year as compared with a net gain of 115,000 telephones in the corresponding period of 1935 and the number of toll and long distance calls was approximately 13 per cent greater than the corresponding period last year. During the first week in April, we gained 17,500 telephones as compared with 10,000 in the corresponding week last year, and long distance calls originating in larger cities showed an increase for the week of about 19 per cent as compared with the corresponding week last year. The business of the System continues to show a steady gain.

The investigation by the Federal Communications Commission for which Congress appropriated $750,000 has been actively under way for more than a year. A large force of investigators is still at work in the offices of the company and some of its affiliated companies. Public hearings started in Washington on March 17. There is some question in my mind as I stated at the last hearing whether it is possible for the public to get a correct picture of the facts by the procedure which has been followed in the hearings held thus far. We are making every effort to get something constructive out of the investigation.

Michigan Aided Flood States

The floods which broke all records in a number of the eastern states last month created unprecedented difficulties in the giving of telephone service over a larger area than the Bell System has experienced before.

In Pennsylvania alone there were a quarter of a million telephones in the areas affected by the floods. In spite of the fact that the floods receded slowly, most of the trouble was repaired within ten days and within two weeks service was practically normal. Bell System equipment and training are standardized so that men from any part of the System can go to work anywhere else without delay. To help in Pennsylvania, men and trucks came from Ohio, Illinois, New York, Michigan and New Jersey. Similarly with supplies. The Western Electric company has 29 supply points throughout the United States. From twelve of these which were in the flooded areas or near enough to be called on for shipments, equipment was rushed to the stricken points. There were hundreds of switchboards, 33,000 telephones, about a million pounds of line wire, 50,000,000 conductor feet of rubber insulated wire, 200,000,000 conductor feet of wire in lead covered cables, and large quantities of hardware and construction material. Despite the unprecedented demand, 95 per cent of the orders were filled on the day received—most of them within a few hours. The Pittsburgh warehouse functioned delivering material from second story windows of the warehouse by boat.

Employees' Spirit Highly Praised

In a letter to the president of The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company the governor of New Hampshire says:

"It is almost impossible for me to express to you the personal appreciation I feel and the appreciation I know the people of the State of New Hampshire feel for the services you gave us throughout your organization during the period of recent disaster.

"Every means at your disposal was made available that the state could better combat the disastrous sequence of events which came upon us so rapidly and with so little warning.

"Your company and its employees performed a great service at a time when it was most needed. This performance saved hundreds of lives and an untold amount of property both public and private.

"It would be difficult to extend appreciation individually to each of your employees who worked at their posts during the flood. Please convey to them my deep appreciation for the services they performed and the gratitude of the people of New Hampshire whom they served so well."

The services rendered in New Hampshire were typical of those rendered elsewhere in this flood period and typical of the telephone workers services in past emergencies.

The organization of the System provides the means and material for their effective work in crises but nothing but their own morale and the spirit of service accounts for the extraordinary personal courage and effort which they contribute. I want to take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation and I feel sure you will allow me to say the stockholders' appreciation of the heroic achievements in this emergency of those thousands of telephone workers, many of whom had the same personal problems of loss and distraction which afflicted the other inhabitants of the stricken districts.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK

"The white flags mark the sailing course . . . and those two little poles over there? They mean good fishing.

"Probably somebody fished and fished all over the lake with no luck at all until he hit that spot. Maybe he got several good strikes about there. Must have calculated in his mind just where the spot was and, next time he came out, brought those poles with him and drove them down, so he'd have something to tie his boat to."

Advertisements mean to an experienced shopper exactly what those two poles mean to an experienced fisherman —"good fishing." Advertisements are markers of the best buys—they save "fishing all over the lake."

PROTECT FARMER ON WILD GAME DAMAGES

Commission May Grant Trapping or Shooting Animals and Birds

Recognizing the fact that protected wild game sometimes over-runs private property with damaging results, the State Conservation Commission at its May meeting set up a plan whereby property owners can obtain some relief.

The director of conservation may issue a permit authorizing the shooting or trapping of birds and animals as a means of preventing or controlling their depredations.

This permit will be issued after due consideration and investigation of the request for relief. The regulations set up by the commission follow:

1. All reports of damage shall be referred to the Field Administration Division.

2. The conservation officer shall inspect and determine the legitimacy of the damage prior to the issuing of the permit.

3. All animals or birds taken under permit shall be turned over to the Department of Conservation for disposal.

The law does not provide for reimbursement for damages caused by protected wild game in Michigan, and the commission felt that some means of relief is warranted in view of the increasing number of complaints of damages.

It was believed to be the largest number of boats on the lake at one time in many years. Many others fished from docks around the lake and thousands of perch were taken.

Sunday morning we will hold our annual memorial services for the members of our church and friends who passed away since our service one year ago. This year we are also extending this service to any one who would like to, in this manner, remember their friends or loved ones. Any one who wishes to do so is requested to hand the names of those they wish to honor to the pastor not later than Friday that they may be printed in the bulletin. It is not necessary that the death of your friends occurred within the limits of the past twelve months.

Class of 1937 or Junior Class Will Be Our Guests May 24

It has been the custom of our church for several years to invite the Junior class of the local high school to be our guests at a regular church service. This service is usually the morning of the Sunday chosen for the baccalaureate sermon. Circumstances do not permit this, this year, therefore the Junior class will be our guests next Sunday morning, May 24.

BUSINESS TOUR PLAN STOP HERE

MAY MAKE CHARLEVOIX AN OVER-NIGHT VISIT

Board of Commerce Busy Preparing Entertainment Program While Awaiting Definite Word

While the matter has not been definitely settled, it is believed from recent interchange of correspondence with the Grand Rapida Association of Commerce that the Third West Michigan Out-Of-Doors Tour will make Charlevoix its overnight stopping place on Wednesday, June 24. The local Board of Commerce is now awaiting definite advices from A. T. McFayden, secretary of the Grand Rapids Association, that the tour will stop here on that date.

Tentativo plans are already under way for the entertainment of these visiting motorists. Lodging and breakfast will be furnished for the majority of the party, which, it is expected, will number between 75 and 100 persons, at the Hotel Hallett. Proper quarters will be found for all.

At 6 p. m., the local Board of Commerce will give a banquet in honor of the Tour members at Mont's Cafe. About 50 of the town's business and professional men will dine with them.

As the Tour arrives in Charlevoix at about noon on Wednesday, an opportunity is afforded for the enjoyment of golf, tennis and fishing. The entertainment committee of the Board of Commerce will have charge of affairs and will endeavor to give their visitors a good time. Of course, many of these men who will make the tour are members of the firms with whom Charlevoix merchants purchase their stock and a portion of the afternoon will be devoted by the former to visiting their customers here.

BOWLING ALLEYS ARE DRAWING FINE CROWD

Local Citizens Finding New Sport Is Fine Entertainment

Local citizens have found a new and popular entertainment with the opening of the Charlevoix Bowling Alleys in the Powers building.

Increasing numbers of young and old alike are patronizing the alleys which are proving popular with women as well as men patrons. While the game is comparatively new here, high scores have been made and an increased efficiency at the game is noticeable.

The management of the alleys is clean and sportsmanlike and this facility is proving a popular entertainment feature.

Patrons of the schools are cordially invited to inspect the projects.

MAKE PLANS TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS

DETROIT ATHLETIC CLUB MEMBERS HERE JUNE 12

Sight-Seeing and Fishing Trips, Golf, Tennis and Shuffle Board Are Among Features Planned

(By F. V. Tyler)

Plans for the reception of the Detroit Athletic Club cruise on the Chicago, Duluth & Georgian Bay Transit Company's de-luxe steamer, "South American," have finally taken definite shape.

The big, white lake liner, with her passenger list of wealthy aportsmen and their ladies, will arrive here at 1:30 p. m., on Friday, Juna 12. President Harold Hallett of the Charlevoix Board of Commerce and Captain Georgo W. Weaver will meet the boat at Mackinac Island and proceed with it to Charlevoix to familiarize the captain of the vessel and the cruise conductor with the plans that have been made for the entertainment of the guests.

The "South American" will be preceded into the harbor by the U. S. Coast Guard surf-boat, under command of Captain Straubel, who will guide the big vessel through the south channel into Lake Charlevoix, where the visitors will be afforded a view of one of America's loveliest lakes. On return into Round Lake, the steamer will tie up at the municipal dock and the passengers will be disembarked.

Automohiles, to the number of about 75, will meet the passengers at the dock and take them to the golf links, tennis courts, beaches, or wherever else they care to go during the period from 1:30 p. m. to 7 p. m., when the "South American" will pull out for the return trip to Detroit. First on the program, is a 30-mile drive nround the town and its environs to get them acquainted. The golfers, bridge-players and tennis and shuffle-board enthusiasts will then be taken to their respective places. Boats will be ready at the city dock for those who want to fish. At 5 p. m., the visitors will be collected and brought into town, where a special band concert haa been arranged for their pleasure. The band will also be on the pier to play when the boat comes into the harbor. Trophies will be given for the golf and bridge contests.

It is estimated that in the neighborhood of 320 people will arrive on the "South American." To sell Charlevoix as a vacation resort to even any inconsequent number of them will more than cover the necessary outlay for their entertainment. Furthermore, if the officials of the Chicago, Duluth & Georgian Bay Transit Company (and, suhsequently, those of other lines) can be convinced that it would be advantageous to their business to make Charlevoix a regular port of call for their excursions, all effort put forth in the entertainment of this cruise will be well justified.

Charlevoix used to have considerable water passenger traffic. Now that the automobile is no longer a plaything and has taken its correct place on an even footing with other forms of transportation, boat travel is once more becoming popular. There is no reason why Charlevoix, with its unexcelled harbor, should not get its share of this business.

IMPROVEMENTS GET COUNCIL APPROVAL

CITY PARKS, STREETS TO GET ATTENTION

Three-Man Force Approved for Bellaire Power Plant, Cutting the Shifts from 12 to 8 Hours

Numerous improvements in preparation for the summer season will result from action taken by the city council at a regular session Monday night.

The committee on parks and water front was delegated authority to improve the grounds backing the new municipal dock, paint the freight warehouse and benches and tables in the city park on Lake Michigan. The authorization also gave authority to put an additional workman and park maintenance work for the summer months.

Painting of the tower at the fire station was placed in the hands of the committee on police, fire and license with power to act.

At the request of Alderman Klbbe, chairman of the utilities committee, the council voted authority to place Dan Soule in charge of the hydro-electric plant at Bellaire under supervision of the superintendent of utilities. Another operator will be added to the Bellaire plant force, thus changing the 12-hour shift for two operators to an eight-hour shift for three men.

Through action of the council in granting permission to the State Bank of Boyne Falls to wreck the three-story structure on Bridge street known as the Ayres building, Charlevoix will lose one of its old landmarks. It is understood a Flint wrecking concern will be given the contract to tear down the structure, starting probably June 1. The council stipulated the work should be completed and the lot placed in satisfactory condition by June 25.

Upon petition of a majority of property owners, the council passed resolutions approving construction of combination curb and gutter on both sides of Prospect street from Division street to the south line of Crouter street.

L. S. See's request that electric service be extended to his new real estate development adjoining Boulder Park was referred to committee to obtain estimates of the cost of the improvement.

CHICAGO CLUB ANTICIPATING A GOOD SEASON

A full crew of workmen is now employed at the Chicago Cluh of Charlevoix, preparing the grounds and cottages for the summer season.

Otto Krueger, caretaker, who is supervising operations, states the Club is anticipating the best season in several years. All cottages will be occupied and many families who have not been there for several years are returning for the 1936 summer season.

ALL STORES CLOSE SATURDAY

Charlevoix stores will be closed all day on Memorial Day, Saturday, May 30, it was announced by the Board of Commerce today.

The stores will remain open until 10 o'clock on Friday evening to accommodate shoppers. Merchants urge that everyone shop as early as possible this week.

Memorial Day

OBSERVE MEMORIAL DAY HERE SATURDAY

Program as Previously Announced Will Be Carried Out

Charlevoix will observe Memorial Day on Saturday in accordance with plans as previously announced, no changes having been made in the events as outlined.

This year in addition to patriotic organizations, bands, school children and other groups, fraternal orders will join the parade. The Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias have signified their intention of marching to the cemetery for services.

Business places will close for the entire day and Charlevoix is expecting an unusually large influx of home-comers for the week-end holiday.

MAKE APPROPRIATION HARBOR IMPROVEMENT

The United States War Department has upproved an appropriation of $5,500 for harbor maintenance at Charlevoix during the 1936 season. The work, it is understood, will consist of surveys and dredging of channel entrances and outlets.

RADLE WINS MILE AT STATE EVENT

Compete in Conference Track Meet Saturday at Mancelona to Complete Athletics for Year

Charlevoix High school will conclude athletic activities for the 1935-36 term with participation Saturday in the annual Northern Michigan Class C track and field meet at Mancelona.

Charlevoix scored 11 points for eighth place in Class C at the state track meet held last Saturday in Grand Rapids. Edward Radle was the only Northern Michigan Class C athlete to score a first place, winning the mile event in the time of 4:46.4 against a strong wind. Radle placed second in the same event at the state meet last year.

Other Charlevoix entries to place were Leslie Shapton, fifth in the board jump; Richard Bergman, tied for third place in the high jump; Clement Olach, placing sixth in the half mile. Saxton, of East Jordan, placed second in the pole vault, and Bennett, a team-mate, was sixth in the 120-yard high hurdles. McRae, star Pellston athlete, won the Class D shot put with a heave of 42 feet 8 inches.

Paw Paw, scoring 29 points, was the state Class C winner.

Charlevoix's complete track team will take part in the competition at Mancelona and are expected to make a good account of themselves.

Charlevoix closed in schedule in the western district of the conference baseball league with a 16 to 1 victory over East Jordan last Thursday afternoon. The win gave Charlevoix second place in the district standing. Boyne City, completing their schedule without a defeat, won the right to meet the winner of the eastern district in a play-off for the conference title at Mancelona, Saturday.

RECREATIONAL GROUP ENJOYED FINE OUTING

Thirty-Nine Boys at Ironton Saturday for Supervised Program

A group of 39 boys under the supervision of Herb McRoberts, WPA recreational worker, enjoyed a fine outing last Saturday at Ironton.

Among the features of the day's program was a soft ball game with East Jordan which Charlevoix won 11 to 10 in 10 innings, a picnic dinner at the Ironton school, a hike to the Noel Thomson farm and to Nowland Lake where the group went in swimming and enjoyed music and songs. Two ball games at the Thomson farm concluded the day's activities. Noel Thomson and Everett Spidle, Ironton WPA recreational leaders, assisted.

The Charlevoix group plans to entertain Ironton boys on a return visit to this city in the near future.

Many Attended Meguzee

Twenty-two members of Charlevoix Chapter No. 72, O. E. S., attended the 33rd annual Meguzee Association convention at Mancelona last week. At the annual election, Mrs. Laura Courier, of this city, was re-elected secretary of the Association another year.

CORRESPONDENCE

CENTRAL LAKE

Harvey Brouwer appears to be feeling better. O. R. Morse took a ride around "the square" Friday.

Mrs. Eva Peterson, of Detroit, arrived Saturday and is visiting with her parents, the O. R. Morse people.

Lambert DeVries has returned to Zeeland, expecting to come back soon and go into the chicken business.

Baccalaureate services for the High school were held Sunday evening at the Methodist church, preaching by Rev. Mumby.

Mrs. Harry Mason is quite seriously ill again. Dr. Palmer, of Central Lake, is giving medical aid. Ann Arbor is being consulted in regard to the case by the local physician.

Tony Shooks' new delivery car was around this way last Saturday. It was made to order, and is a great deal like the inside of a store building, with groceries on the shelves and price labels along side the articles. Julius Essenberg is driver and clerk.

Mrs. Shyler, wife of the supervisor of Warner township, of Elmira, has been investigating the pension applications in this vicinity. The following, up to date, have received pensions: William Frame, William Muckle, Mr. Ballard and wife, Mr. Slocum, Mr. Ferguson, Fred Hodges and Joe Gray.

In Floyd Gibbons' true fenture stories in a recent local paper, an account was given of an explosion on board a navy ship where none were injured. Raymond Lamereaux, of this place, on seeing the story, exclaimed: "I was on bonrd that ship at the time as a soldier of the navy." He showed a neighbor a shell that was exploded at that time, and an electric light lamp that he had constructed inside the shell.

Bay View school closed two weeks ago. Rodger closes next week. Mapleville is still in session this week. Harvey Essenberg is the teacher. Creswell school closed last week, Wednesday. Central Lake and Mancelona close this week. Bellaire closed last week. Elk Rapids will also close this week. Supt. Young is leaving and will superintend at Remus next year. He has been a very successful superintendent and we are sorry to have him leave.

Twenty-eight people were out to Mr. Morse's school program and picnic dinner at the White school in Warner township last Thursday. The Misses Ethel, Arlene and Marvel Knowles, Dorothy Morse, and Mildred and Alice Meggison went over to the closing day exercises from this place. This school district has two schools in it, the White, and Rodger schools. Mr. Morse had not taught since 1930, and it was quite an experience to get back into the work again. He finished a term for Lillian Aiken, who had obtained a position in Detroit.

Following attendances were recorded last Sunday: Creswell Sunday school, 28; Turner, 21; Grand View, 31. Revs. Weaver and Batterbee gave short talks at Creswell and Rev. Batterbee at Turner also. As it was a temperance lesson Sunday, they took occasion to warn the Sunday school youth of: Bump, 500 feet. These bumps are: Intoxicating liquor, tobacco, card playing, dancing, Sabbath desecration, swearing, etc. Rev. Weaver spoke of the sad lot of the poor people of the present time. He told of a family visited where they were living in a tent. A sick child was lying in a bed made by covering some leaves over on the ground with a blanket. The tent was on a side hill, and when it rained water ran under the tent. Another family lived in a tent so small that the people had to come outdoors to talk. Such are the times. Thirty-two billion dollars have been spent, and there are more unemployed people than ever before in the United States. Yet the same party wants to come back in power for another four years. If they do, Barnum certainly was right.

Under the hood of your car a similar miracle happens. Pistons remain at the top of their strokes even more briefly than a pitched ball rests upon a swinging bat. In that split fraction of a second, Mobilgas must do its work. It must fire instantly . . . completely.

That's why Climatic Control is important. It adjusts Mobilgas to prevailing temperature and humidity. That's why Mobilgas produces maximum power, costs less to use. So . . .

ARMIES OF ANTS RAIDING PANTRIES

M. S. C. Bulletin Explains Methods of Keeping Pests Under Control

Only two things are certain and those things are death and taxes, one philosopher once said. But many Michigan households have come to expect spring and summer to also make certain the raiding forages of ants in the cupboards and food containers.

Even if the pests do not enter the home, they may cause damage or unsightly conditions in lawns, in fields or gardens or on trees. Professor E. I. McDaniel of the department of entomology at Michigan State College, has prepared Extension Bulletin No. 166, "Ant Control in Houses and on Lawns." The bulletin will be available in a few days through the Bulletin Department, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

In brief form the simple practices which will control ants include two types of poisons for use against the armies that attempt to march into the home. For ants that are after sweets, Miss McDaniel suggests using dry poison sugar, liquid poison or powders such as fluorine compounds, pyrethrum or borax. The household "grease feeders" can be handed an enticing control of dry poison worked into grease, or commercial bait.

OVER 90,000 HUNTERS FOR DEER LAST YEAR

Number Licenses Sold Last Fall Set a New High Record

For the first time in the history of deer hunting in Michigan, sales of licenses have passed the 90,000 figure.

Returns from license agents compiled by the Department of Conservation May 1 showed payments on a total of 94,056 deer hunting licenses for 1935. Of this number 93,435 were resident hunting licenses and 621 non-resident hunting licenses.

The total figure will be enlarged a little, it is believed, when all of the outstanding reports of license agents are received.

During the fall of 1934 Michigan sold approximately 80,000 deer hunting licenses, the sales last year representing an increase of approximately 15,000.

1936 TRAFFIC DEATHS SHOW 10% DECREASE

Traffic deaths in Michigan for the first four months of 1936 are 10 per cent lower than for the corresponding period of 1935, according to statistics released today by the Michigan Department of Health.

Home-School Cooperation In the Rural District

The pride which children take in their district school and, in large part, the educational benefits they derive therefrom is dependent upon the attitude which their parents take in maintaining that school. When parents work together to give their children just as many of the advantages enjoyed by city school children as they possibly can, the result is going to be a better school: one that has a more lasting influence on the future lives of their children. Through home-school cooperation many of the improvements which may have seemed unattainable before will come as a matter of course.

Opposition to giving rural school children the advantage of sanitary surroundings and a well operated school plant is the idea that "what was good enough for us is good enough for our children." When parents take that attitude, they put the brake on progress and retard the mental growth of their children.

Obviously the running of a school is just a perfunctory performance unless parents take interest in their children's progress and are willing to make sacrifices to see that they get the best possible.

Home-school cooperation may be made effective in a number of ways. The channels and methods whereby teachers and parents may oftentimes get together are:

(1) Personal contacts of the teacher with the home and its members. Whenever the teacher can find time to visit parents in the home and confer with them about their children's needs and of school needs, it is an excellent link between the home and school. Visits of parents to the school, particularly when there are immunizations for diphtheria, vaccinations for smallpox, health examination or health inspections of children serves the same end. Whenever a speaker is to appear at the school to talk on a phase of school work or school hygiene it is another excellent opportunity for adult education serving to keep them informed of modern practices. Advantage should also be taken of casual encounters at group meetings as well as by prearranged conferences at home and at school.

(2) Reaching the home through the child may be accomplished by means of problem solving activities in connection with school work, particularly in hygiene. If the children have been made to realize the benefits to be derived from this problem-solving activity (as for instance the decrease in number of eye defects in children in school where they are properly lighted), it is only natural that some of them will discuss the matter at home with their parents, and in this manner will help to bring about the needed improvements.

(3) Securing home-school cooperation through activities. Where there is a P. T. A., or a Woman's Club, or a Study Club there should be an excellent opportunity for the school to reach the home.

(4) In case there is no organized association, frequent or occasional gatherings at the school with parents, teacher and children present, serves to keep the parents school conscious. The less frequent the meetings the less the benefits as a general rule.

When parents and schools get together cooperatively, the children benefit in many ways.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE SIGHTS IN Michigan?

TO MANY PEOPLE, the ideal vacation is one devoted to sightseeing. In order to enjoy themselves fully, such vacationists require three things: Sights worth seeing; something to travel in; and good roads to get there.

Very few parts of the Union offer as much in these respects as the State of Michigan. Here are many spots well worth visiting — historic buildings and grounds, interesting cities, and open country of unsurpassed scenic beauty. The journey itself becomes a separate pleasure, a real addition to the joys of vacation. Splendid highways, fine lake liners, trains, buses, planes—all these means of transportation, comfortable and economical, stand at the service of those who are planning to see the sights.

Have you considered Michigan for your own sightseeing? Have you told your out-of-State friends of the exceptional advantages here? If so, you have done them a favor — and promoted good will for the Wolverine State.

As our part in such promotion, this series of advertisements is being published throughout the State of Michigan by an organization that can prosper only as the other citizens of Michigan prosper.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

The eighth of a series of articles on improving the home grounds by Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld.

* * *

Perennials are those plants which will live and bloom for a number of years although they die back to the ground each year. As the name suggests, they last "through the years," and under good conditions they will increase in size from season to season. From the viewpoint of color, perennials are the most important feature in the garden since they provide us with large masses of brilliant color more or less continuously throughout the season.

Although perennials were used in all of the earliest Colonial gardens, and have been used similarly in gardens throughout the country, most of them are of European origin. We have tended to overlook our own resources in plant materials just as we have overlooked our architectural heritnge, and have not considered our own field flowers worthy of a place in the garden. However, at the present time many people are beginaing to realize that the flowers which grow in the fields have an undeniable beauty. Unless one is influenced by n bad attack of hayfever, it is haid to pass a field of Golden Rod without noticing the genuine magnificence of large masses of this "weed." If the Goldenrod is growing near some of our native purple asters, the effect is even finer. Earlier in the season one may notice striking fields of yellow Buttercups, Blueflax, mngenta Joe-Pye-Weed, or Cardinal Flower. And due to some curious combination of circumstances, unpleasant color combinations are much less frequent in natural groupings than in man-made gardens.

The following perennials are among the most satisfactory for general use although the list could be extended almost indefinitely.

Leopard Bane—(Doronicum.) It is always somewhat of a shock to see a tall honest-to-goodness daisylike plaat producing yellow flowers in May for this is the season when we are expecting only bulbs to be in bloom. The Doronicum has the advantnge of being perfectly hardy, and should be used more extensively to provide contrast in spring plantings.

Pyrethrum. Only a little later than the Doronicum, the Pyrethrums begia to produce white, plak and red dnisy like flowers oa tall, slender stems. The foliage is fern like, and forms a rather dense clump at the base of the plant. The flowers are single, semi-double, and double, aad are splendld for cutting.

Oriental Poppies. If more gardens hnd larger clumps of Oriental Poppies, they would be much gayer places in June for there is no plant which grows in this climate that gives a more spectacular show. The origiaal color of flaming orange-red hns heen modified in the newer hybrids so that now one may obtain colors raagiag from white through ralmon-pink to blood-red. However, none of these newer forms equals the brilliancy of the original type which was used in some of the earlier Roman gardens.

The Oriental Poppy is really particular only about the date of its transplaating. True to the poppy tradition, it resents being moved, but is quite pleasant about it during the months of August and early September. The foliage which appears early ia the spring and grows luxuriantly for a month or two has disappeared by this time, and the plaat is in a dormant condition making the transplanting work reasonably safe. It may be grown from seed quite easily, and after it has become established it will frequently seed itself.

The standard combination of flaming poppies with blue or purple iris is one which is hard to forget. On the other hand, these same flaming poppies are genuinely unpleasant when combined with the earlier red peonies or with the rose-colored pyrethrums.

Delphinium. Those tall spiky blue flowers which you may have admired while driving past some gardens were probably delphiniums. They are unquestionably the most effective blue flower which we have in our garden, and their bold habit of growth makes them suitable for use in either formal or informal developments. The new hybrids produce single and double blooms in all of the well-known blue shades and also in white and purple. If they are cut to the ground after blooming, they will produce a smaller crop of flowers in the early autumn.

The Belladonna Delphinium is a lower plant having flowers of a true "Heavenly Blue," and has the advantage of a much longer season of bloom. Although they are not as striking as the hybrid forms, their season of bloom aad freedom from disease makes them well worth a place in every garden. The Chinese Delphiniums are similar to the Belladonna, but are smaller, and have flowers of an intensely deep blue.

Hollyhocks. The fact that Hollyhocks frequently grow along alleys, and thrive as well as any weed does not detract one whit from the striking effect which they produce in midsummer. They have a magnificent range of colors from pure white through pink and yellow to deep red, and may even be had in double and fringed forms. We often think of them in connection with cottages and dooryard gardens, but their striking shape makes them quite worthy as accents in formal yards. The vigorous contrast of the interesting, strong foliage is decidedly in their favor.

Perennial Baby's Breath. When you go into a garden, it would be unusual indeed, if you should notice this plant at first. It is not one which nttracts much attention to itself and for that reason it is valuable as a background for more showy blooms. All artists of today from painters to automobile designers are interested in textures, and Baby's Breath gives a striking coatrast siace it appears to be almost a hnze. The new double form is more showy than the single.

Shasta Daisy. Lf you are accustomed to think of the Shasta Daisy as a rather large variety of the field daisy, you will have a real treat when you see the new hybrids. They are taking on many new forms such as double flowers, twisted petals, and drooping petals. This plant which was developed from a daisy growing in the Pyrences has long remained n favorite white flower for midsummer bloom.

Monkshood. Those flowers which look like Delphininm but which bloom later in the season are probably Monkshood, so named from the curious hood shaped flower. The plant is orderly in growth, and has leaves which are fiaely cut aad shiny. Several varieties of this plant are available from nurserymen in white and very deep blue as well as the typical medium blue.

Sneezeweed. (Helenium.) With such a name it is not hard to understand why this very attractive fall-blooming plant is not better known. One glimpse of the vigorous display of brilliant yellow or brick-red flowers should make everyone want at least a few of these plants because they bloom in September and October when most of the garden flowers have retired.

Asters. A garden season which begins with a combination of Oriental Poppies and Iris could do no better than to close with a combiaation of yellow or orange Sneezeweed and purple Asters. Our native Asters are one of the few perennials which have received any attention from horticulturists, but they have now been improved so that they are worthy of space in the finest garden. They produce an unrivalled mass of white, pink or purple flowers late in the season when gardens are at their dreariest and provide a striking contrast with the autumn foliage.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

"TOUGH GUY" ISO-VIS "D"

HAS YET TO MEET ANOTHER MOTOR OIL THAT CAN OUTLAST HIM!

Standard's premium-quality motor oil keeps your oil level UP and your oil costs DOWN

Endurance—that's the thing you notice first and foremost about this motor oil. No weakening under the punishment of long, steady summer-time driving. No willing away in the face of searing engine heat.

And the reason is, Standard makes ISO-VIS "D" by a special process that removes those sludge-forming, carbon-forming impurities which cut down the resistance-to-wear of a motor oil.

Every drop of Iso-Vis "D" is clean ... smooth ... all oil ... long-lasting ... plenty "tough"! In the long run it's an engine-saver and a money-saver.

ISO-VIS "D" IS THE LARGEST SELLING PREMIUM-QUALITY MOTOR OIL IN MIDDLE WEST

Only 25¢ a quart

Plus Michigan General Sales Tax 1¢ a qt. plus Federal Tax 1¢ a qt.— total 27¢ a quart.

It's on sale wherever you see that familiar red-white-and-blue sign of Standard Service. A special chart at each station shows exactly what grade you should use in your car for the most economical safe driving.

It will pay you to let the Standard Dealer drain your old oil, flush out the crankcase, and start you out with a fresh filling of ISO-VIS "D". Then, so far as the oil itself is concerned, you wouldn't need to drain for an indefinite length of time. Iso-Vis "D" won't wear out.

But it isn't wear that hurts good motor oil—it's dirt! Road dust and other gritty foreign material gradually sifts into the best-protected engine. So, for safety, drain and change your motor oil every 1,000 miles.

PETOSKEY WINNERS IN SUNDAY CONTEST

Fochtman Squad Wins from All-Stars by 7 to 2 Score

Fochtman's Men's Store won a 7 to 2 victory over the Charlevoix All Stars at the Petoskey fairgrounds, Sunday, with Dick Wykes starting on the mound and at bat.

Charlevoix started off fast, scoring two runs on two hits and an error in the first inning. The Petoskey team tied the score in the third with four hits and then went on to win easily with four runs, including Wykes' homer in the fourth and an additional run in the sixth.

Wykes had little trouble with the powerful Charlevoix batsmen. John Knight, well-known summer resident at Charlevoix, played first base for the All Stars and was fanned three times by the Petoskey hurler.

A return game will be played at Charlevoix next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.—Petoskey Evening News.

FINDS CROP YIELD SAME AS IN 1870

Soil Depletion Balances All Michigan Efforts to Find Better Seeds, Etc.

Yields of standard farm crops like wheat, corn, rye, potatoes, tame hay, and barley in Michigan today remain where they were in 1870. Despite scientific study of seeds, soils, production methods, and utilization of machinery and despite great advances in extension and publication services for the farmers, per acre production has stood still.

Dr. C. E. Millar, head of the soils department at Michigan State College, East Lansing, has compiled statistics gathered by the federal census showing average yields in ten year periods for the last 60 years.

"It seems incomprehensible that the yields have not increased," he says. "When we look back over what has been done in the way of extension service, experimental stations, the county agent system, boys and girls clubs, radio and publication services, in addition to scientific studies, there seems to be no reason for it."

Dr. Millar believes that soil depletion is the only possible answer to the riddle. Soil depletion has continued at a sufficiently rapid rate to counterbalance all the efforts of science and farm agencies to increase production, he says.

SOLOIER, SAILOR DEAD GLORIFIED

FINE MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM SATURDAY

Impressive Ceremonies Conducted at Memorial Park and Brookside Cemetery

Roll call of the soldier and sailor dead was held at Memorial Park and Brookside cemetery Saturday morning as veterans of past wars participated in a solemn observance of Memorial Day.

While missing from the ranks were veterans of the Civil War, members of Leslie T. Shapton Post, American Legion, veterans of the Spanish-American War, members of the W. R. C., the junior Legion drum and bugle corps, members of fraternal organizations, the school band and school children were among those forming the march to the services. It was a colorful parade, the largest this city has had in recent years.

The ceremonial of casting a wreath on the water for the sailor dead was conducted by ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps and Legion Auxiliary at Memorial Park. Taps were sounded as the march was resumed to Brookside cemetery.

Numbers on the impressive program included invocation by Rev. C. A. Stewart; exercises by the Woman's Relief Corps; delivery of the "Gettysburg Address" by Maurice Foster; selection by the Legion male quartette; salute and taps by the American Legion.

Attorney Floyd A. Supp delivered a fine Memorial address which is quoted as follows:

"My friends, this morning we are gathered here, before our God, and under the Stars and Stripes, to pay active and public honor, homage, and tribute to those defenders of the Republic who have passed on to the Great Encampment.

"Under the snows of the Arctic; the poppy covered fields of France; the honey-suckle of the southland; the palms of the tropics; and in cemeteries throughout the breadth and length of the land, lie the last mortal remains of those who gave their all, in order that Freedom might live.

"While we are here, I think, it would be well for us to also honor the mothers, whether living or not, of those brave soldiers, who offered and gave life itself, that the Nation might continue its forward march.

In that great document, The Declaration of Independence, unanimously passed by the Congress of the Thirteen United States on July 4, 1776, it is said:

> "'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.'

"After enumerating the wrongs perpetrated upon the colonies by the King of England, the Declaration closed with these words:

> "'And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.'

"This Declaration was followed by the Constitution of the United States of America, which became effective on the first Wednesday of March, 1789. This Constitution declared the rights of a free people and their government; and had its roots deep in the Magna Charta forced from the tyrant King John of England on June 15, 1215, on the field at Runingmede.

"Under the provisions of these documents a great Nation grew and prospered; the frontiers were pushed back, settlers followed the scouts and soldiers. Homes, villages and cities sprung up. Naturally there was jealousy of the prosperity of the new land; hatred of its liberty; and attempts were made to destroy the principle of a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

"At each and every attack upon the principles, they had grown to love and cherish, men from farm, hamlet and city sprung to arms, to defend the heritage of their fathers, and pass it on to us unsullied.

"Surely, those carriers of the banners of freedom into the jaws of death, and even to death itself, must have had a creed, a deep seated faith, that buoyed them up in many a dark hour. Their hearts beat true to the words of the writer of 'An American's Creed,' and he expressed it in these words:

> "'I believe in the United States of America, as a Government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and

MUNICIPAL GOLF COURSE IS OPEN

STARTED 1936 SEASON MONDAY, JUNE 1ST

William (Bill) Supernaw Employed as Club Professional in Charge of Office—Grounds in Fine Shape

The Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course, recently taken over by the city from the Charlevoix Golf Club, opened Monday, June 1, for the 1936 summer season.

William (Bill) Supernaw, formerly an employe at the Club, has been retained by the committee in charge of the course to take over the duties of club professional in charge of the office. Later this month he will be assisted in the office by Miss Virginia Taylor.

The greens and fairways, upon which considerable work has been done this spring, are in wonderful condition. Frequent rains have greatly aided in the efforts to place the course in condition for the summer. Jeff Novotny continues his former position as groundskeeper.

Inasmuch as the operation of the golf club is more or less an experiment as far as the city and its operating committee is concerned, an urgent request for public cooperation is being asked. Rates have been considerably reduced as an inducement to bring more players and it is the desire of those responsible that the course be self-sustaining in order to insure its continued operation and forestall the possibility of being closed.

It is understood that in event the city deems it advisable to continue the operation of the course, the Charlevoix Golf Association will deed the 18-hole lay-out to the city without charge, making only certain stipulations as to future use of the property.

The proposition appears to be a community matter well worth the united support of Charlevoix citizens.

REDUCE TELEPHONE RATES ON JULY 1ST

Reductions in Calls to Most Foreign Countries Is Announced

Effective July 1, rates for telephone calls to most foreign countries will be reduced substantially, according to C. L. Johnson, local manager for the Michigan Bell Telephone Company. Notice of the reduction has been filed with the Federal Communications Commission at Washington.

The reductions will apply to both day and night rates and a new reduced Sunday rate will be established. The reductions will be effective on calls made to 45 of the 67 countries that can be reached by overseas radio telephone from any Michigan point, with proportionate reductions from all points in the Bell System. Reductions also will be made in rates to points in Cuba, which are reached by means of deep sea cable from Key West.

THE ARGONNE DANCE BAND PROVES POPULAR

Played to Capacity Crowd at Opening Saturday Evening

The Singing Aces, the four-piece dance orchestra which opened a season's engagement Saturday night at The Argonne, scored a decided hit with patrons of this popular entertainment place.

The band, composed of Howard Davenport, pianist, Wayne Belding and Bob Edwards, saxophonists, and Cecil Brown, drummer, played before a capacity crowd, the largest, in fact, of the present season. All Northern Michigan was represented in the throng of holiday patrons and the music, vocal skits and novelty numbers of the orchestra drew much favorable comment. Davenport and Belding are local young men.

The present schedule at The Argonne provides appearance of the Singing Aces each night except Monday.

COMMERCE BOARD PROGRAM STARTED

MANY ACTIVITIES PLANNED FOR SUMMER SEASON

Gordon Todd Appointed by Board of Directors as Director of Activities for Season

(By F. V. Tyler)

The Charlevoix Board of Commerce is well into the stride of its summer's work.

According to a recent decision of the Board of Directors, this board will meet once a week during the summer months on Wednesday evenings at the hour of 7:30 o'clock. The council room in the library building, as a place secure against unwarranted interruptions, has been selected as a meeting point.

Three extra typists are busy getting out several thousand of the new Charlevoix folders to lists of selected names in Detroit and St. Louis, Mo.

Gordon ("Doc") Todd has been appointed outside contact man and activities director by the board of directors. He will have his office in the information bureau with the secretary and will be responsible for promoting recreational and amusement fentures during the summer months. He will help the committees and the secretary and will be charged with the responsibility of seeing that things run smoothly and that the various parts of the organization coordinate and cooperate. His position is an important one and he will be a very busy man. He brings to his work a high degree of energy, efficiency and experience in varied directions.

The secretary will handle the information bureau and take care of the regular inquiries and the rapidly-growing correspondence of the various committees. He will conduct the sale of automobile license plates, as usual. He will also keep the records of the organization and take the minutes of the directors' and general meetings. He will team up with the activities director and the committees in all of their work.

A very busy season is expected by the Board of Commerce and with the present efficient set-up and the very gratifying enthusiasm and vigor with which it is meeting its problems, we should have a shining record of accomplishment to write down at the end of the year.

TO AID PAYMENT SOLDIERS' BONUS

POSTMASTER FOSTER EXPLAINS DETAILS ON BONUS

Delivery to Be Made Here June 15th; Those Desiring Cash Must Send Bonds to Detroit

Postmaster J. M. Foster is making every effort to expedite the delivery and, where requested, the payment of veterans' bonus bonds when they start reaching the local office soon after June 15.

The bonds will be mailed from Washington or Federal Reserve banks at 12:01 a. m. June 15 by registered mail, but there is considerable formality about the person to whom they are addressed identifying himself before actual delivery can be made.

The letters bearing the bonds will be taken out to be delivered by the carriers but will be delivered to the addressee only if he is known to the carrier. If the carrier cannot make delivery he will leave a note telling when he will be at the post office for the purpose of making delivery. In all cases the addressee must be known to the carrier or other postal employes assigned to the work of delivering the bonds or identified by two persons knowing both the addressee and carrier.

Veterans desiring cash will be required to have their bonds certified by a post office inspector, a classified employe assigned to duty for that purpose by the postmaster, or by any bank. The veteran will be given an interim receipt on surrendering the bonds. The Charlevoix post office will then send the certified bonds to Detroit for payment which will be made by check. Bonds certified by other than post office employes will be sent to Detroit by the certifying agent.

The interim receipt will show the number of each bond surrendered for payment. This is going to make the work of certifying very slow as the bonds come in denominations of $50. The post office will be open evenings to handle as many veterans as possible. It would expedite matters, Postmaster Foster stated, if veterans would get blank receipt forms and list the number of their bonds. All bonus amounts which cannot be covered by the $50 bond denominations will be paid by check.

BACCALAUREATE DREW BIG CROWD

GYMNASIUM FILLED TO CAPACITY SUNDAY

Rev. W. H. Rauch Delivered Fine Sermon — Commencement Program to Be Held Tonight

Baccalaureate services, the first event of graduation week exercises for 50 members of the Charlevoix High school senior class, were held Sunday afternoon at the gymnasium. A capacity crowd attended.

The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Rev. W. H. Rauch of the Baptist church, who used as his topic, "An Eternal Structure," dwelling on the principal points: "The Church An Eternal Structure"; "Our Building, Eternal in the Heavens"; "The Foundation of the Structure," and "Choosing the Best Material for the Structure."

Delivered in a masterful manner, the sermon urged the graduates to build their house on a strong foundation. When in a trying experience they were advised there were three paths to follow: Not to depend upon someone else to remove their burdens, for in so doing they hurt themselves; not to run away, for sooner or later they must meet the enemy and conquer; the third, the Christian way. Face it and conquer. Master whatever circumstance life presents. That is nature's way. It is God's way. It is the right way. Illustrative Bible quotations were used effectively to bring out points of the sermon.

The musical numbers on the program were especially fine. A duet by Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Stucky, evangelists, was appreciated. Rev. G. R. Parker gave the invocation, Rev. C. A. Stewart the Scripture reading, and Rev. W. W. Hurd the benediction.

Commencement exercises, with Judge E. L. Millington, well known Cadillac jurist, delivering the address, will be held at the gymnasium tonight. The salutatory will be given by Miss Adeline Bellinger and the valedictory by Clare Beattie. The class will be presented by Harry E. Bingham, high school principal, and diplomas awarded by Harker Kirby, president of the Board of Education.

Class activities will close Thursday evening with a banquet and dancing party at the school.

CHARLEVOIX WINNER FINAL BASEBALL GAME

Defeated Petoskey High School by 2 to 0 Score There Friday

Closing the baseball season Friday, Charlevoix High school defeated Petoskey by a 2 to 0 score. A return game to have been played here Monday was rained out.

The contest was a pitcher's duel between Gallagher for the locals and Gibson, of Petoskey. Gallagher allowed five hits and struck out nine batters, while Gibson, allowing the same number of hits struck out 14. Gallagher was given better support, however, his teammates scoring in the fourth and last innings.

BUSINESS TOUR ASSURES VISIT

WILL MAKE OVER NIGHT STOP HERE JUNE 24

Belvedere Hotel to Be Headquarters for Commercial Men—Banquet and Entertainment Planned

Advices from the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce definitely confirm the intention of that organization to make Charlevoix an overnight stop for the members of the Third West Michigan Out-of-Doors Tour.

The tour, according to its schedule, will arrive in Charlevoix with its cavalcade of automobiles and buses, at about 5:30 p. m., on Wednesday, June 24. Contrary to previously stated arrangements, the Belvedere Hotel will be headquarters for the tour while in this city, owing to the large number of persons who are planning to take part in it.

At 6:30 p. m. on the day of arrival, a banquet will be held at Mont's Cafe for the visitors, at which many of the city's businessmen are planning to join them. If the tourists have time to stay here through the morning, Thursday, many of them may enjoy golf, tennis or fishing.

Closer at hand, however, is the projected visit of the Chicago, Duluth & Georgian Bay Transit Company's steamer, "South American" to Charlevoix, with its passenger list of wealthy Detroiters, members of the Detroit Athletic Club. President Mayo of the steamship line was here last week, looking over the situation, and on Monday of this week, Emery B. Hatch, secretary of the line, accompanied by Captain Anderson of the "South American," visited Charlevoix and conferred with Gordon Todd, activities director, Captain George W. Weaver, Captain Straubel of the U. S. Coast Guard, and Joseph Howard, manager of the municipal dock. They seemed very much pleased with the arrangements made for the entertainment of their cruise members and, on leaving, invited President Hallett of the Board of Commerce and Captain Weaver to join the cruise at Detroit and proceed with it to Charlevoix. The invitation has been accepted.

The "South American" will arrive here at about 1:30 p. m. on Friday, June 12, leaving that evening at 7 p. m. During the approximate five hour stay of her passengers on shore, entertainment for them will be provided by the Board of Commerce, as previously described.

CHARLEVOIX-DETROIT CLUB PICNIC JUNE 27

Wm. A. Carey Announces Event in Communication to The Courier

Plans for the Charlevoix-Detroit Club annual picnic were made recently and are announced in a letter from William A. Carey as follows:

"A special committee of the Charlevoix-Detroit Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harsha, made up of the following persons: Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Wicks, Dr. and Mrs. Thad T. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Vandermade, Grace Papineau, Mrs. George Papineau and Mr. and Mrs. William Archie Carey.

"After some discussion the committee decided that a picnic be held this year at Plymouth Park on Saturday, June 27. Every family to bring a picnic basket with drinks. It is urgently requested that everyone be on the spot as soon after 1 o'clock as possible.

"Dr. Thad Smith and Paul Harsha were delegated to locate the most favorable spot and further notice will be given in this paper regarding the location. All we can say now is, 'Watch for the Charlevoix signs.'

"All members of the club will receive a postcard announcement in due time and this advance notice is intended to serve as a hearty invitation to all former Charlevoixites who are living outside the limits of Detroit so that they can make their plans now for June 27."

CORRESPONDENCE

CENTRAL LAKE

Nice rain Monday, but look out for frost!

Remember the Sunday school rally at Eastport Wednesday, June 24.

Rev. Guy Liskum and wife attended Sunday school at Creswell and Turners last Sunday.

Mr. Zealstra and wife (formerly Jessie Blisset), of Grand Rapids, were callers at the Harvey Brouwer home Sunday.

Allen Aardema is preparing to build a new house on the former Willis Wilkinson place. His barn is about repaired.

The DeForest family had a reunion last week, when 31 people, including old Mr. and Mrs. Zibe DeForest, were present. A week from Sunday they have another reunion.

Attendances at the Sunday schools last Sunday were as follows: Creswell, 17; Turner, 28; Grand View, 22; Eastport, 31; Norwood, 33; Barnard, about 18, and Green River, 31.

Miss Lucile Severance, of Bellaire, daughter of the probate judge, ran her car into the ditch at Larabee's Corners, but was not injured, although a fender of the car was damaged.

Mrs. Harry Mason is some improved. Her sister, Mrs. Danforth, of South Arm, is staying with her for two weeks. The test from Ann Arbor reacted negatively. Dr. Palmer, of Central Lake, is giving medical aid.

Rev. J. C. Mathews, of Elk Rapids, gave an inspiring address at Central Lake last Saturday at the Decoration Day services. He deplored war and thought the war veterans should receive better attention from the government.

The editor of the Torch, Rev. Zitlaw and several others attended the Fellowship and Memorial services of the Pentecostal church at East Jordan Saturday. It is hoped to have Rev. Zitlaw as the speaker at Grand View on Children's Day.

Edward Dawson, who has resided on the Arnold farm across from Bay View school house for a number of years, has purchased the Henry Syers farm, north of town, and is moving onto it this week. He will still be in the Bay View district.

Central Lake, Bellaire and Elk Rapids schools are closed after this week. The two former closed last week, also Mancelona. Most of the teachers appear to have been rehired, except Supt. VanPelten, Bellaire, and Young, of Elk Rapids.

"252 miles to the gallon is how I figure it with Red Crown"
... crows Lester Longbow

Mr. Lester Longbow, a prominent resident of Dozen Forks, R.R. 6, is known throughout the state for his untiring efforts in behalf of the Tall Stories Club.

YA see, I was to be speaker o' the evening at the annual Grange dinner over to Dozen Forks. I got all tidied up, sorta late, and then found the dratted car was out o' gas—and Dozen Forks all o' four miles away.

"Well, my wife had an idea. 'Wait'll I get that little bottle o' gas I got from the Standard Oil Station to kill the ants with,' says she.

"I lowed as how it was foolish, but we'd try it. So she brought out a little 4-ounce bottle and we dumped the Standard Red Crown it held into the gas tank. I started off, figuring mebbe I'd make a hundred rod.

"But I got past the next farm—and the next—'n 'fore I knew it there I was in front o' the Grange with the motor still runnin'. Figure it out for yourself . . . four miles worth o' distance on two ounces o' Red Crown. That's 252 miles to the gallon. That's mileage, mister! . . . Eh? . . . Sure, the whole Grange is using Red Crown now."

We think Standard Red Crown is good, too, but we refuse to be taken in by Lester's vivid report. It's not THAT good.

With "more live power per gallon," Standard Red Crown operates with less waste power per gallon. With it you can be sure of as long mileage per gallon as with any regular-priced gasoline you can buy—if not longer.

But rather than make claims, Standard prefers to make it easy for motorists to find out the real facts about gasoline mileage for themselves.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

The ninth in a series of articles on improving the home grounds by Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld.

Human nature has always expressed a deep interest in color whether it be the color of a sunset, of autumn leaves, or of paint. Even the very small child shows positive reactions to strong color, and this tendency lasts throughout life. Fortunately, at the present time fashion says that we may indulge our desire for color, and this applies to our gardens as well as to our clothes or interior decoration. After a long period of dull color combinations in all areas of life, we have come to realize that color can be a vital force in making life more pleasant, and the flower border is the chief color spot of most gardens.

If color were our only problem, it would not be difficult to plan a flower border but there are many other factors which must be considered. These will be discussed in the following paragraphs.

1. Location. A flower border should be placed where it will have as much sun as possible for even a small amount of shade must be compensated for with extra fertilizer and care. However, this factor must be secondary to a consideration of the whole plan. The flower border must take its place as naturally and functionally in the garden scheme as an automobile does on the highway. This suggests that the border should be placed near one of the property boundaries so that it will not be in the way and will have a good background. The quality of the soil is a further consideration but this is less important than the other two because the soil can be modified without great difficulty.

2. Soil Preparation and Planting. Any extra work which is put into the soil preparation will well repay the gardener not only in finer flowers, but in lessened work later. The soil should be thoroughly prepared to a depth of 18 inches or more, and all weed and grass roots should be removed. Sandy soils are well drained, easy to cultivate, and splendid for most bulbs, but these very factors allow the water and fertilizer to disappear with an amazing rapidity. The addition of clay or peat moss will help to remedy these defects.

Clay soils are just the opposite. They are thick, hold the water and plant nutriment, and are hard to cultivate. Frequently, they are not well drained, and are poorly adapted to growing bulbs. Sand or peat moss will aid in loosening a clay soil. Loam which is a combination of sand, clay and vegetable fibers is the ideal combination having the good points of both clay and and, the bad points of neither. It seems that anything will grow in it with very little care and those who possess it are highly favored gardeners.

3. Backgrounds. It is as difficult to imagine a picture without a wall behind as it is difficult to imagine chairs which are not part of a home. But all too many of us are satisfied to put our flower borders in some part of the lawn where they do not have even a hint of a background, and then we wonder why our flowers do not show off to better advantage. The reason is simple. We can only see a limited number of objects at one time, and if our attention is attracted to a neighbor's washing, garage, or his new automobile, the flower border is going to suffer. It is essential to give a flower border a background similar to the backdrop provided for actors on a stage.

Backgrounds are of two general types, the first of which is composed of shrubs. Shrubbery provides a neutral green against which almost any color is well displayed. In addition to acting as a background, such shrubs as Mock-oranges will produce flowers, and some of the Honeysuckles produce attractive fruits. The effect will be improved considerably if such backgrounds are clipped into a definite shape which is part of the entire development. It is unfortunate that a strong prejudice against clipped hedges exists in this country because they give fine garden backgrounds. Clipped hedges of Arborvitae are splendid both in summer and winter.

The second type of background is that having a definite architectural character such as a fence or wall. These give a greater feeling of solidity and privacy and aid in unifying the house and garden. If possible, they should be built of the same material as the house. Wood fences or lattice work are satisfactory with frame houses, but walls of stone or brick are even better.

4. Maintenance. The removal of every grass and weed root when the flower bed is being prepared will save many times the labor in future maintenance of the garden although the necessary amount of cultivation depends on various factors. It is important to keep the beds narrow enough so that it is not difficult to reach the farther side.

5. Edgings. Economical upkeep suggests a straight edging of some durable material to keep the grass and flower border definitely separated. Bricks on edge, flat stones (not round ones painted white!), strips of metal, or wood properly treated are all satisfactory, but a narrow walk of brick or flagstone is a great convenience.

The irregular lines which are found in informal gardens should always be strong enough so that they do not look accidental. They form a more serious maintenance problem than do the straight edgings, but this may be simplified by using strips of metal to keep the grass roots out of the flower beds.

6. Accents. It is hard to think of anything duller than the average flower border during the long winter months, and yet many of us are forced to look at them in this condition for almost half of the time. Even during the summer, borders can be greatly improved by some definite accents to produce a feeling of rhythm. Possibly the best solution for this problem is to use the more symmetrical evergreens such as Pyramidal Arborvitaes which are attractive throughout the year. Clipped deciduous shrubs are also interesting as are large pots of flowers.

7. Foliage. The brilliance of the flowers is all too frequently apt to make us forget that foliage, too, can be an element in the design. Contrast in size is the most striking feature, an extreme example of which is Rhubarb or Plaintain Lilies planted near Baby's Breath. But there is also contrast in shape such as between Peonies and Iris. Less noticeable are the subtle shades of green in the foliage itself. Some is yellowish while other is bluish. Careful attention to interesting foliage combinations means that your garden will be interesting whether you have flowers or not.

8. Color. And finally, we return to a discussion of color. All too frequently we are misled by the two old sayings that all colors in nature are harmonious, and that a garden should be a riot of color. To disprove the first it is only necessary to attempt to combine orange daylilies with rose-pink peonies, and to disprove the latter it is only necessary to say that a riot of color is exactly like any other riot—something to be avoided!

The two main principles in color arrangements are to plant each variety in large masses, and to limit the number of colors used in a garden. The reason that all colors seem harmonious in nature is that one sees them in very large masses against a splendid background of green. Nature never arranges complicated groupings of 25 flowers, two of each, but deals with groups of 50 or 100. While it is true that we cannot use quantities such as those, it is possible to keep the masses large.

Limiting the garden to a few colors is a simple matter, and will make a tremendous difference in an ordinary garden. Just as you do not use every color of the rainbow in your living room, so you should not use every possible color in your garden. Choose three or four colors which are your favorites, and be very hard-hearted about discarding any flowers which do not follow that scheme. The results are worth the extra trouble.

By observing these two principles, interesting effects can be worked out in the very smallest of gardens for even a dozen plants will be more attractive if they are arranged well. Plan some color combinations of a simple nature rather than planting haphazardly. If you like blue and yellow, place a mass of blue flowers near a mass of yellow ones, but then be very firm in resisting the temptation to add a bunch of pink. Or you may want a white garden. Or a blue garden. The possibilities are limitless and well worth exploring.

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. WORLD FAMOUS DRIVERS KNOW ONLY ONE TIRE IS Safe!

Firestone

GUM-DIPPED TIRES WIN INDIANAPOLIS 500 MILE RACE

Louis Meyer won the Indianapolis 500-mile race, at an average speed of 109 miles an hour, breaking all track records, without tire trouble of any kind. He always used Firestones.

No tires except Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires could have resisted the terrific heat generated at such high sustained speeds on the hot brick track, lap after lap, hour after hour. You can have no greater proof of blowout protection.

Not one of the thirty-three drivers would risk his life on any other tire, for each driver knows that heat is the chief cause of tire failure and blowouts. Firestone cords are soaked in liquid rubber, which saturates and coats every cotton fiber, preventing friction and heat and adding great strength. This is the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, that gives you greatest blowout protection and safety.

Profit by the experience of race drivers. Equip your car today with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires—it costs so little to protect lives worth so much.

CHARACTER

It would be a great thing for the State of Michigan if all candidates for public office had the high character and ability possessed by Wilber M. Brucker, former governor, who seeks the senatorial seat held by Senator James Couzens.

Sneer at it as some may, Mr. Brucker does not smoke or drink. Call it old-fashioned if you will, but he has taught a Sunday school class and supports the organized church. Laugh at him if you want to, but he believes and practices the old school of morals. Ridicule the idea as some do, but he is still an old style American who believes in the flag under which are given the greatest liberties on earth.

Mr. Brucker faces a hard fight in his efforts to win the nomination on his party ticket—but there is not in the state a cleaner or harder fighter for what he believes is right and before next fall rolls around the voters of the State of Michigan are going to hear the voice of this hard-hitting crusader in no uncertain way. Win or lose, politics is elevated when men of the stamp of Mr. Brucker take the message direct to the people.

There would be little distrust of our public officials if all those seeking or holding office had the inherent righteousness that characterizes Wilber M. Brucker. — Richard Baldwin in the Northville Record.

POLITICAL PARASITES

Political parasites who attack the utility industry do so with the avowed purpose of giving the public the manifold benefits of a wider use of electric service. Their real purpose, however, is to achieve personal, private advantage. They build up a "power trust" straw man in order to knock it down, and thereby gain the plaudits, and the ballots, of unthinking, deluded citizens.

The industry is justified in combating these attacks by every ethical means at its command. There is no reason why a business with such a splendid record of social and industrial developments should be replaced by unwieldy, political bureaucracies with proven records of economic waste, inefficiency, political corruption and financial failure. Stable electrical development with fairness alike to consumer, employe and investor will be accomplished through private—not public ownership. The record proves it, politicians to the contrary notwithstanding." — Public Service Magazine.

THE TASK AHEAD

"The Republican party has a bigger job on its hands than to recite the long list of injustices and extravagances that have come out of the blunderings of the New Deal. It must call to its side that type of stalwart citizen who sickens at the thought of a welfare questionnaire, but prays for a regular pay envelope. It must face frankly that fact that there is something wrong in an economic system that permits great fortunes to accumulate in industrial and commercial enterprises while the workers who produce these surpluses are never far from want.

"Give the Republican party the allegiance of those who demand only the American right to work for the high privilege of living in the American way and we need have no fear over the outcome of the election."—From Governor Fitzgerald's Wyoming address.

CLEAN LICENSE PLATES

Police officers recently asked Orville E. Atwood, secretary of state, to increase the size of automobile license plates to expedite the apprehension of fugitives from justice fleeing by motor. Atwood wasn't able to go into the advisability of the matter because the request came too late; the manufacture of 1937 plates starts soon.

"Flattery is a speech in which the speaker is trying to feather his own nest, and the listener tries hard to believe what is being told."

BOUNTY TRAPPERS CAPTURE MANY PREDATORS

State Had Paid Bounty on Nearly a Thousand During 1936

The Department of Conservation has paid bounties on nearly 1,000 bobcats, coyotes and wolves during the first four months of 1936, a compilation shows.

This number consists of 508 bobcats, 441 coyotes and five wolves, aggregating 954 in number. Up to May 1 a total of 324 bounty contracts had been issued by the department to predator-bounty hunters.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

Judging from the markets, summer is rushing upon us for already apricots, several kinds of berries, melons, peaches and plums are arriving in limited quantities. Grapefruit, oranges and bananas continue plentiful and reasonable in price.

With this week-end opening the picnic season it is good to know that those essentials of a picnic, butter and eggs, are plentiful and inexpensive.

Beef is still the best meat value though slightly higher for veal and pork, too, are higher and lamb is almost prohibitive in price.

Tomatoes are now reasonable and of good quality and all lettuce is cheap. Peas are the outstanding vegetable of the week along with spinach, green beans, cabbage and asparagus.

Here are three menus planned for different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner
Cold Cuts Scalloped Potatoes
Green Peas
Bread and Butter
Rhubarb Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Fried Chicken New Potatoes
Glazed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Snow Pudding Soft Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner

SOLDIER, SAILOR DEAD GLORIFIED

inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes,

"'I, therefore, believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.'

"Strict observance of that creed, by you and me, is as vital today, as is was in the past, or will be in the future. Assaults, not always with rifle, bayonet and cannon, will always be made upon the right to 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.'

"If we would avoid slavery, and serfdom for our children and our children's children, we should engrave upon our hearts the famous words:

"'Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.'

"My friends, the past is gone, today is here, and the future lies ahead and we shall prove ourselves worthy of the heritage bequeathed to us by our hero dead. I pray that we may so order our own lives, that those of the vast army of freedom who have gone on before, and who, with colors flying, are now marching in silent parade, shall not look down upon us, and feel that they gave their lives in vain."

The program closed with the school band playing "America."

The rear quarter windows swing open, there is a cowl ventilator, and, of course, the windshield opens and the door windows may be lowered. Two swivel type sun visors, adjustable front seat, new style arm rests, and a foot rest in the rear compartment are other features particularly enjoyed on the longer trips. The rustless steel running board moulding adds a distinctive touch in keeping with the graceful body lines.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Resorts Should Guarantee Their Patrons Satisfactory Sanitary Facilities

A good resort or camp requires: (1) an approved water supply; (2) sanitary toilet facilities with proper sewage disposal; (3) an inoffensive method of handling and disposing of garbage and fish offal; (4) a satisfactory milk supply; (5) clean grounds, reasonably free from flies and mosquitoes and with proper rubbish disposal; (6) cleanliness in all food handling and of food utensils; (7) clean and adequate bathing facilities.

A clear wholesome supply of water must be available. Driven or drilled wells 50 feet or more in depth are recommended. Dug wells and springs are difficult to protect from surface pollution and their use should be avoided if possible.

Wells should be located so that the surface drainage is away from the wells in all directions. The platform and connection between the platform and pump should be absolutely watertight. Cesspools, privies, barnyards and other like sources of pollution endanger water supplies and should be located as far as it is conveniently possible from the well. Seepage takes place readily in sandy soil. When a frost pit is necessary the bottom should be concreted and the pit drained to prevent water going down along the casing.

Toilets of an approved design should be provided. These should be adequate in number, and clean at all times. The toilets should be fly tight and well ventilated. Cesspools hide filth but do not destroy it. They may contaminate a water supply by seepage. Sewage disposal installations should be located so as not to endanger water supplies.

Garbage and fish offol should be kept in galvanized iron cans with tight fitting covers. After emptying, cans should be washed. Collection and disposal by the community should be provided for in the large resorts. Burying garbage and fish offal is satisfactory in the small resorts or camps. Daily collection by a farmer for swine feeding is a satisfactory means of disposal. Garbage or fish offal must never be dumped into lakes or streams, or left exposed, but must be buried under at least six inches of earth. Burning garbage in a bonfire is unsatisfactory because it does not destroy it and offensive odors are produced.

Milk should be obtained from a source where the milk is produced and handled in a cleanly manner. Wherever it is possible, a pasteurized or a Grade A milk should be used.

Camp and resort owners are expected to keep their premises free from litter and rubbish. Rubbish should not be allowed to accumulate, particularly tin cans and discarded utensils, but should be removed frequently. Flies breed in manure and rubbish piles. Mosquitoes breed in standing water in swamps, ponds, rain barrels, tin cans, and other receptacles holding water. The elimination of breeding places by draining swamps, preventing the accumulation of water-holding receptacles, by cleaning land of brush and weeds and by oiling the surface of stagnant water, is a sure means of getting rid of mosquitoes.

Food should be handled in a cleanly manner. The kitchen and cooking utensils must be clean at all times. Perishable food must be kept in refrigerator. The law requires that any person employed in the handling of food must submit to a physical examination whenever required by the local health officer.

Bathing beaches must be absolutely free from sewage pollution and floating material. The bench should be sandy, free from weeds, have no sudden slopes, and no dangerous obstructions within the bathing area. Where bathing suits are rented they should be clean and dry before using. They should be in a condition equal to that produced by commercial laundries.

MAY FERRY TRAFFIC SHOWS AN INCREASE

Highway Dept. Leases Railroad Ferry for Summer Months

A 19 per cent increase in the amount of traffic carried by the state ferries at the Straits of Mackinac during the first 15 days of May was announced today by State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner.

Between May 1 and May 15 the two boats operating between St. Ignace and Mackinaw City carried a total of 3,510 vehicles. During the same period of last year the boats carried 2,948 vehicles.

"This increase in early season traffic across the Straits is an indication that our expectations of another record tourist season will be fulfilled," Commissioner Van Wagoner said.

Anticipating unusually heavy tourist traffic this year, the commissioner ordered two of the state's three boats to begin service May 1, 15 days earlier than last year. Previously one boat gave service until May 16.

A private railroad carferry has been leased by the highway department to handle truck traffic during the peak season of July 1 to Labor Day. This will permit better service for passenger traffic on the state owned fleet.

FISH LICENSE SALES IN '35 SETS RECORD

Over 600,000 Resident and Non-Resident Licenses Sold

The increasing popularity of fishing in Michigan, both with residents and non-residents, is attested by the record-breaking sale of fishing licenses during 1935.

The number of licenses sold to residents and non-residents has set a new high mark and there is a strong possibility that total sales will top the 600,000 mark for the first time when all reports of state license agents for 1935 are received.

As of May 1 the total sales of 1935 fishing licenses accounted for in settlements with license dealers was 592,815. This total was made up of 478,114 resident fishing licenses at 50 cents each; 59,020 temporary non-resident fishing licenses or the special 10-day non-resident licenses at $1; 28,316 annual non-resident fishing licenses at $2 and the 27,365 non-resident "wife" licenses at 50 cents.

Summer Club Program Being Developed

During the past two or three weeks considerable emphasis is being placed on the organization of summer 4-H clubs. At this early date very few of the communities have officially organized, but in all cases are making plans. Increased interest has taken place especially on the west end of the county. The Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix has a most splendid program developed and one that is reaching all communities in that area.

In order to more efficiently and effectively carry through the program, the various communities involved are organizing so that they may meet every two weeks or oftener. The following communities will organize under this plan: Burgess, Marion Center, Barnard, Hilton, and McGeagh.

The forestry club at Boyne Falls is rapidly taking shape and several communities are making preparations for running clubs. At a later date additional information will be presented.

Poison Bran Bait Now Available

As a result of many inquiries coming to the office for ways and means of checking the damage from cut worms, two poison bran bait stations have been set up. The material may be purchased at 10 cents a bushel, and a bushel will be ample to destroy a large percentage of the cut worms on an acre or more. A bushel weighing in the neighborhood of 50 pounds and actually 10 to 15 pounds—enough for one acre if spread evenly and thinly. The material should be applied in the evening as cut worms do their feeding at night.

This material can be secured from the Charlevoix Cooperative Company, and from the freight depot in Boyne City. Bring your own sacks or containers. This poison bran bait is the most effective against cut worms of anything known, is reasonable in price and easy to apply.

July 28 Deadline Set for Petitions

Candidates for nomination for the offices of United States Senator, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Representative in Congress, State Senator and Representative in the State Legislature, must file their nominating petitions with the secretary of state not later than 5 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, Tuesday, July 28, according to a notification form on file in that office.

The minimum number of petitioners whose names must be signed to petitions of candidates for United States Senator, Governor and Lieutenant Governor, is prescribed by the election law as being equal to not less than one per cent of the vote polled in the last preceding election for the office of secretary of state by the party of the filing candidate.

Republican candidates for these three offices must file petitions bearing at least 5,862 names; Democratic candidates' petitions must bear at least 5,758 names. Petitions must not bear more than four times the minimum provided, however. Further provisions on this point are that the petitions must be signed by at least 100 residents in each of at least 20 of the counties of the state.

PLAN PAYMENT BONUS BY FIFTEENTH OF JUNE

Government Will Distribute Approximately Three Million

Payment of adjusted service certificates to World War veterans will commence about June 15 according to plans now made.

The Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago will act as the clearing house for payment to Michigan veterans.

As to the method to be used in raising the $50 bonds sent to veterans, it is reported that the following procedure will be used, although a definite announcement has not been made by the government in this respect:

The veteran takes his bonds which he wishes to cash to his local postoffice. The postmaster gives him a receipt for the bonds and sends them to one of the specially designated key post offices throughout the state for collection. A check representing the amount of the bonds turned in is drawn and mailed by registered mail directly to the veteran, himself, at his official address.

War Risk Loans

Some misunderstanding has occurred in regard to adjustments which the government must make between the War Risk Insurance Fund and the Adjusted Service Certificate Fund. It is necessary that an inter-departmental adjustment be made for the reimbursement of the War Risk Insurance Fund, but this will not affect the amounts paid veterans who may have individually borrowed on their War Risk Insurance policies.

The only deductions are for prior loans against the Adjusted Service Certificates, and interest on such loans before September, 1931.

Veterans will have the privilege of using the proceeds of their bonds to pay their government life insurance premiums in advance if they desire to do so. By doing so a discount of 3½ per cent is allowed.

Countless millions of grasshoppers, caught in a snowstorm centuries ago and frozen solid. And when the sun melts the ice at the base of the glacier, the pools at the foot of it are filled with grasshopper "tobacco juice."

Glacier Park, the great out-of-door University of Nature, and many other spots of historic interest and scenic beauty, including the scene of "Custer's Last Stand," Blackfeet National Forest, Lewis and Clark Cavern, and Beartooth National Forest, will be featured.

A simple job of drenching sheep once a month in the summer may mean profit instead of loss for Michigan farmers.

DRENCHING SHEEP CUTS WORM LOSS

Industry More Profitable When Low Cost Protection Is Provided

Parasitic flocks eliminate all possibility of Michigan flock owners realizing any profit as their share in the state's ten million dollar sheep and wool industry, warns the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College in advocating drenching of sheep and lambs at monthly intervals this summer to prevent infestation by stomach and tape worms.

When lambs go to market, those which have not been drenched for protection against worms weigh but two-thirds as much as healthy lambs. The underweight animals command usually but two-thirds the price per pound. Yet costs of drenching are less than half a cent for a mature unimul and lambs can be treated for a fourth of a cent.

Treatment is comparatively simple. A soda pop bottle is most commonly used although some sheep men use a syringe. One ounce of copper sulphate and one ounce of nicotine sulphate are mixed in three quarts of warm water. Of this three quart solution adult sheep receive four ounces, 75 pound lambs should get three ounces, 50 pound lambs get two ounces and 25 pound lambs one ounce.

The sheep is backed into a corner and the operator straddles the neck of the animal. Holding the nose no higher than the level of the eyes, the bottle is worked up and down in the mouth of the sheep so that the solution is swallowed slowly.

Altough sheep on dry lot feeding should be kept off feed for 12 to 18 hours before treating, this is not necessary for sheep on pasture, but all sheep should have access to water at all times before and after treatment.

LOCAL WOMAN'S RECIPE EARNS NATIONAL AWARD

Mrs. James B. Parsons Is Honored by Better Homes and Gardens

Mrs. James B. Parsons, 206 Belvedere avenue, Charlevoix, Michigan, has just been awarded a Certificate of Recipe Endorsement by Better Homes and Gardens for her recipe, "Favorite Birthday Cake."

Mrs. Parsons' endorsed recipe follows:

Favorite Birthday Cake

2 cups sifted cake flour, 2 cups sugar, 6 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 cups rich milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon almond flavoring, 4 stiff-beaten egg whites.

Sift the flour with the sugar, baking powder and salt. Heat the milk to boiling, add the dry ingredients and beat vigorously until smooth. Add the flavorings and fold in the stiff-beaten egg whites. Place in an ungreased tube pan. Bake in a slow oven (300-325 degrees) for about 35 to 45 minutes. Cool the cake, remove from the pan and ice with your favorite white icing.

Decorate with sprays of pink wild roses with yellow centers and green stems. The flowers and leaves are made with ordinary gum drops cut into thin slices (with scissors). The scissors blades make a vein in the center of the leaves which is effective. The stems are also made by cutting a narrow strip around a slice of gum drop.

CHARLEVOIX COURIER

VOLUME 41. NUMBER 24. EIGHT PAGES THE CHARLEVOIX COURIER, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1936 PRICE $2.00 PER YEAR

COUNCIL APPROVES DECREASED BUDGET

MILL TAX FOR SUMMER ROLL AT SAME FIGURE

Budget of $31,255.90 Will Require Tax of 13 Mills—Streets Program Is Progressing

Adoption of the annual budget and setting of the tax rate for the July, nr summer roll, constituted the major items of business transacted by the city council Monday evening.

The budget, providing funds for the vnrious city departments as well as money for the interest and sinking fund to retire bonded indebtedness, is slightly less than that of last year when $31,591.62 was spread as compared to $31,255.90 for the 1936-37 fiscal year. To provide this amount the council adopted a tax rate of 11 mills for general purposes, und two mills for interest and sinking, the same rate as a year ago.

Following are the comparative budgets for 1936-37 and 1935-36:

Fund	New	Old
Contingent	$ 4,097.30	$ 9,561.50
Health	350.00	350.00
Cemetery	2,500.00	2,000.00
Police	2,000.00	2,000.00
Fire	2,000.00	2,000.00
Parks	2,750.00	1,750.00
Streets	8,000.00	8,000.00
Sewers	1,200.00	1,200.00
Advertising	3,200.00	1,800.00
Auto Camp	250.00	250.00
Airport	100.00	250.00
	$26,447.30	$29,161.50
Int. & Sink.	4,808.60	2,430.12
Total	$31,255.90	$31,591.62

Over four thousand dollars was lopped off the contingent fund, making the greatest decrease. The cemetery fund was increased by $500, the pnrks fund by $1,000 to provide for maintenance of additional city parks, and the advertising fund by $1,400 to cover a deficit left from last year's expenditures. Other funds remain practically the same as last year. The interest and sinking fund was increased by an additional mill to meet obligations falling due during the year.

The street committee reported fine progress on its program of improvements. All patching has been practically completed, ulso the repair of curbs and gutters throughout the city. Many streets have been graded and work has been started on lowering the grade, constructing curb and gutters on the west side and hard-surfacing Grant street hill from Park avenue to the lake. The program is to be completed before the resort season gets into full swing.

Details of tennis and shuffle board courts to be constructed at the new Round Lake recreation park were given by City Engineer R. F. Sloan. Grading is now under way at the park and other improvements will be started soon.

PARTY LAND EIGHT MACKINAWS OVER WEEK-END

Eight large Mackinaw trout were taken from Lake Michigan last Saturday and Sunday by a party from Flint and Pontiac guided by Bernie Ward.

The party took three Saturday afternoon and landed five Sunday.

The fish were taken in deep water, indicating that the Mackinaw fishing is barely started and probahly will last, due to cold temperature of the water at the present time, until late this month.

SPORTSMAN'S CLUB HAS BIG PROGRAM

REARING PONDS ARE PLACED IN OPERATION

Over 80,000 German Brown, Brook and Steelhead Trout Fingerlings Are Being Reared

Launching a program which will equal if not exceed thut of former years, the Charlevoix Sportsman's Club has placed its Stover Creek rearing ponds in operation for the 1936 season.

Approximately 80,000 fingerlings have been placed in various sections of the ponds. Included are 20,000 German browns, 42,000 large and small brook trout, 16,000 steelhead trout. Consignments have been received from the state hatchery at Oden and also from the federal hatchery at Northville.

An additional shipment of 14,000 German browns has been promised and negotiations are now under way to obtain 60,000 rainbow eggs stripped this spring at a station on the Manistee River. It is planned to hatch the eggs at the federal hatchery which will be placed in operation for the purpose, and place the fry in the rearing ponds. Up to the present time the usual shipment of 100,000 Oregon steelhead eggs has not been received. If sent, they will also be hatched here.

Through the efforts of Roy Ranger, the Sportsman's Club has been promised a monthly allotment of 100 pounds of ground liver for feed at the rearing ponds. This grant will greatly decrease the Club's operating expense for the season.

The work of clearing the rearing ponds of larger fish prior to the placing of fingerlings was greatly facilitated this year by the use of traps. The ponds have been screened to keep out birds and other predators and, with favorable conditions prevailing, the Club's efforts will result in another large plant of trout in Charlevoix county rivers and streams this fall.

BELOVED TEACHER TAKEN BY DEATH

SOPHIA MANSON VICTIM HEART ATTACK SUNDAY

Graduate of Charlevoix County Normal and Teacher Here for Period of Thirty Years

The entire city was shocked and saddened Sunday evening at the death of one of its beloved teachers.

Miss Sophia Manson had attended the movies Saturday evening, and, while being driven home by a friend, complained of being very tired. Failing to keep a dinner engagement Sunday, friends called at her home to find her gentle soul had slipped away Saturday night.

Born in Ontario, Canadn, into a home of culture, education and refinement, Miss Manson as u little child came to St. Ignnce with her parents. Her father pnssed awny when she wns but a little girl. Her mother raised und assisted in the education of her entire family with the courage of the pioneer mother.

Miss Manson was graduated from St. Ignace High school. She then came to Charlevoix where she attended, and was graduated from the Charlevoix county normal school in 1905, as a young girl. Later she attended summer school, and was graduated from Ypsilanti State Normal College.

Her first school was taught at Phelps, from that day until Saturday night, when her tired soul from continuous giving of her strength to the teaching service, fell into a deep sleep not to be awakened.

Miss Manson was loved and respected by both the school children of today, and in many instances their parents, whom she taught a generation ago.

Her task had been completed; her desk and room at the school today muy be found in perfect order, with the school year brought to a close.

She was faithful to her task always, exceedingly honest and impartial, cheerful and happy. It has been of deep concern to her many friends that she passed away alone.

Miss Manson is survived by two sisters, two brothers having passed away a short time ago.

Funeral service will be held at St. Ignace Friday, and a memorial service will be held at the Congregational church, Charlevoix, Sunday, June 21. She was an officer in the Order of the Eastern Star, and a member of the Congregational church.

Miss Manson will be deeply missed in Charlevoix, as in her 30 years of teaching had become a part of the interest of almost every home in our community.

CONSERVATION EMPLOYES ON MERITS

STATE SETS RULES FOR NEW EXAMINATIONS

Every Applicant Has an Equal Opportunity for Employment Under New Standards

There perhaps is no branch of the state's service where jobs are so much in demund as with the Depnrtment of Conservation, particularly the field force. It's the lure of the outdoors; the desire to work and live in the open, perhaps wear a uniform cnrrying authority to enforce game and fish lnws and be endowed with other accoutrements that stamp the wenrer and bearer as n factor in his community. There never have been enough jobs to go around and perhaps never will be.

With the new plans upproved by the State Conservation Commission for the selection of its field men it can be safely stated that Michigan is destined to have as efficient field administrative force as will be found in the game and fish affairs of any state. The Department is now on a real civil service basis und will remain so as long as the present Commission personnel dominates affairs.

The regulations adopted by the Commission call for periodical written and oral examinations to be held at various locations in the state when vacancies occur in the field force. All applicants for such positions will be notified through the local press as to the date nnd place of the examinations. After this they can secure application blanks from the Depnrtment of Conservation at Lansing to be filled out and returned so that their names may be properly listed. Later they will he notified when to appear. All applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 45 years. No educational qualifications are made. The examinations will be held under the supervision of the secretary of the Commission and the chief of the field force. Those who pass with the highest marks will be given the positions and those just below held on the reserve list. After once having received an appointment, the men will be retained indefinitely, even those who only work part of the year being included.

At the present time there are 140 fire towermen, 136 conservation wardens and 130 fire wardens on the force and a number of game refuge and public hunting ground custodians. When vacancies occur in these forces examinations will be held to fill them. This new plan absolutely eliminates politics and pull from the Department in the selection of its field representatives and assures the Department of the highest type of personnel.

CORRESPONDENCE

CENTRAL LAKE

Will and John Cuemnn, of Ellsworth, were looking for a farm in this neighborhood Monday.

Attendances at Sunday school last Sunday were: Creswell, 16; Turner, 26; Grand View, 30; Bosh, 17; Eastport, 18.

Mrs. Herman Telgenhoff has been very ill the past week. Dr. Palmer has been in attendance. She has been ill about two weeks.

Harry Mason intends to take Mrs. Danforth back to South Arm this week, she having been staying with her sister during her illness.

Jesse DeForest has returned from Lansing, having won out in his case against the liquor truck which collided with him last year. He got a judgment of about $19,600.

The sheriff ordered the goods of Manlos McGuire to be removed from his farm Friday, and Mrs. Peck to take possession. Mr. McGuire is undecided as to what he will do.

Many will regret the passing of Mrs. Smith, of Smith's Restaurant, Bellaire. She was always very accommodating, running a well-kept place, and was strictly against having intoxicants around the place. They had traded their farm near Loeb's, at Charlevoix, with Mr. Harper for the place. She had worried much about Mr. Smith's health, yet she was the first to go.

A sad case is that of Mr. Coy's, east of town. Last week Wednesday, their granddaughter, Maxine, was around as usual at the moving picture show. Saturday morning she died suddenly of acute indigestion and heart trouble. She was 15 years of age and had been staying with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Coy. The funeral was held from the home Monday, Rev. Glen Cornett conducting the services.

Otto Salchow and Arthur Carpenter have pulled out their cherry orchards. Many orchards were killed last year by shot-hole. With the freezing of New York's entire crop, one-third of Wisconsin's, and so many Michigan orchards put out of bearing, it looks like five or six cents a pound for cherries this year. Many may regret destroying their orchards. Many cherries were frozen here also this spring. The White orchard near Boyne City is reported as frozen.

Rev. G. A. Weaver was down this way from Petoskey Sunday, giving out programs for Children's Day, and gave two fine sermons at Turners and Grand View Sunday afternoon. He stated that the North Emmet Sunday School Association meets the same date as ours, June 24, and it was thought we could change our date to the 25th, but Rev. Batterbee, head of the association, could not get away on the 25th, so it is doubtful if Rev. Weaver can be with us this year unless he can change their date.

BARNARD

Lawrence Boss is much better after his recent illness.

Mrs. Carl Beattie visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Beattie a few days last week.

The Ladies' Aid Society cleaned the church while the men finished the painting job Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde and daughter, Helen, visited at the Clinton Blanchard home last Sunday evening.

No League will be held Sunday evening on account of a missionary lecture which will be held at the Congregational church in Charlevoix.

The Barnard Epworth League ball team played Bentley Hill Tuesday evening, June 9, while the Clarke school boys played Central Lake junior team Wednesday afternoon.

Quite a few people from Barnard attended the commencement exercises at Charlevoix Wednesday evening, and were very proud that one of our Barnard boys, Clare Beattie, had won highest honors in his high school work.

Rev. Parker of the Congregational church of Charlevoix filled the pulpit at the South Barnard church last Sunday during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Schirpenisse, who have gone to New York on their honeymoon. Congratulations are extended by all Barnard friends.

An event which was of much interest to all Barnard friends was the double wedding which took place last Friday. The contracting parties were Bessie Potter and Floyd Wilbur and Goldie Wilbur and Ralph Brock, of Ironton. These young people have best wishes of the community.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Caponizing Poultry to Be Demonstrated Next Week

Poultrymen will be interested in the announcement that J. M. Moore, extension poultryman from the Michigan State College, has been scheduled for two demonstrations on caponizing.

The first demonstration will be in the Behling warehouse, Boyne City, on Wednesday, June 17, at 10 a. m. The second demonstration will be at Rudy Korth's poultry farm in Charlevoix on Wednesday afternoon, June 17, at 2 p. m.

The practice of caponizing is becoming more important and judging from past experiences a very profitable practice. It produces far better birds for the market. They not only greatly increase in size but also in quality of meat. These cockerels should be from seven to nine weeks of age.

If you are interested in seeing this work done, don't fail to attend your nearest demonstration. Mr. Moore will be very glad to discuss any other poultry problems so bring with you any questions that are troubling you.

Township Committees Are Preparing Maps and Approving Work Sheets

The Soil Conservation program is progressing as rapidly as can be expected. From day to day come new interpretations and new procedure, but this is expected in all programs of this type. All work sheets have been completed for the county, and at the present time the various township committees are meeting with Mr. Ferris, the secretary and treasurer, to approve the clerical corrections and recommendations. Also the township plat has to be prepared which indicates the location of all farms covered by work sheets and other land not farm land such as woods, state land and other non-crop land.

Owing to the numerous inquiries that reach the office relative to compliance it seems important to mention two problems. The first one deals with summer fallow. In the first place a person can meet half of their soil conversion payment with summer fallow. However, regulations make it necessary that summer fallow must be started before June 15 and followed by a crop classified as soil conserving, seeded without a nurse crop before September 1, 1936. Before you start summer fallow it is necessary that you have your nearest county committeeman visit your farm and see the field. He will then give you written approval to the effect that the perennial noxious weeds exist to such an extent as to have constituted a menace upon the farm. The following weeds are designated by the state committee. They are bind weed or wild morning glory, leafy spurge, Russian knapweed, Canada thistle, pepper grass, sowthistle, horse nettle, quack grass and white weed. Therefore please notify your county committeeman to visit your farm before June 15, or better yet, before you start your summer fallow, and receive written permission from him. The nearest of the four county committeemen would be most convenient and they are Lee Sneathen, Charlevoix; Levern McGahn, Charlevoix; Elmer Hott, East Jordan; Carl Clark, Boyne Falls.

Also many farmers seem to think that plowing under sweet clover earns a soil building payment. This is not true, as the only crops that can be plowed under for soil building payments are annual legumes such as soy beans, field peas, field beans and cow pens, provided they are plowed under as green manure crops on or before September 30, 1936.

4-H Club News

The 4-H summer club work is well under way with a very fine enrollment. There are a large number of different projects being carried on such as canning, food preparation, 4-H girl entertains, dairy, poultry, swine, bean, corn, garden and potatoes.

There are 17 communities in which club work has been definitely organized. It is hoped that we can get some summer club demonstration team organized in the near future.

One of the new projects started in Charlevoix county is the Forestry Club at Boyne Falls. This club has an enrollment of 18 boys. The work carried on this spring consisted of thinning of one-quarter acre of woodland. Some time during the past winter the district forester marked the trees that were to be removed. With the aid of Mr. Finley, of Wolverine, and two conservation officers, Mr. Mellencamp and Mr. Walker, the boys cleared out about six cords of wood. Beside this, each club member must plant 500 trees this fall or in early spring. The club plans on thinning out a small plot each year. The club project is being conducted through the Boyne Falls school, and with the aid of the superintendent, Mr. Snyder.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS
By Ann Page

Cold drinks and salads are now in order. If you like iced coffee be sure to make it by pouring extra strong hot coffee over chopped ice or ice cubes. All kinds of lettuce are cheap and tomatoes are half their recent price.

Potatoes both old and new are high due to dry weather. Unless you have to have them, dinners using a root and a green vegetable such as beets and spinach are equally good.

No new fruits are in market but there are more of them at lower prices. Beef continues to be the best meat buy with good values in frying chickens and ducks. Eggs continue inexpensive and good.

Here are three menus planned for different budget levels.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

Atwood Would Stop Dollar Bill Tide

With each day's mail to the Department of State containing at least several hundred dollar bills, and some days the volume reaching as high as a thousand such bills, Orville E. Atwood, secretary of state, has asked that checks, money orders or some other form of transfer of funds be used.

The primary purpose in seeking more general use of some medium other than currency or coins for the payment of fees of various kinds, is that in case any question arises as to any kind of application, a record of payment can be traced if any negotiable instrument was used in the first place.

Fees of a dollar are paid for a variety of governmental services, including issuance of motor vehicle titles, operators' licenses and the like, and the "dollar tide" is running high at this season. Instances of neglect to mail applications, loss in the mails, and other reasons for loss of applications and other records, can generally be run down if records of payment are involved by the use of money orders and the like.

Where post office money orders are used, they should be drawn on Lansing.

RECKLESS DRIVING

No greater traffic hazard exists than the reckless driver, and the increased speed of modern travel makes reckless driving or drunken driving a menace that must be curbed. The public is properly indignant about the matter, but it does not always back up traffic officials and the courts in their efforts to eliminate this hazard. And yet much depends on the public's reaction, for reckless driving is one offense on the highways that should be promptly and effectively punished.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

The tenth of a series of articles on improving the home grounds by Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld.

BULBS

If you are interested in international affairs and politics as well as in gardens, you should be especially interested in growing bulbs, for common as bulbous flowers are in our gardens almost none of them is native to the United States. The notable exceptions to this are a few lilies and some minor bulbs which we use in rock gardens. However, they have been grown in our gardens for so long a time that we have come to regard them as belonging to us. That they have become so well acclimated is difficult to understand when it is realized that they grow naturally in much warmer climates than we have. Another fact which few of us have realized is that nearly all of these common bulbs belong to the lily family, and this accounts for a strong family resemblance in both flower and leaf shape.

With bulbs as with other plants we are mainly interested in having them produce the finest possible flowers, and in having these flowers show off to the best possible advantage. Some of the steps which will aid in achieving these ends are the following:

1. Location of bulb plantings. With few exceptions all bulbs should be located where they will have plenty of sun at least during their period of bloom. Since many of the spring bulbs are in bloom before the trees are in full leaf, they may be planted under them if the shade is not too heavy. If it is necessary to plant bulbs in a partially shaded location, extra care in cultivation and plant food will be necessary to obtain really good results. In general it is better to plant them near the edge of the property so that they may have a background of shrubbery or a fence.

2. Soil Preparation. The general statement that all plants like deep, rich, well-drained soil is particularly true of bulbs. If possible, plant them in soil which is reasonably light but a heavy soil may be remedied by the addition of sand or peatmoss. The beds should be spaded to a depth of two feet in order to make certain that the soil is in good condition.

3. Bulb Culture. The strength of the bulb during the next season depends to a very large degree on how well the foliage grew during the present one. The seed pods should be removed since they merely take strength away from the bulb, but the foliage should not be cut off until it is thoroughly yellow and dry. After the bulbs have become established, it is unwise to disturb them until they crowd each other. The number of years which it will take to bring about an overcrowded condition depends on the type of bulb, the soil, and weather conditions, but in general it will not occur for about five years.

A well-grown bulb demands an equally well-planted setting in order to show it off to its fullest advantage. A few bulbs or even a large patch of bulbs is not as attractive when seen against a neighbor's garage as it would be if it had a background which belonged to it. And, of course, this background should be definitely related to the plan of the whole garden. Some suggestions for securing a good effect are:

1. Mass bulbs in a perennial or shrubbery border. In such a location they will not only provide color before the perennials have come into flower, but they will have a background of shrubbery and perennial foliage. Plant at least six of a kind in a mass or a dozen or more in a "drift" which is an irregular group.

2. Naturalize bulbs in wild garden. Most of the spring flowering bulbs and the lilies may be planted informally in the wild garden where they will continue to thrive for years. If used this way, they should be planted in large quantities.

3. Plant small groups in rock garden. Most of the smaller bulbs are quite at home in a rock garden. This is particularly true of the early spring flowering sorts.

4. Plant in rows or masses in a formal garden. The formal garden is based on a regular geometric plan, and this should be carried out in the planting. Tulips, hyacinths and daffodils are well suited to various geometric shapes in the formal garden, but some of the freer growing bulbs such as gladioli and lilies are not in harmony with the regularity of such a garden.

The bulbs with which you can have the greatest success may be divided into three main classes depending on their season of bloom as follows:

1. Spring Flowering:

Winter Aconite, Snowdrops, Squills, and Crocus are among the smallest and earliest to flower of the whole group, frequently coming into bloom before the snow has all disappeared. They grow only a few inches high, come in a variety of colors including white, yellow, blue, and purple, and are especially suited to the rock or wild garden.

Narcissus are very hardy and multiply rapidly in most gardens in this country even though they are native to the Mediterranean regions and the Orient. The flowers are trumpet shaped, in all shades of yellow and white. The blossoms usually come singly but some varieties have them in clusters.

Hyacinths which are also natives of the Mediterranean district and of South Africa are the most fragrant of the spring flowers. They produce solid, formal clusters of small bell-shaped flowers in blues, reds, and whites. Their formal habit of growth makes them seem more at home in formal gardens than in rock gardens.

Tulips are probably the most conspicuous of all the spring bulbs since they have a range of color including almost every shade except a true blue. There are countless varieties having different seasons of bloom, heights, flower shapes, and colors. The most important of these groups are:

Early — small flowers, medium height, brilliant colors.

Double—similar to the above but even more showy.

Darwin—tall, stately, cup-shaped flowers of nearly every color.

Breeders—similar to Darwins except in their rich color range which includes bronzes, purples, browns, etc.

Parrots—fringed, splotched flowers in bright colors.

Tulip species—many charming and delicate tulips which have only been known in our gardens during the last few years. They are small and not as showy as the others, but have a grace and delicacy which makes them admirably suited to rock gardens.

2. Summer Flowering: These bulbs which produce their blooms in midsummer and autumn are not hardy, and must be stored in a cellar during the winter the same as potatoes. Their greatest use is in the flower border or for cutting.

Dahlias which are natives of Mexico belong to the same family as the humble dandelion although it is doubtful whether the two are now on speaking terms. The giant flowers in many colors which are the result of much hybridization and selection bear as little relation to the originals as do Belgian work horses to their fox-like ancestors. They need a rich, light soil with plenty of water, and may be grown from tubers, cuttings or seeds.

Gladioli give the familiar spikes of blossoms which are splendid when arranged in bouquets but which are a problem when used in the garden for they do not combine well with the other flowers. The color range is almost complete since the blues and purples have been perfected.

Montbretias are less well-known, are similar to gladioli but smaller, and are mainly yellow and orange.

3. Fall Flowering: The fall-flowering bulbs are a much neglected group of small plants similar to our spring-flowering crocus. Their chief charm is the sudden appearance of spring-like flower late in the fall, and this alone makes them worthy of a place in the garden.

Crocus—natives of the Mediterranean region with white or lilac flowers appearing after the leaves have disappeared.

Colchicums—similar to the crocus but natives of England and North Africa. The blooms are white, yellow and lilac.

All of these bulbs are of relatively easy cultivation, and are especially good for the amateur gardener. When they are purchased, the flower is already formed within the bulb, and it is only necessary to give them water, heat, light, and some food to bring them into full bloom.

FIRESTONES PERFORM AT INDIANAPOLIS RACE

Nine Drivers Placing in Money Used Firestones, Report Shows

When technicians and research engineers had completed their checkup today of the results of the Indianapolis motor car race of last Saturday, they found that more than one record had been broken.

Louis Meyer established a new track record at 109 miles per hour and was the first man to chalk up three victories in this international speedway event. The next four cars to finish also broke the track record, established the previous year of more than 106 miles per hour.

But what was of even greater importance to every motor car owner was the records of the performance of the cars. Tire safety and endurance and fuel economy were again demonstrated to be the outstanding benefits that will accrue to the average motorist from this supreme test of the stamina of automobile equipment.

No better demonstration of the reasons justifying the confidence which these expert judges of motor car equipment place in Firestone tires could be given than the results of this race. Tearing along over the burning, rough brick track at speeds, sometimes exceeding 120 miles an hour, Meyer and the other nine drivers to finish within the prize money, gave these tires much greater punishment than they could ever receive in many thousand miles of ordinary service without them showing any sign of failure.

TRAFFIC INCREASE INDICATES MORE TOURISTS

Highway Department Figures Show More Early-Season Visitors

A sharp increase in the early-season tourist business in Michigan was indicated today from reports to Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner.

Reports from headquarters of the state-owned ferry system at St. Ignace revealed a 53 per cent increase in traffic across the Straits of Mackinac during the Memorial Day holiday period. At the same time the highway planning survey reported that apaproximately 50 per cent of automobiles counted on four trunklines near the state line were from other states.

Capt. E. H. Doner, superintendent of state ferries, said that 2,357 automobiles crossed the Straits during the holiday period from Friday through Sunday, a 53 per cent increase over the 1935 traffic for the same period. The automobiles carried 4,832 paid passengers. The 1935 traffic volume at the Straits for the same holiday period amounted to 1,531 sutomobiles and 3,145 passengers.

FOREST FIRE LOSS LOW THIS SEASON

Fewer Fires and Less Acreage Burned Than Last Spring

Weather conditions and the state's forest fire organizations combined in Michigan this spring to record the lowest spriag damage by forest fires in the history of the state.

The spring of 1935, which established a record up to that time for a minimum number of fires, reported 500 fires with approximately 3,000 acres burned over as of June 1.

June 1, this year, the Department of Conservation reported a total of 262 forest fires with but 1,679 acres burned over.

AT THE MOVIES

"Captain January" Shirley's Latest

A famous story becomes Shirley Temple's greatest picture as the tiny, dimpled Fox star returns in "Captain January," showing at the Palace Theatre June 13-14.

Film Boasts Cast of Five Young Stars

With Frances Farmer, former University of Washington co-ed now under contract to Paramount, in the leading role, "Too Many Parents," which boasts five of Hollywood's leadiag juvenile actors in its cast, will open June 15 at the Palace Theatre.

Irvin S. Cobb, whose characterization as the old steamboat captain in "Steamboat Round the Bend," so delighted motion picture audiences, becomes a star in his own right in "Everybody's Old Man," which comes June 17 to the Palace Theatre. Rochelle Hudson, Johnny Downs and Norman Foster were selected for the principal supporting roles of this picture, which was directed by James Flood.

RETAIN VITAMINS IN CANNING FOODS

Studies Indicate Commercial, Home Methods Can Aid Value of Product

To retain vitamins in commercial or home canning, vegetables and fruit must be canned as soon after picking as possible.

This is the advice of Flora M. Hanning, research fellow in nutrition at Michigan State College, East Lansing. Miss Hanning is making a thorough study of the effects of cooking and canning processes on vitamins.

"Vitamin C, contained in fresh raw vegetables and fruits, varies with soil and methods of canning," she says. "The fresher the vegetables, the more vitamin C is there. So whether in the home or in the canning factory, the shorter the time from field or garden to the finished can, the more vitamin C is conserved."

The amount of air included in the jar or can also affects the vitamin content, she says. Experiments at the college have shown, however, that apples which have been allowed to stand in salt water a short time before canning have more vitamin C than apples canned immediately after picking. The salt water permits some of the oxygen to escape.

"It is very important that the food is tightly packed in the jar or can so that all the bubbles of air are forced out, and as little air as possible left under the lid. Heating with those bubbles of air destroys some of the vitamin C," she says.

Miss Hanning also stresses the fact that cooking vegetables and fruit too long in canning and then throwing the liquid away, needlessly wastes much of the vitamin content.

PORCUPINE MADE VISIT TO CITY PARK TUESDAY

A porcupine, full grown and bristling, invaded the new city park on Bridge street Tuesday morning. The animal, an unusual sight within the city limits and quite scarce in this region, created no small amount of interest until he hid away under a dock on Round Lake.

Lloyd Dances to Fight Fame

Because a milkman hero is a screen novelty, Harold Lloyd takes pride in his new comedy, Paramount's "The Milky Way," which opens June 19 at the Palace Theatre.

HOODLUM NOISEMAKERS

The unfortunate experience of Ferndale's beerless beer garden may throw some light upon complaints made from time to time against some of the amusement places licensed to sell alcoholic liquors. According to the Detroit News, the Ferndale city commission has been asked not to reissue a dancing license for the unique Ferndale place. Property owners have complained about noise and disorderly conduct of patrons of the place. Charges are also being made that intoxicated persons frequent the beerless beer garden.

The establishment sponsored by Youth, Inc., and operated apparently by sincere people, whose aim was to furnish amusement for young folks, without the alcoholic stimulus, seems to be the sufferer, because a certain portion of the public does not behave itself. Complaints indicate that some of the place's patrons make a practice of buying their liquor elsewhere and going to the beerless garden to let their spirits soar at their worst. The establishment thus seems to have been afflicted by most of the evils usually placed in the laps of liquor places by critics, without supplying the "trouble-making" causes.

Hundreds of retail liquor licensees are suffering from the same or similar troubles, which have beset the beerless garden — although persons operating the places make a sincere effort to run orderly places and keep objectionable patrons subdued. The situation, if it proves anything, indicates that the public, or a portion of it, must be held responsible for much of the unpleasantness and disorderly conduct which is sometimes charged against beer sellers.

If the public is determined to behave like hoodlums, only a measure of success can be expected from efforts to clean up the refreshment and amusement places. The experience of the Ferndale project, commendable though it is, points to the conclusion that people will be disorderly if they are that type, no matter what kind of place they frequent.

WITH LOADED DICE

Governments have loaded the dice against business. This means really that the dice are loaded against ordinary men and women, would-be-factory and white collar workers who would like to get off the relief rolls but cannot because business expansion lags. There is little indication that the oppressive effects for excessive government spending on the whole economic and social system are realized by government generally. New taxes are planned with a care and thoroughness that might better be reserved for finding ways of cutting present taxes.—Financial Post Canada.

TODAY'S CHALLENGE

Never was the adventure of living successfully more challenging than in these days of transition. Never was there so keen a consciousness of the need of intelligent planning and ordering of the affairs of mankind and also of the affairs of the individual.

In the larger field of human relationships there must be discovered and taught a better system of distribution of goods that are produced, so that the standard of living may be lifted to as high a plane as the standard of production. And in a world where democracy is on trial as never before in history, the need of intelligence and education and social sympathy and understanding become the more imperative if the problems of the times are adequately to be met.

No less challenging, however, than this obligation of creating a new order out of the travail of the present is that of building useful and successful lives. If we are indeed to have a new leisure, man must learn to use that leisure to the best advantage, to build his life richly, abundantly, and happily.—Carl L. Welcht.

A GARDEN SPOT

It is garden-making time in Michigan. For the amount of labor and expense involved we know of no single thing that gives a greater degree of satisfaction in return than an old-fashioned garden. A garden provides useful and healthful labor for the younger members of the household during vacation. A considerable portion of the family living can be obtained from a garden during the summer months. Every family on relief outside the larger cities should have a garden this year. If they have no plot of their own, one should be provided. It will help to bring back much of their self-respect. Or has misapplied political relief destroyed all desire for that? We shall watch with interest for that answer.

After learned discussion of the political trends, the experts seem to think that if the Democrats don't win the 1936 election, the Republicans will.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Matt. 6:31, 33): "Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or Wherewithal shall we be clothed? But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 62): "The divine Mind, which forms the bud and blossom, will care for the human body, even as it clothes the lily; but let no mortal interfere with God's government by thrusting in the laws of erring, human concepts."

TWO CENTS A MILE

Railroads are telling Grand Rapids readers what it will mean to them in dollars nnd cents to travel on their new two-cents-a-mile basis to towns and cities they are necustomed to visit. The Pennsylvania's new fare list, published Monday in The Press, with its $2.93 one-way saving to Chicago, $3.59 less to Mackinaw City, $13.13 less to New York and $11.30 less than formerly to Washington, was not only news but good news to thousands. Similar announcements are expected or already under way from the other railroads serving the city, and the information is pleasantly combined with last week's Pullman notice that there would be 20 to 50 per cent cuts in Pullman charges for various types of accommodations, these reductions including elimination of the surcharge, lower single occupancy rates nnd lower extra ticket charges for compartments aad drawing rooms.

The railroads are facing competition and going after passenger traffic in a thoroughly modern way, both by offering economies and by presenting and widely advertising new conveniences and luxuries. It should be the wish of all who appreciate the lasting importance of the railroads and their purchases in the national economy that these lures to the public will succeed and that the new rates will become permanent. An interesting contemplation is the fact that five, six and seven cent or even larger mileage allowances are now given by many firms and public offices for the nse of employes' cars on long as well as short trips. The railroads' two-cent rates should be a definite attraction to some of this business, not to mention n larger share of tourist travel. More people should be seeing America—and by the comfortable railrond route, now that it is within range of so many more pocketbooks. — Grand Rapids Press.

SPENDING RELIEF MONEY

"A steady job—that's real social hecurity.

"Enlightened employers, I believe, must soon realize that laying men off, turning them loose to shift for themselves when there is no immediate need for their services, does not relieve them entirely of their responsibility for the upkeep of these workers. For the government must take care of them, and when that happens the employer must contribute additional taxes to the government. Somebody must pay, even for the burial of the pauper.

"If private enterprise is unable to furnish sufficient work, government must take up the slack. There is no alternative. Pnying people for doing nothing or for performing unnecessary labor is a ruinous practice. That has been proven by our experience of the last few years. It is a policy which breeds loafers and shirkers, forcing the industrious worker to support the idler.

"Government has a right to demand as much for the money it pays out to welfare clients as private industry does for the money it pays out in wages. When it accepts less, it encourages a certain class to spurn honest labor and to lean supinely upon the public treasury for an allowance which comes pretty close to being a dole. We need things in this state—additions to our hospitals for the insane, an office building, improvements to numerous institutions. If public funds are to he spent for relief, they should be directed into channels that will provide these improvements instead of being doled out for projects that have no lasting value."—Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald in his monthly report to the citizens and taxpayers of Michigan.

EXAMINATIONS THAT EXAMINE

From a recent meeting of the State Civil Service Study Commission in Lansing comes the reassuring word that examinations under the service law now being drnfted will be modern, fair, and strictly practical. It is announced that they are to be generously weighted in favor of experience, that their written portions will relate to actual work to be done in specific positions applied for, and that, for a large number of positions, the examinations will include an oral interview.

The examinations will not be theoretical and general. They will not be based on material learned at school years before an applicant attempts to qualify for a position, and which has long been forgotten. They will not give a wrongful advantage to persons good at "book learning."

No one, from the beginning typist to the highly experienced engineer, who is really qualified for a position with the government, need fear that modern civil service examinations of the type planned for Michigan will consist of a long list of silly, irrelevant questions, keeping the applicant from work he deserves because of failure to answer them.

The only persons who will fear the examinations are those who think that the test for state employment should be connected with spoils politicians rather than ability to do the work.

The essence of modern civil service examinations is practicality, including the elimination of spoils politics. They are examinations that really examine.

FAITH REVIVED

The raw material of human life, I believe, is just as sound and healthy as it was before the depression. We have the same courage and the same heart as men in the olden days. With the proper kind of leadership, with local laboratories for practical guidance of our ideals with faith again that man is master of his destiny in large part, I am sure that we can make the man-power of tomorrow a fit match for the horse-power of our machines. — Ralph W. Sockman, author and commentator.

ONE RELIABLE ANCHOR

When there is taken into consideration the fact that written on the books of the savings hanks in this country are depositors' credits totaling $22,672,000,000, nnd when it is also remembered that a major portion of our people have an exceedingly large stake in the $100,000,000,000 of life insurance now in force in this country, it is not difficult to know why downright inflation measures, such as the recent Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill, stand such little chance of being accepted hy the people.

The value of both bank deposits and life insurance funds depend very largely on a stable currency. When we invest a dollar in either of these, a dollar that will buy ten loaves of bread, we want to make certain that the dollar we get out will buy the same amount of bread. We refuse to accept crusts in return.

As a nation we nre a people who believe in saving, either for a rainy day, or for the time when our families will have lost their breadwinner. As long as we remain such a nation, we shall insist on a stable currency. Inflation is for debtor, not creditor nations.—Grit.

ARE YOU A GENTLEMAN?

Ask the average American if he is a gentleman and the chances are that he will become quite nngry at you.

Certainly he considers himself a gentlemao. He takes off his hat in the presence of ladies, he doesn't cheat while playing cards, he is kind to children and considerate of the aged.

He wouldn't think of crowding in ahead of others waiting in line for tickets to a show, or to buy something at a counter. He wouldn't yell, "Get out of the way!" as he walked by otbers on the street. Certainly he's a gentleman! But—

Do you drive a motor car? Do you try to take advantage of everybody else while driving your car? Do you horn in ahead of other cars waiting in line for traffic to clear? Do you blow your horn instead of using your brakes? Do you take your half of the road in the middle? Do you "bawl out" every pedestrian and driver who fails to give you the right of way? Do you do those dozen and one things that bear the hallmarks of discourtesy and selfishness?

We know it isn't sportsmanlike to do such things, and we more than half suspect that it isn't gentlemanly. So consider this question again:

"Are you a gentleman?"—Grit.

THE SOLID ROCK

Life Insurance Week was celebrated throughout the United States recently. In these critical days no agencies in which people have put their savings have served better than have the many well-established life insurance companies of this country. They have given remarkable service and aid to their policy holders. It was not necessary to set aside a week in their honor, for the public they have served has offered many a little prayer of thankfulness for the soundness of these institutions. It is well, nevertheless, to focus general attention on the value of life insurance as a method of protection and security to the individual and the family, and along with it to cite the good business foundations which underlie practically all the recognized companies now operating.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

What Is High Quality Milk?

High quality milk is the milk normally secreted from the healthy udder of a disease-free cow, produced under sanitary conditions with healthy attendants and cooled and held at 50 degrees F., or below, until consumed. High quality milk is not dirty milk, with dirt strained out; high quality milk never contained dirt or contamination at any time.

The source of pure, wholesome milk is a clean, healthy cow. Unless the cow is tested for bovine tuberculosis regularly and all reactors removed from the herd, safe milk cannot be produced even with the best equipment and methods. Cows having n strong reaction to the blood test for abortion disease should be eliminated from the herd as soon as possible.

Garget also affects the quality and safety of milk. This udder infection most frequently makes its appearnnce in the spring and fall, at which time the udder is thought to be more susceptible to infection because the cow may lie on the cold, damp ground, thus chilling the udder. Milk from cows badly infected with garget should never be mixed with the regular milking but should be kept separate and discarded.

Much milk from clean, healthy cows receives a liberal baptism of dirt from the coat of the cow at the time of milking. This is one of the important sources of contamination. Clip the long hairs from the flanks and udder and so prevent manure and bedding from adhering loosely to the udder. Prevent dirt from falling into the milk pail by brushing the flanks and by wiping the udder with a clean damp cloth previous to milking. Another aid is to use a hooded milk pail.

The cleanliness of the barn often reflects the cleanliness of milk production. The barn should be well lighted and ventilated to carry off stable and cow odors. Such odors are readily absorbed by milk. The manure should be removed daily to a sufficient distance from the barn so that odors will not drift back into the milk room. A tight ceiling will prevent chaff and dust from sifting down and contaminating the air and milking.

The quality of milk is often determined by the number of bacteria which it contains. The unit of measurement is the cubic centimeter (about 20 drops). Market milk cannot be produced entirely free from bacteria, although the number normally present in milk as it is drawn from the udder is insignificant in comparison with the number of bacteria found per cubic centimeter in milk several hours later. The bacterial count furnishes a crude index to three things, namely:

1. The cleanlinesa of production.
2. Temperature at which the milk is cooled.
3. The age of tbe milk.

USE MERIT SYSTEM ON STATE'S RELIEF

New Plan for Welfare Personnel Is Effective July 1st

The State Emergency Welfare Relief Commission has set up a statewide merit system establishing principles of civil service for all employes of the state and county relief commissions.

Dr. William Haber, relief administratof, said "this plan will operate until such time as the state may create a civil service commission and all employes will be selected on basis of merit, as evidenced by appropriate examinations, experience and training."

Under a revised plan effective July 1, the membership of the county relief commission will be composed of:

The chairman of the county board of supervisors, or a supervisor selected by him to serve in his place; chairman of the present county emergency relief commission, except in cases where he is a county official; and a third member to be recommended by the county board of supervisors for appointment by the state relief commission.

"The state commission is hopeful that this revision of the membership of the county relief commissions will secure greater puhlic support, understanding and interest in the administration of relief," the report to the governor said.

WISE GARDENER USES CALENDAR

Schedule Suggested for Winter Storage and Succession in Summer

Schedules for planting in small and large gardens can be extended as far through the summer as late in August, suggests H. L. Seaton, Instructor in vegetable gardening at Michigan State College. Not only will a succession of crops keep the table supplied, but canning and winter storage supplies will be part of the harvest.

After the first plantings of string beans and sweet corn have a start, successive patches can be put in every two weeks until July 15. For late cabbage, cauliflower and Brussel sprouts, set the plants from June 15 to July 1.

"The right quantity of vegetables to plant depends upon the size of the family, preferences for certain vegetables and a guess as to what the soil and weather will produce as a reward for the garden work," says Seaton.

"Usually about 100 cabbage plants of a good storage variety is sufficient. For beets and turnips for winter storage, about 150 feet broadcast about August 1 to 15 after early crops are harvested is enough. A good storing variety of carrots should be sown in 300 feet in rows before June 15. Late spinach, radishes and lettuce can be put in August 10 to 20 to catch cooler weather."

At the time the cabbage plants go in late this month, two or three dozen cauliflower plants and one to two dozen plants of the Brussel sprouts can be transplanted, while Chinese cabbage can be sown directly in the garden plot.

POPULAR BAND ENGAGED AT MOONLIGHT GARDENS

Floyd Cortade's Orchestra to Open There Saturday Night

Mrs. Della Jeffery, owner and operator of Moonlight Gardens, popular local entertainment place, has announced the engagement of Floyd Cortade's orchestra, one of the most popular in Western Michigan, for the summer season.

The band will play Wednesday and Saturday nights until further notice. The organization comes from Traverse City, and is very popular in that district.

Another feature proving popular at Moonlight Gardens is the Thursday evening old-time dancing parties, Elmo Helms' orchestra furnishes the music.

An orchestra Saturday night at Moonlight failed to appear, due to a motor accident in which four members were injured while en route here.

LIVESTOCK PAID BEST LAST YEAR

Records Kept Indicate Advantage in 1935 Over Other Farming Types

Operators of 66 Michigan livestock farms who kept records of their income and expenses in 1935 as cooperators with the farm management extension project at Michigan State College, find that their type of farming gave returns last yenr that put them at an advantage over more than a dozen other types of farming in the state because of their larger volume of business, low feed costs and increased meat prices, according to C. O. May, extension specialist.

From 1934 to 1935 the change in livestock priees, partieularly meat nnimals, was greatcr than in any year since 1910. In 1934 meat animal prices were only 68 per cent of 1910-1914, while in 1935 they averaged 118 per cent, or a 73 per cent increase over 1934.

In the opinion of Mr. May, it would he unwise to make drastic changes in order to participate in the advantages that livestock farmers enjoyed in 1935. "This is especially true since a downward trend in prices for livestock will most likely begin in a relatively short time, and this is particularly true for hogs.

"The operators of the 66 farms represented in this report averaged earnings of $1,566 for their labor and management. This figure represents what the operator had left for his labor and management after paying all cash operating expenses, allowing for depreciation and other inventory losses, a charge for family labor other than the operator and a deduction of five per cent interest on the total investment."

D.A.C. CRUISERS ENJOYED LOCAL VISIT

DETROITERS EXPRESS THANKS FOR ENTERTAINMENT

Program Outlined for Detroit Athletic Club Members on Friday Was a Fioa Success

If tho enthusiasm shown and expressions of appreciation may be taken as an indication, members of tho Detroit Athletic Club and their families enjoyed their half-duy visit here last Friday.

While the list of 364 reservations on the Str. South American dwindled to 125 actual excursionists, this faet did not dampen Charlevoix's efforts toward entertainment of the visitors. Several factors entered into making the number of visitors small. The Detroit Chamber of Commerce cruise to Isle Royale, n stag affair, left the same day and hour and took many Athletie Club members. Cold weather proved another damper, also graduation in Detroit schools and the Republicun convention at Cleveland.

Those who did attend promise a larger crowd another year and the following cablegram sent from the South American and telephoned from Rogers City to Harold Hallett, president of the Board of Commerce, is but one of many such expressions. The cablegram read: "The D. A. C. cruisers thank you und your fair city for all courtesies extended."

The progrum previously outlined went forward without a hitch and in its entirety. Coast Guards escorted the excursion ship into the harbor and Lake Charlevoix and return to the dock where more than sufficient automobiles were present to accommodate the sight-seers. The combined city and school bands played several fine selections and were enthusiastically applauded.

The golf tournament at the Belvedere Golf Club resulted in Robert V. Hackett winning low net prize with a score of 70. Second prizes in a tie went to Ralph E. Routier and Dr. L. J. Foster. Dr. A. P. Wilkinson won low gross prize and Robert Hackett fourth with a low total on par three holes.

Mrs. W. T. Skrzycki won the prize at bridge at the Belvedere clubhouse.

Others of the visitors went Mackinaw fishing in Lake Michigan, and some played tennis at the school courts.

Through the means of the Courier, the Board of Commerce extends its thanks to the citizens of Charlevoix for their splendid help and courtesy shown the Detroit Athletic Club members, who previously had expressed their personal appreciation of such efforts. Appreciation is also expressed to the Belvedere Golf Club for extending the use of its course to the visitors.

Such fine cooperative efforts can result in no other end thun successful resort promotion.

MRS. EDWARD STEWART DIED LAST THURSDAY

Funeral for Well Known Local Woman Was Held Saturday

Charlevoix lost a beloved and highly respected woman Thursday in the death of Mrs. Edward Stewart, who auccumbed at her home on South Bridge street following a stroke of paralysis.

Mr. Dutcher died in 1916. On May 27, 1919, she married Edward A. Stewart, of this city. Mrs. Stewart had been a resident of this city many years and was active in religious work.

SUPERVISORS IN SESSION HERE ON MONDAY

Annual Meeting for Equalization; Name Relief Commission Members

The Charlevoix county bourd of supervisors will convene at the court house here on Monday, June 22, for their annual session on equalization of property valuations.

One of the important items to come before the meeting will be the naming of a member of the board to act on the County Welfare Commission in accordance with the new state set-up. The board chairman automatically becomes a member of the welfare body, but in case he does not serve, another is appointed in his place. The board also recommends a third member for appointment by the state relief commission.

The supervisors' meeting will be followed by a session of the county tax commission for final allocation of the 15 mill tax. The tentative allocation provides nine mills for county, an average of four mills for schools, and two mills for townships.

KNIGHT'S INDIES LOST CLOSE BALL GAME SUNDAY

The Knight's Charlevoix Indies dropped a close softball game at south side athletic field Sunday to the Fochtman Men's Store of Petoskey by a 2 to 1 score. The game, played with a 12-inch soft ball, was fast and exciting.

PLAN ENTERTAINMENT FOR TRADERS

GRAND RAPIDS WHOLESALERS HERE ON JUNE 24TH

Belvedere Hotel Opens for Accommodation of Visitors—Banquet to Be Held at Mont's Cafe

Charlevoix is preparing a hearty reception for Grand Rapids wholesalers when they arrive here Wednesday afternoon, June 24, for the second of two over-night stops on their annual Northern Michigan tour.

The pilgrimage, sponsored by the Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce, will include between 75 and 100 members. While Charlevoix has been a scheduled stop in previous years, this year's visit will mark the first over-night stay and was arranged through efforts of the Board of Commerce.

Inasmuch as the arrival of the tour has been set at 5 o'clock instead of early afternoon as originally intended, plans for golf, tennis and fishing outlined by the Board of Commerce have been necessarily changed. The visitors will be accommodated for the night at the Belvedere Hotel, which will open earlier than anticipated to care for them.

Charlevoix's principal entertainment feature will be a banquet to be served the evening of June 24 at Mont's Cafe. Harold Hallett, president of the Board of Commerce, will be toastmaster. The visitors will be welcomed by Mayor Arthur Bergeon and other local business men will give short talks. Reservations are now being taken for the banquet and may be arranged at the information bureau.

The tour will leave Charlevoix at around 8 o'clock Thursday morning after spending a short time with local merchants. Other stops southbound will include Traverse City and other principal cities along US-31.

COUNCIL REDUCES CITY WATER RATE

ELIMINATE SEWAGE CHARGE ON WATER BILLS

Reappointment of City Officials by Mayor Bergeon Confirmed by the Council

Charlevoix residents will pay a reduced water rate during the 1936-37 fiscal year as n result of action taken by the city council.

The new rate, effective June 11, eliminates the sewage charge now included as a separate item on the water hills of patrons. The new schedule adopted is as follows: 25 cents per 1000 up to 100,000 and 15 cents per 1000 gallons for all over 100,000 gallons. A minimum charge of $1.50 is set per quarter. Dates of payment are on or before the 20th of January, April, July and October.

Provision is made for a minimum charge of $1 per month for short term consumers at the option of the city, also for a minimum charge of $2.50 per month for consumers located outside the city limits. In cases where the city has not installed a water meter, the rate per quarter is $1.50 and rate por month $1 within the city limits; outside the city limits the rate is set at $2.50 per month. In the case of consumers outside the city limits, the resolution provides for a deposit to insure payment.

Tho new schedule reduces the water rate from 30 cents per 1000 gallons to 25 cents, u reduction of 11 cents. In making the cut, the council took into consideration the fact that citizens might neglect lawns during the summer because of the high water charge.

The reappointment of three city officials by Mayor Bergeon was confirmed by the council. Rollie L. Lewis was named city attorney for another year, Dr. R. B. Armstrong as city health officer, and Robert F. Sloan as city engineer. D. J. Eckinger's appointment to succeed William Bellinger as harbor master was approved, ulso the reappointment of William H. Wallace as member of the cemetery board for a term of five years.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX OPENS ON JUNE 28

BEST SEASON IN HISTORY IS IN PROSPECT

Lewis C. Reimann, Director, Announces Program and Staff for 1936 Summer Season

Camp Charlevoix, a character camp for boys between seven and 18, will open its tenth season at its location on Oyster Bay, Lake Charlevoix, with 90 boys and n staff of 26 adults on Sunday, June 28.

According to Lewis C. Reimann, the owner and director of Ann Arbor, this will be the largest season in the history of the camp. The camp draws boys from many states and some foreign countries. This season two boys from Batavia, Java, the sons of an American family in the employ of the Dutch Petroleum Verkoop, will attend the camp during the latter part of July and August. A few years ago un American boy from Barcelona, Spain, attended the camp before entering a private school in the States. This season the two sons of Dr. Jean Piccard, the stratosphere explorer, will again be members.

A staff of mature, skilled college men will again train the boys in all athletics, horseback riding, rifle shooting, dramatics, handicraft, sailing, boating and canoeing, music, nature collections, astronomy and campcraft.

Among the well-known men on the staff are Dr. Earle S. Oldham, who will be the camp physician and director of activities; Herman Everhardus, former All-American halfback ut the University of Michigan and now backfield coach nt Penn State College; "Tad" Wieman, head line coach at Princeton University; Kenneth W. Smith, music director at Detroit University School and now associate director of Camp Charlevoix, and many other well-known experts in boys' activities.

The camp is located off the Charlevoix-Boyne City road; six miles from Charlevoix, and is comprised of 157 acres, 24 log buildings, complete athletic equipment, three sailboats, a fleet of canoes and rowboats, handicraft shop, modern sanitury facilities, artosian well, showers, large vegetable garden and all the facilities of a modern camp. It is recognized as "the best equipped camp in the middle west and one of the finest in America."

New boys will be accepted in the camp beginning June 28. "Day Campers" will be enrolled for the day-time activities. Visitors are welcomed at the camp at any time.

STEELHEAD FISHING IS BEST IN YEARS

Lake Charlevoix Producing Excellent Catches of Gamey Trout

Judging from the catches brought in the past few days, the largest steelhead "run" experienced here in several years is now under way.

A party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Young, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Springer and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Usher, of Grand Rapids, brought in seven ranging from two and one-half to four and one-half pounds to the Charlevoix Trolling Camp on Sunday. The same day Bernie Ward landed four nice ones, and Monday the record catch of the season was taken by Milo Todd and Dewey Ewing, the latter of Chicago. The party took eight steelhead, ranging from two and one-half to five pounds each. Many smaller catches were made on theso days.

Trolling for Mackinaw trout is attracting many to Lake Michigan. While the catches have been small in number they have been numerous, and the fact that tha fish are still being taken from deep water indicates the Mackinaws are not yet on the shoals and the fishing far from its peak. Low temperature of the water is the main factor accountable for the late season on Mackinaws.

BOWLING ALLEY TO OPEN ON SUNDAYS

New Schedule of Operation Becomes Effective on June 21

L. J. Hansen, manager, has announced that the Charlevoix Bowling Alleys will open on Sundays, starting June 21.

The Sunday hours will be from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until such an hour as patronage demands, and the Sunday opening will be continued as long as a demand exists. There has been no increase in rates.

The bowling alleys continue as one of the city's most popular amusement places.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Potatoes are expensive but many other vegetables are plentiful and cheap. Beets, carrots, onions, kohlrabi and white turnips are good substitutes for potatoes or rice, macaroni, spaghetti and noodles may take their place. Bread also makes a good, inexpensive filler.

Tomatoes, cucumbers, green peppers and the various salad greens are cheap and we are in the season when salads are especially popular.

Beef, pork and veal are all somewhat lower, lamb is in the potato class or almost prohibitive and smoked meats are higher. Butter and eggs are both a little higher. Small and medium whole fish are plentiful and low in price.

Here are three menus planned for different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner
Beef Balls with Spaghetti
Buttered Spinach
Bread and Butter
Cup Custards
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner
Baked Half Ham Creamed Onions
Green Beans
Bread and Butter
Pineapple Bavarian
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner
Melon Cup
Roast Stuffed Chicken
Creamed Onions Green Beans
Tomato, Cucumber and Green Pepper Salad
Rolls and Butter
Pineapple Sherbet Sponge Cake
Coffee (hot or iced)

DEPARTMENT OF STATE NEWS BULLETIN

State Has Trouble Giving Back $10,000

In 1934, the State Legislature reduced the cost of passenger automobile license plates from 55 cents to 35 cents per hundred pounds. A refund was immediately in order for the many thousands of car owners who bought their 1934 plates at the higher rate. Checks were accordingly mailed out to all entitled to refunds, to the addresses given when they purchased their plates.

Envelopes containing the checks came back "unclaimed," by the mail sack full, indicated that the addresses given were wrong, or that the people addressed had moved without leaving forwarding addresses. In 1935, when car owners bought their new license plates, hundreds noticed the cost was less, inquired about it and claimed their refund checks. But not in months have claims in any number been made for the refund checks which are in a special filing cabinet. There are about 2,000 of them and they average $5 each.

The checks will always be "good." As a matter of actual practice, there is no statute of limitations applicable too checks written by the Treasurer of Michigan, on warrants of the Auditor General. Rebate and refund checks 10 and 12 years old are returned, cashed, to the Department of State, from time to time.

There are from 75 to 100 checks in payment of Michigan's 1921 "soldiers' bonus" which have never been claimed. They were returned by postal authorities to the office of the State Treasurer, many years ago, and will be paid promptly to anyone proving claim to any of them.

The mystery of checks never claimed and others claimed but apparently never cashed, is an unfailing one at the state capitol.

GENERAL FISHING SEASON OPENS JUNE 25TH

Bass, Small Pan Fish May Be Taken from State's Inland Lakes

One of the oldest of popular pastimes, the "art" of sport fishing, will get under way in Michigan June 25 to furnish enjoyment and recreation to fully one million persons in this state before the first cold winds of fall.

The opening of black bass and bluegill season in Michigan Thursday, June 25, will make accessible to all licensed fishermen approximately 5,000 inland lakes on which the season has been closed by law for the protection of the species mentioned during their spawning periods.

The season also opens on sunfish and warmouth bass. In fact, after June 25, every species of game fish in Michigan waters — except sturgeon and grayling—may be taken by the angler.

DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT BULLETIN

Running Water Is Not Always Pure

With a persistence which entitles it front rank hygienic fallacies, the idea has long clung to the popular mind that running water, if not always pure, will at least purify itself "in a dozen miles or so."

Popular opinion to the contrary, running waters are by no means always pure. By the expression "running water," is meant any water which flows freely, as that in brooks or streams. Neither is it safe to consider that running waters will purify themselves by flowing for "a dozen miles or so," as is often heard. Disastrous consequences to the health of the individual or of the community hava frequently followed when this erroneous principle has been applied to the selection of a water supply. As a matter of fact, as will presently be shown, running waters may actually be more dangerous to health than slow-running bodies of water.

Briefly, it may be stated that a stream contaminated with sewage and other organic wastes does eventually rid itself of such pollution if allowed free access to air. As a result of more recent scientific investigations, it is now very generally believed that 'the self-purification' of streams is essentially a biological process. In broad outline, it appears that the addition of organic matters to a stream first leads tu the development of lnrge numbers of bacteria. These bacteria feed on the polluting material and so accomplish its primary decomposition. If oxygen is present, this decomposition will not produce nny offensive odors.

It is not to be supposed that all of these bacteria are of hatmful varieties. Many of them are, in reality, useful workers whose only function is to destroy organic matter by using it as a source of food. It is not to be forgotten, however, that such dangerous organisms as the germs of cholera, typhoid fever, and dysentery may also be found along with these harmless or even useful varieties of bacteria.

Nature, however, has provided many checks against the unlimited growth of bacteria of all kinds. In particular, with increasing bacterial counts, certain organisms arise which feed preferentially on bacteria, thereby limiting their numbers. Such appears to be Nature's method of disposing of polluting material in water, providing that oxygen is present. In the absence of this important element, the decomposition of the organic matter will nevertheless occur. In this case, however, offensive odors will arise which serve as n warning that the water.is polluted.

Owing to the fact that running water has a greater contnct with the atmosphere thnn has a still or slowly-moving body of water, there is less likelihood that such a water will decompose offensively. In either case, however, it is to be bnrne in mind that disease-producing bacteria may be present; and it must be remembered that it is the bacteria themselves which are dangerous and not the odors which they produce when oxygen is absent.

Extensive experiments by the United States Public Health Service have definitely established the fnct that the rate at which a water is purified under natural conditians is exceedingly slow. Thus, in an experiment with the Ohio River water, oxygen continued ta be used up for fully 300 days. In the same experiment, bacteria of intestinal varieties persisted for almost that length of time. Even in the absence of intervening pollution, therefore, it would be necessary to allow for a stream flow of several hundred miles before a water, once polluted, could again become safe for drinking purposes.

Irrespective of distance from the nearest upstream point of known pollution, it may be safely stated that no river in the United States can now be regarded as hygienically safe without treatment by experts in water purification. Conversely, the possibility that a water polluted with human wastes might become fully purified by flowing for a "dozen miles or so" becomes too remote for serious consideration. Such a water, if clear and sparkling from contact with air, may actually be a grenter menace to health than the stagnant pool which, quite naturally, would be avoided as a source of drinking water.

Davis Shows Up New Farm Plan

Tries to Retract Views on Markets for U. S. Farm Products in Europe.

Newark, N. J.—Chester C. Davis, agricultural adjustment administrator of the New Deal, almost succeeded in covering up a statement by him which laid wide open the fallacy of the new soil erosion measure conjured up to take the place of the unconstitutional AAA. Almost—but not quite.

Davis' statement, which was issued from Berlin while he was on his six-weeks' agricultural survey of 11 European nations, claimed that there was little hope for a revived European market for American farm products. It was understood that administration forces attempted to recall it from newspapers to which it had been issued, but one, a daily in Newark, printed it and let the cat out of the bag.

For the Davis statement, it developed, was inimical to the reciprocal treaty policies of President Roosevelt and to the new erosion control program, in which much stress is placed upon the necessity of developing foreign markets for American farm products.

"All aver Europe," read the suppressed statement, "there is bad news for the American farmer and exporter who hopes to regain the great market he enjoyed in this part of the world a decade ago.

"Under the rising surge of nationalism and the continued threat of war, with the possibility of food supplies choked off by blockade, the leading countries in western Europe are striving to become self-sufficient and, as far as possible, to produce their own foodstuffs . . .

"I am concerned with what these changes mean to the American farmer. We plowed up 50,000,000 acres to grow wheat and meat for Europe from 1914 to 1919. They will not be needed to the same extent for that purpose again.

"I see no sense wasting our soil resources and great national heritage of productive and fertile soil to produce for a market which we cannot have because of circumstaaces far beyond our control. Nearly every country we have visited has supplemented its tariffs by import quotas on some commodities. Some nations have put in effect rigid exchange-control systems which put the goverament in charge of every item of foreign trade. Germaay is a notable example. Some countries have invoked outright embargoes."

U. S. Imports Exceed Exports for First Time

Washington.—Since January, America has been buying more goods and products from abroad than it has sold in foreign countries, according to estimates of experts in the United States department of commerce.

Imports, encouraged by the free trade trenties of the administratioa, hnve increased each year since 1933, uatil they now exceed the natioa's exports. Imports for the first four moaths of 1936 totaled $781,000,000, greater by $12,414,000 than exports.

Uncle Sam's Big Payroll

Washingtoa.—Thirty-eight cents out of every dollar collected in taxes now goes to pay goverament officials, tha National Civil Service Reform league estimates. Wages of more than 200,000 employees have been added to the taxpayers' load by New Deal bureaus.

A Reel Installment Plan

Washington.—Paying at the rate of a million dollars a day, it would take more than 37 years to reduce the Uaited States national debt as much as the Roosevelt administrstioa has increased it—that is, if no intereat had to be paid.

THE CRACKER BARREL

It took Zioncheck to bring the last letter of the alphabet into the circus ring of political clowning.

Of Roosevelt it may truly be said that, all in tha name of recovery, he gave this nation "tha bird" and now is giving it "the works."

One of the troubles with Roosevelt is that he has gone too Farley!

ADVERTISING CONSCIENCE

If he hooks the word "conscious" to a noun with a hyphen between, you can be sure of his business. Ten-to-one, he's an advertising man. It's his job to make us refrigeration-conscious, cosmetic-conscious, auto-conscious, and he just naturally talks that way, too.

Advertising men only occasionally use a first cousin of this word—conscience—but a social conscience is beginning to stir their advertising thees days nevertheless. Organized advertising first declared that it had a conscience eight or ten years ago when it launched a campaign for "Truth in Advertising" which used that very slogan. But Truth-with-a-capital T is pretty abstract, hard to apply to concrete things.

Advertising conscientiousness is expressing itself in more practical ways now. Several campaigns are under way which actually seem designed to reduce the consumption of the goods advertised. An oil company offers to show you how — by driving more slowly—you can reduce your gas and oil mileage. An auto manufacturer has just lent the city a squad of safety cars equipped with loud speakers to warn the public of dangerous driving and walking. Even a whisky company is carrying on propaganda against the excessive use of its own liquor.

THE ARGONNE POPULAR AS A SOCIAL CENTER

Facilities Enlarged to Handle Dinner Parties at Any Time

Judging from the numerous dinner parties and social functions being held at The Argonne, this place is gaining in popularity other than for its entertainment.

Residents of this region apparently have "found" The Argonne for its famous chicken dinners and excellent food. Willis J. Kerns, manager, has announced that, in view of the demand, facilities have been prepared to handle such parties upon reservation.

The Singing Aces, who opened a season's engagement at The Argonne a couple weeks ago, continue to prove popular with patrons of the place.

CARE PREVENTS FOOD POISONING

Michigan State College Explains Care of Foods

Food poisoning during the summer is very often caused by improper refrigeration or lack of other protection of foods, in the opinion of extension workers in home economics at Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Church suppers, picnics and fairs take their toll every summer because of carelessness. An example is in handling sandwiches stacked in warm places permitting the growth of harmful bacteria.

"Moist or soft cooked food should be kept in a refrigerator, or where no refrigerator is available, the food should be recooked before serving, even if it shows no sign of spoilage," they say. "Food should never be exposed for more than a few hours to a temperature above 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

"Investigations of the U. S. Food and Drug administration show that carelessness is responsible for practically all the food poisoning cases studied."

Extension workers recommend that food should be kept free from dirt, insects and other carriers of micro-organisms; cooked food should be served as soon as possible after preparation; food with an unusual smell or appearance should never be esten; and extreme care should always be taken in handling household insecticides in the kitchen and pantry.

CHEW-COOK WEDDING SOLEMNIZED SATURDAY

Local Young Couple Home Following Marriage at Carson City

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Saturday afternoon, June 13, at the Methodist parsonage in Carson City, when Miss Ellen Cook was united in marriage to Galo Chew.

Rev. J. E. Loekyer, former pastor of the local Methodist church, performed the ceremony. The couple were attended by Miss Pauline Rodgers, of Albion, and Otis Rupright, of Crystal, a former pupil of Mr. Chew's at Carson City.

Mr. and Mrs. Chew are local young people. Mrs. Chew was a member of the teaching staff of Charlevoix public schools, and Mr. Chew a teacher formerly at Carson City and now at Alma.

After spending the summer in Charlevoix, the couple will take up their residence in Alma.

ADD MORE FERRIES ON STRAITS RUN JUNE 20

Schedule for All Boats Put Ahead Due to Heavy Traffic

The complete fleet of three state-owned ferry boats will begin operation on the Straits of Mackinac June 20 instead of July 1 as in past years, it was announced today by Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner.

The 10-day advance in the schedule was ordered because of a heavy increase in tourist traffic this year. Records of traffic at the Straits during May showed a 25 per cent gain in the number of automobiles, a 20 per cent increase in passenger trade and 26 per cent larger receipts than for the same months last year. The three boats will remain in operation until September 10.

FARM PRICES TOP AVERAGE IN U. S.

College Ecoomist Points Out Trends to Michigan Farmers

Michigan potato and bean prices rose while general livestock prices fell for the 30 days ending May 15, according to R. V. Gunn, senior extension specialist in economics, at Michigan State College, East Lansing. The index of Michigan farm prices dropped from 106 to 105 for the period ending May 15, he says. It is still two points higher than the nation's average, as estimated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Beans showed a gain of 18 cents a bushel over the preceding months as they brought an average price of $1.41. Potatoes brought 70 cents a bushel for a five cent gain over the preceding period and a 20 cent increase from the beginning of the year.

Michigan livestock prices brought an average of $6.20 per hundredweight, which was lower than prices in other mid-western states. Mr. Gunn believes that Michigan farmers get lower prices because they sell many dairy cows and calves for beef purposes. Many mid-western states sell only high-grade beef stock.

Hogs showed a drop of 70 cents per hundredweight for the lowest price since January. Sheep and lamb prices rose slightly to offset declines of two previous periods. Sheep brought $3.80 and lambs $9.

Mr. Gunn states that present sugar price trends and tariff possibilities increase the likelihood of better sugar beet prices. The curve of the price of sugar this spring has been higher than seasonal.

FOUNDATION PLANTING

The eleventh of a series of articles on improving the home grounds by Ray Faulkner and Edwin Ziegfeld.

EVERGREENS IN HOME PLANTING

Evergreens always make a contrasting note in a garden or a landscape. In the spring they stand out darkly against the soft light greens of new deciduous foliage. In the fall they appear dark and somber against the brilliant fall colors. We appreciate them most, perhaps, in the winter when they appear green and alive in the world which otherwise seems to be dead and desolate.

There is perhaps no group of plants over which the people spend more time, worry, and money than evergreens. Their initial cost is high and all too frequently they fall to adapt themhelves to the location in which we put them and after a few years of a rather sickly existence, slowly die. Along with this situation exists the fact that perhaps no group of plants have been more poorly used than evergreens. We find people planting Spruce and Hemlock trees in foundation plantings or trying to combine evergreens of striking color or habit that should not be used together. With evergreens as with other plant materials we find that they naturally occur in groups of various sizes. If we use evergreens the right size and in the right place the problems of the eventual effect is minimized.

Uses—Since an evergreen contrasts so definitely with all deciduous plants around it and since all evergreens have rather striking shapes great care must be exercised in their use. One evergreen tree makes a splendid accent in a lawn or in a shrubbery border. Three or four evergreens in a small area unless definitely combined give a spotty effect.

All evergreens are very individual and few of them combine well. They are generally most effective when used singly or in small numbers. Pyramidal evergreens on either side of a doorway are splendid accents. When surrounded by other equally interesting evergreens the effectiveness of this accent is lost.

Besides being effective plants to use at doorways evergreens can be used to good advantage at other important points such as gate-ways, steps, pools or as regular accents in a flower border. In planting any evergreens never use those varieties which become very large trees where only small plants are required. It is difficult if not impossible to keep down evergreens which were meant to become large trees and their use in this manner is just as absurd as if we used maple and elm trees for shrubbery.

There are a great many variations in the color of foliage in evergreen varieties and you can purchase ones with blue, yellow, and gray-green foliage. While many of these varieties can be excellently used, one must be careful to always place those plants with unusual characteristics at those points where they show off to the best advantage, and where they do not detract from other plants, whose character and location indicate that they are the more important.

Transplanting—It is best to move all evergreens in the very early spring before any growth has started. The next best time is during the middle of August before they make their fall growth. If a good ball of earth is dug with them they can be moved with relative safety at any time.

Pruning evergreens is somewhat of a different matter than the pruning of deciduous shrubs. By removing the end buds in the early spring on Fir, Spruce, and Pines they will develop a come compact habit of growth than they would otherwise. When such pruning is done pick out the bud with the pen knife or the finger nail, but do not cut the branch back too far. Arborvitaes and Junipers are frequently sheared to give them a more symmetrical shape and a denser texture. In this case too the branches are not sheared too far back.

As with deciduous plants the number of evergreens which will grow here is limited so more care than ordinary must be used in order to achieve a successful effect. There are six large groups of evergreens all of which are easy to tell from one another. Pines, Spruces, Firs, and Hemlocks all have slender needles. The Pine can easily be recognized by the long slender needles. Those on the Spruce trees are short, stiff, and harsh to the touch. Fir needles are flat and soft and similar to those on the Hemlocks only longer and broader. Arborvitaes and Junipers both have flat needles which overlap each other very much like plates on a coat-of-mail. It is easier to tell Arborvitaes and Junipers apart by the general character of the plant than by a close examination of the needles. This indeed is true of all plants. Their general effect when they are growing is of much greater importance than any detailed analysis of their leaf characteristics.

Large Evergreen Trees—There are several excellent Pines which are exceedingly useful in this part of the country. The White Pine—(Pinus strobus), originally covered a great deal of this part of the country. Ruthless timbering has almost made the White Pine extinct and strangely enough it has not taken kindly to replanting. The White Pine is, however, one of our handsomest trees and is distinguishable by the distinct horizontal effect, and the soft texture which its branches give. The Red Pine—(Pinus resinosa) also called the Norway Pine, while not so distinctive looking as the White Pine is in many ways more dependable. It is coarser and heavier in effect.

The Scotch Pine—(Pinus sylvestris) is an importation from Europe. It is a smaller growing tree, and much more spreading in habit. It is very hardy, grows best in acid or poor sandy soil and is very resistant to cold, drought, and dry winds. These characteristics have made it an invaluable tree for many plantings. It is easy to recognize by the distinct salmon color which occurs on all the branches.

Of the many Spruce trees, the White Spruce (Picea canadensis) often called the Black Hill Spruce is perhaps the most useful. Most of our Christmas trees are White Spruce and is used a great deal for wind breaks because of its extreme hardiness. A more distinctive garden type is the Colorado Spruce—(Picea pungens). Varieties of this, the Colorado Blue Spruce and Koster's Blue Spruce are well-known to everybody. Blue Spruces have frequently been poorly used but they do make a very unusual accent. All Spruce trees give a stiff rigid effect, since they are very formal and symmetrical in shape. They become rather tall, so they should never bo used, as they so often are, in foundation plantings.

The best Fir tree for garden use is the White Fir—(Abies concolor). This is an extremely handsome evergreen. The foliage is a soft gray-green in color and gives a horizontal stratified appearance to the compact pyramidal tree. The White Fir is a rapid grower and tolerates heat and drought. It does not do well in wet places.

Small Evergreenh—The following are a group of small evergreens which are useful in foundation plantings and as accents in other parts of the garden.

Junipers are perhaps the most widely varied group and plant breeders and collectors have succeeded in bringing us an amazing array of shapes, colors, and sizes. The common Red cedar—(Juniperus virginiana) is a native which has been improved by horticulturists. They have made it more compact and a lower growing plant. It has a pyramidal form, slender branches, and grows best in poor sandy soils. Its effectiveness can often be increased by an occasional pruning which makes it more compact. It is very hardy and does not winter burn as easily as the Arborvitae. It is possible to get it in a variety of colors and textures.

The Pfitzer Juniper—(Juniperus chinensis pfitzeriana) is one of the most useful of all low evergreens. It is spreading in habit, and has an extremely irregular outline and effect, which makes it an invaluable plant to use in combining other evergreens. It is possible to buy it both in upright and spreading varieties.

Somewhat similar to that is the Savin Juniper — (Juniperus sabina), which also has an irregular broad spreading habit. It is not so useful, however, as the Pfitzer Juniper.

There are over one hundred varieties of the American Arborvitae on the market and only an expert can tell some of them apart. There are several well defined types, however. The Arborvitae found growing naturally is very serviceable but can be made more dense and compact by shearing. The pyramidal form is more definitely columnar than the type. There are several small globe varieties which are obtainable as well as varieties with yellow, golden and variegated foliage. Arborvitaes are apt to turn brown in our winters, but in spite of this disadvantage they are still one of our most serviceable evergreens.

We have all read in stories about the Yew trees of England and the Christmas Yule logs which were cut from these trees. Yews are great favorites in English gardens where they frequently attain great size, but the English Yew is not hardy here. The Japanese Yew can be made to grow if placed in a sheltered area. It has short needles very much like a hemlock which are a rich dark green in color, and is irregular in habit. It is possible to obtain it in both the upright and spreading forms. The Yew makes excellent accents in gardens either free growing or clipped.

Canning Club Leaders Hold Important Conference

Last Wednesday night the recently selected canning club leaders and food preparation group leaders met with Miss Olga Bird, assistant state club leader, and Orville Walker, district club leader, and discussed in detail the summer club program.

Miss Bird spent considerable time in interpreting the requirements of the various projects and the proper procedure to follow through the various phases of the program. It is expected that there will be around 10 clubs organized for this year.

Already plans are being formulated for a county round-up to be held the latter part of July, at which time the judging and demonstration elimination contests will be held. It will be an all day affair and all club members are to be invited as well as their parents and friends. The summer exhibit will probably be held in connection with the annual Labor Day picnic.

Township Maps Finished by Soil Conservation Committeemen

The Soil Conservation program is making suitable progress. Already all of the township committeemen have met with G. C. Ferris, chief clerk, and okayed their work sheets. At the same time each township committee completed the township maps which has been a rather big job. Each work sheet had to be plotted on the map and a number placed within the farm area.

In one of the past issues of this paper mention was made of the fact that plowing down sweet clover or alfalfa from last year did not earn a soil building payment. However, following this plowing down the land may be sown to a fall cereal such as wheat or rye to be harvested in 1937, and not change the status of the soil diversion payment. The big thing is, following sweet clover or alfalfa turned under, that a soil depletion crop is not harvested the same year.

The work for the rest of the month will be devoted to listing the townships and in tabulating the necessary data from this. It is hoped that by the end of this month that the first phase of the activity will have been completed as per the directions.

INDEPENDENCE CELEBRATION AT PETOSKEY

Details of Big Three-Day Event Are Being Arranged

Petoskey will be the drawing center for Northern Michigan residents and visitors for the three days, July 3, 4 and 5, during which time local merchants will stage a huge Independence Day celebration.

Tentative plans call for the grand opening on Friday afternoon with a boys' distance bicycle race, followed by a public wedding. The evening program would include a band concert by the Petoskey City Band and a softball game.

Saturday, July 4, the day's activities will open at 8 with an aerial bomb salute. A soap box auto derby and Grange picnic will complete the morning.

It is planned to have the Petoskey City Band initiate the afternoon events, followed by races, contests and daylight fireworks, softball games, amateur contests, skeet shoot and concert by the Charlevoix City Band.

A mass band concert of Charlevoix and Petoskey city bands, open air dance on the Petoskey Municipal Tennis Courts and fireworks will complete the evening.

The last day will be given over to fly casting, a skeet shoot, softball and possibly a baseball game.

AT THE MOVIES

Child's Lie Mars Three Lives

How one vicious lie almost wrecked the lives of three innocent people is the powerful dramatic theme of "These Three," Samuel Goldwyn's latest production which brings Miriam Hopkins, Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea to the Palace Theatre for two days beginning June 21.

The story of this Lillian Hellman screen play is laid in a small girls' school which Martha Dobie (Miriam Hopkins) and Karen Wright (Merle Oberon) establish with the aid of Joe Cardin, a young local doctor (Joel McCrea), whom both love.

Jolson Takes Unusual Pains in Making Film

"How's your new picture?"

That was the question flung at Al Jolson by one of his friends as the new First National musical, "The Singing Kid," which comes to the Palace Theatre on June 23-24, was nearing completion.

"Champagne Charlie," the effervescent love story of a dollar princess and a playboy prince, is the newest Fox picture produced under the supervision of Edward T. Lowe. Paul Cavanagh and Helen Wood, lovely young screen newcomer, are cast in the leading roles of the film coming June 25-26 to the Palace Theatre.

Like the Old Days of the Ku Klux Klan

An article in The American Weekly, with next Sunday's Detroit Times, reveals how the lawless activities of the Black Legion, recently exposed in Detroit, are much like the outrages of the notorious nightriders which terrorized parts of the country after the Civil War.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Tugwell's Waste Goes On and On

Spends 278 Million; Houses Far Short of Program; Payroll Huge.

Washington.—When the District of Columbia court of appeals held that the President's transfer of relief funds to Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell's resettlement administration was unconstitutional, it did not save the hundreds of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money which have been spent by what one congressman has called "the most extragavant, the most unjustified and the most useless" of the New Deal alphabetical bureaus. Neither did it put a stop to future spending by the RA, for the decision will be appealed to higher courts.

Between May 1 of 1935 and March 23 of this year, Tugwell has received $278,317,171, of which $11,050,000, or nearly one dollar in every nine, has gone for "administrative" expense. Other expenditures: submarginal land purchases, $44,120,928; subsistence homesteads, $15,275,735; rural rehabilitation and resettlement, $124,270,040; direct relief, $10,168,551; suburban development, $31,000,000; and land development, $15,000,000.

Payroll Numbers 17,055.

What started out as only a handful of executives in the RA has swelled to a payroll of 17,055. The payroll for administering the various units in 27 Washington buildings alone is $25,-052,085 a year. Sixteen executives are paid $7,000 to $9,000 annually; 41 from $6,000 to $7,000, and 55 from $5,000 to $6,000.

Professor Tugwell determines the amount of land which the RA will purchase and the use to which it shall be put. In less than a year he has placed under option 10,020,631 acres of land and has purchased 8,763,840 acres.

Houses Fail to Rise.

Tugwell has spent $278,317,171, but few houses, comparatively, have ever been completed. In most cases the lands on which they are built are too poor to raise crops profitably and few families are attracted to move in. Still fewer industries are being moved to the projects. Where houses have been completed, walls are often cracking and roofs leaking already. Tugwell's payroll for labor alone is $30,000 a day—enough to build ten houses a day—but less than ten houses a month are being completed.

In the South, in Minnesota and in other locations the RA has given the jobs up as hopeless and is attempting to peddle the projects to private corporations, at enormous loss to the public purse.

Payrollers Write Book; Ickes Collects Royalties

Washington.—"Back to Work," a book published about a year ago as the work of Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, and upon which Ickes collects the royalties, was really written by press agents for the PWA working on federal government time and paid with the taxpayers' money, it was revealed here in connection with a suit involving the constitutionality of PWA.

At the suggestion of Clark Foreman, Rosenwald foundation employee who planned the book, Ickes imported a young writer, Michael Ross, from England, to write the story of "recovery" in America. He went on the PWA payroll at $6,000 a year. Ross' efforts were then re-written by Jonathan Latimer, also on the federal payroll. Parts of the book were written by K. Sewell Winefield, assistant director of the power division of PWA, and Michael Straus and David Wolfsohn of the PWA publicity staff.

Robust Spring Zephyrs Reveal Federal Waste

Chicago, Ill.—There was something in the wind in the neighborhood about the warehouses on North Water street here, and it wasn't lilacs. Investigators discovered that the aroma, robust and overbearing, emanated from the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation's storage rooms where 38 carloads of onions were stored.

Twenty WPA workers were loading spoiled onions, which had sprouted and rotted while waiting for the FSCC to distribute them to families on relief. Workers said the stuff was being hauled away to be dumped, but John Thompson, the foreman, denied it, explaining that it was being distributed to "people with gardens" for planting. However, when a reporter started following one of the trucks Thompson called it back. Warehouse officials refused to let anyone into the building to find out how much of the supply was spoiled.

Additional Federal Liabilities

Washington.—Not included in the Treasury department's staggering estimates of the United States national debt, which place it at 34½ billions by June 30, are the bonds of various government corporations which the government has guaranteed. These total another 4½ billions.

Spending in Lucid Terms

Washington. — The $11,001,083,834 spent by the Roosevelt administration up to the middle of May for industrial "pump-priming" and relief is nearly twice the amount of all the money in circulation in the United States.

GIVE INSTRUCTIONS BATTLE TENT WORMS

County Agent Advises Treatment to Kill Worms Destroying Trees

H. C. Mellencamp, county agricultural agent, today gave Charlevoix residents instructions for combatting the little woolly worms that have swarmed in the last two weeks.

"They are forest tent caterpillars," said Mr. Mellencamp. "A solution of arsenate of lead is the best means of controlling the worms at this time of the year.

"The posts can best be combated by spraying with arsenate of lead at the rate of four pounds to 100 gallons of water. Where only small amounts of spray are needed, such as to control them on shrubs and garden plants, use three teaspoonfuls of arsenate of lead powder dissolved in a gallon of water.

"Since arsenate of lead is poisonous, it should not be used on plants that have set their fruit. Instead, use pyrethrum dust—one part pyrethrum to three parts of filler such as cheap flour or land plaster. This preparation is not poisonous to warm blooded animals.

"The caterpillar should be through doing its damage in the next week or 10 days. At that time many of them will abandon the trees and settle in sheltered places for pupation. Stones, fences and woodpiles serve their purpose. They remain in this stage about two weeks and early in July the pupae turn into moths. A little later the females lay their eggs in band of about 150 around slender twigs. By fall the young caterpillars are fully developed within the eggs. They pass the winter thus and emerge the following spring about the time the leaves unfold.

"The worms are very abundant but cause serious injury only during spells of two or three consecutive years. At the end of such a period its natural enemies become numerous enough to check it."

If you're tolerant, it means that you live in a community where most of the natives don't believe as you do.
